Strike's over; let's play ball

CHICAGO (UPI)—The first general major league baseball players' strike in the nation's history ended Thursday after 13 turbulent days and baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced the postponed 1972 season will open Saturday.

Kuhn emerged from a 4-12 hour meeting of the club owners and league presidents in a Chicago hotel and announced "good news"—the owners and the Major League Players Association had agreed to end the strike.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, announced the settlement almost simultaneously in New York and said the owners should "take full responsibility for the delay of the season."

Kuhn said none of the games canceled so far—a total of 85 through today—will be made up. An end to the strike had been delayed since Tuesday—when the strike precipitating pension issue was settled—by insistence of the owners that players not be paid for some make-up games. But Miller said this had not been an issue.

American League owners, who long have been in favor of a 151-game schedule, apparently won out in the closed door sessions at Chicago's Marriot Hotel over National League owners who had wanted a full 162-game schedule.

The Chicago White Sox and the Kansas City Royals were reported ready and anxious to open their season in Kansas City tonight but the White Sox said the agreement called for a Saturday start and they were chartering transportation with a view to opening on that day.

The players began the strike April 1—four days before the April 5 scheduled opener in Cincinnati—to force the 21 club owners to sweeten their pension benefits.

The players won a $300,000 increase in pension benefits with the owners agreeing to pay out the additional amount in pensions from monies already in a pension fund surplus.

Boyle 'approved' Yablonski killing

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI)—Mrs. Annette Gilly said Thursday her father told her the Yablonski murder had approval of the "big man" and to her "that meant Tony Boyle, president of the United Mine Workers."

Mrs. Gilly, 32, also said in a statement read in court that Albert Pass of Middleboro, Ky., secretary-treasurer of UMW District 19, was the seventh person involved in the murder of UMW official Joseph A. "Jack" Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

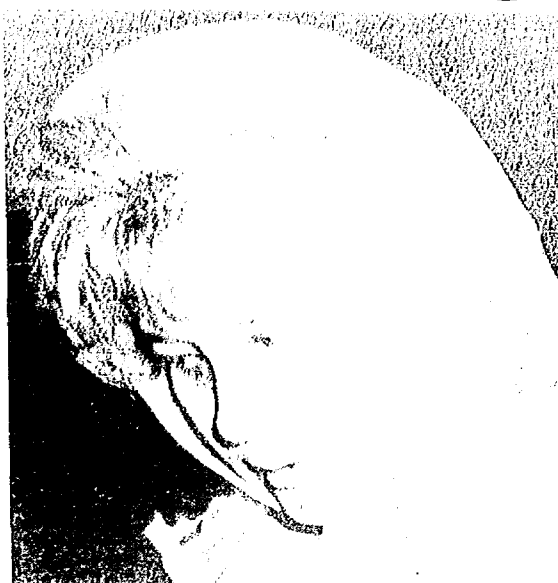

The blonde Cleveland housewife's confession, read at a pretrial hearing for her father, Sibous Huddleston, also accused in the 1969 murders, said:

"... my father told me that the Yablonski murder had the approval of the 'big man.' To me that meant Tony Boyle, president of the United Mine Workers."

Mrs. Gilly's confession was made public one day after William Jack Prater, 52, LaFollette, Tenn., a District 19 field representative, was charged with conspiracy in the Yablonski murders.

Mrs. Gilly said her father, scheduled to be tried here for murder on Monday, was "supposed to deal only with Bill Prater and he in turn with Albert Pass" in laying plans for the Yablonski murder and disposition of the payoff money, an estimated $10,000.

Already convicted in the killings are Paul E. Gilly, 38, Mrs. Gilly's husband, and Aubrey W. Martin, 24, both of Cleveland. They received death sentences.

Mrs. Anette Gilly... 'big man knew'

Mrs. Gilly pleaded guilty to the Yablonski murders two days ago. Claude E. Vealey, 28, also of Cleveland, pleaded guilty last fall and implicated Gilly and Martin as actual triggermen in the murders.

In her confession, read by special FBI agent William L. Curtis, Mrs. Gilly said she had made three trips to LaFollette, where she assisted in making arrangements for the payoff after Yablonski was killed.

She also said her husband told her on the day he was arrested "that if anything should happen to him I should remember the following four names—Tiller, Owens, Pass and Prater.

"Paul drilled me on those names. I asked him why I should remember them. He told me I'd know when the time was right."

A George J. Tiller is international vice president of the UMW and a John Owens is the international secretary-treasurer.

Yablonski, his wife and daughter were killed Dec. 31, 1969, in their Clarksville, Pa., home, just three weeks after Yablonski had lost a bitterly contested election for the UMW presidency to Boyle.

S. Viets stubbornly defend capital

SAIGON (UPI)—Heavily outnumbered South Vietnamese troops, aided by allied aircraft, stubbornly defended the besieged provincial capital of An Loc early today against an all-night attack by 10,000 Communist troops determined to make the city a Viet Cong capital.

Far to the north, U.S. soldiers fought the first ground skirmishes since the North Vietnamese offensive started two weeks ago.

Six waves of B-52 heavy bombers struck Communist positions within a mile of An Loc, a provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon, to help light off the 10,000 Communist troops spearheaded by about 60 tanks.

President Nguyen Van Thieu ordered South Vietnamese forces to hold the town "at all costs." It is vitaly important for both military and political reasons.

Defenders said they knocked out at least half of the 60 tanks during an assault Thursday that partially penetrated the city itself. They lost the An Loc airfield and Quan Loi, a military base only two miles away Thursday but held the city through the night long attack.

UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman reported from Phu Bai, 380 miles north of Saigon and the northernmost big American base remaining in South Vietnam, that U.S. infantrymen sent to reinforce the base Tuesday fought two skirmishes Thursday night and early today. In a third incident at dawn today a wounded North Vietnamese soldier was captured. No Americans were hurt.

In the Central Highlands area, Communist troops Thursday cut all major highways forcing a strain on the allied air supply efforts.

Southwest of An Loc in neighboring Cambodia, Communist forces and government troops fought a fierce battle near Kompong Trach.

Huge B-52 bombers continued raids over North Vietnam, striking military bases only 60 miles from Hanoi; and the U.S. command reported the heaviest casualties among American troops in more than six months with 12 men killed.

An Loc, once a prosperous rubber-plantation town of 12,000 persons, has been under attack almost since the start of the Communist offensive two weeks ago.

North Vietnamese forces came out of Cambodia and captured Loc Ninh north of An Loc, the capital of Binh Long province.

An Loc's location makes it valuable to the Communists if they plan to move on the capital. Its seizure would also mark a major political victory for the North Vietnamese, who have never been able to set up a headquarters in South Vietnam.

Communists leaflets scattered in An Loc said the town would be a provisional capital by April 20.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, corps commander for the Saigon region, flew into the An Loc area to personally plan the defense. Meanwhile, 5,000 tank equipped South Vietnamese paratroopers battled north along Highway 13 to try to break through to An Loc.

What's news

(Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service)

U.S. Viet toll increases

SAIGON — The U.S. command Thursday reported 12 American servicemen killed in combat last week, the highest U.S. death toll in Indochina fighting in more than six months. Another 19 Americans were listed as captured or missing. The command also reported that 32 U.S. servicemen were wounded in actions during the week ending April 8.

State tax take soars

HARRISBURG — State tax collections soared nine per cent above official estimates in March with taxes bringing in $19.5 million more than expected, according to Revenue Department statistics. The March increase brought total state tax collections to $1.6 billion, or $119.5 million higher than the Shapp administration's fiscal forecasters predicted they would be.

Apollo weather promising

CAPE KENNEDY — Weathermen Thursday predicted good conditions for Sunday's attempt to send Apollo 16 to an alpine landing site on the moon. The countdown erupted smoothly past the midway point and the space agency reported everything remained on schedule for the 12:51 p.m. EST blastoff.

Ship pact scrutiny set

WASHINGTON — Two Litteron ship contracts will be studied by the House Armed Services Committee. The panel said the firm is seriously behind schedule on the major naval ship-building programs, and is experiencing cost overruns on both programs.

McGovern, Jackson on trail

NEW YORK — McGovern's candidacy won tentative endorsement by leaders of Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace, an antiwar group. Sen. Jackson (D., Wash.), another presidential hopeful, said McGovern's proposed $33 billion defense budget cut was "political blather." He also said it would be a "political disaster" for the Democrats if they nominate McGovern or Alabama Gov. Wallace.

Scott whispers of trip

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., shrouding his plans in semi-secrecy, refused Thursday to divulge the exact time he and Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Montana, will depart for their three-week trip to China. Scott told reporters only that his plane will leave Washington "sometime between Friday and Sunday." The minority leader said that it was solely up to him to tell. But, he said, he had promised Mansfield to remain mum. The majority leader believes it is a "mission on which very little should be said." In fact, Scott said, Mansfield might be upset that he called a press conference. Scott told reporters he felt compelled, though, to explain why he was hedging on the exact departure times.

Senate bill sets limit to 'wars'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Thursday gave 68-16 approval to unprecedented legislation that would bar presidents from involving America into undeclared wars like Korea and Vietnam.

Sponsors hailed the action as a "historic" landmark in the continual tug-of-war between Congress and the White House over the conduct of war and peace.

The measure—vigorously opposed by the administration—would require a president to get prior congressional approval before committing U.S. forces to prolonged fighting abroad.

It would not apply to the current Indochina conflict, which has dragged on 10 years.

While chances the House would pass the measure seemed slim and while there were rumblings of a presidential veto should the bill ever reach Nixon's desk, backers expressed confidence.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., chief sponsor of the war powers bill, said public pressure would make the difference.

Gov. Shapp... pens aplenty

'Home Rule' signed

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Gov. Milton J. Shapp Thursday signed into law the "Home Rule Bill" giving the right of self-government to the state's 2,600 counties and municipalities.

Shapp said that under the new law "the people have the final say before any governmental changes can be made."

"Instead of saying that local government has only those powers delegated to it, the Constitution now says local government has all powers not denied to it," he said.

Home rule is designed to take most of the local decision-making out of the hands of the General Assembly. When the legislature was debating the bill, the major question was whether county or the municipality should have more power.

But the legislature retains the power to regulate schools, redraw boundaries, conduct elections, determine what is taxed, set the rates of taxation on nonresidents, assess property and punish criminals.

Hijacked plane prop for interview

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A Mexican national determined to tell his grievances to the world hijacked an airliner over Arizona Thursday, diverted it to Los Angeles and then held a tearful interview with Spanish-speaking newsmen aboard the craft before he surrendered.

It was the fourth hijacking incident in the United States within a week.

Ricardo Chavez Ortiz, 37, a cook and the father of nine children, released the 27 passengers and three stewards from the Frontier Airlines Boeing 737 in return for the "interview" with one radio and one television reporter.

Ortiz demanded no ransom or amnesty, saying the issue was "one of justice in our society."

In Denver, Frontier Airlines president Al Fedman disclosed that Ortiz was questioned when he tried to board the plane in Albuquerque because he matched the FAA "profile" of a hijacker. Fedman said he was interrogated and asked to produce identification but was not searched, and he was allowed to board the flight.

The drama began when the gunman seized control of the regional airliner on a flight leg from Albuquerque, N. M., to Tucson, Ariz., and ordered it to Los Angeles.

Police artist Ector Garcia spoke with Ortiz in Spanish. At one point, the hijacker told him:

"I don't want to bring harm to anyone. Look, Garcia, what I want is radio and television newsmen aboard. This is a problem of all the sons of Los Angeles and the republic. For my part, I don't care. What is important is that I have an opportunity to explain my reason for my action. After that, when the reporters board, explain to the passengers I did not want to harm any of them."

The passengers were allowed to leave the plane nearly three hours after it landed at Los Angeles and at the same time, Guillermo Restrepo of television station KABC and Antonio Gonzalez of radio KWKW, both Spanish language outlets in Los Angeles, boarded the plane.

Congress asks report as adviser probes Viet

WASHINGTON (UPI)—As 62 members of Congress asked for a full report on U.S. military policy in Indochina, the White House said Thursday that President Nixon is sending his deputy national security adviser to South Vietnam to measure the impact of the current Communist offensives there.

In announcing that Nixon had told Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig to "undertake an on-the-spot assessment of the situation," White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the mission was not intended to suggest that the President had any increased misgivings or that he was considering sending more ground troops into the war.

But on Capitol Hill, a group of 17 senators and 45 House members made public a letter they had sent the President in which they urged him to tell the nation quickly about the "size, purpose and anticipated costs" of further military actions under consideration to counter the Communist offensives.

The legislators said they were "deeply concerned over what appears to be a major re-escalation of United States involvement in the war" and that the nation "should be fully informed if such a major new commitment of lives and resources is, in fact, being made."

Gal-less shop stuns Chinese

DETROIT (UPI)—The tightly restricted Chinese ping pong players got their first chance Thursday to talk to American workers, visiting a fast-moving automobile assembly line where they were surprised by the lack of women.

The Chinese, in their second day of a two-week goodwill tour of the United States, were plainly delighted by the chance to visit with the workers in Chrysler's bustling Lynch Road assembly plant.

In groups of four, accompanied by a swarm of newsmen and translators, the Chinese moved along the car-spewing line stopping to talk at every opportunity.

"We are so happy to talk to the working class," said Ho Tzu-pin to the workers. "We bring you the greetings of the working people of China. The working class is a great class."

One of the young Chinese women said she wanted to talk to female workers, got a chance to visit briefly with two, and was surprised there weren't more women working on the line. In China, she said, "men and women work together in plants like this."

Another player expressed concern that the workers get rest breaks from the tedium of the job.

Although the assembly line never stopped, the workers paused to talk, wave or stare at the visitors.

Ho Tzu-pin gave Robert Dunlap, 28, a lapel pin symbolic of Peking's Gate of Heavenly Peace, a large community square, and Dunlap apologized because he did not have anything to give Ho in return.

"The best present you could give us is to allow us to come here," Ho said.

The Chinese have been surrounded by police, plainclothes agents and protective sponsors from the United States Table Tennis Association (USTA) since their arrival Wednesday, and clearly enjoyed the chance to come into contact with persons not associated with the tour.

Kleindienst backers strive to duck constitutional crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republicans fighting to win Senate confirmation of Richard G. Kleindienst's nomination as attorney general sought Thursday to head off a threatened constitutional confrontation between Congress and the White House over the ITT affair.

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., said avenues were being explored to permit White House aide Peter Flanigan to appear before the Senate Judiciary Committee without interfering with what President Nixon has deemed a violation of executive branch powers.

Senate Democratic leaders have said they would try to block Kleindienst's confirmation unless Flanigan first testified under oath in open session about his role in the out-of-court settlement last year of a multibillion-dollar antitrust case involving the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

Mathias told reporters he had talked to "several people" at the White House about the possibility of an "informal meeting" between Flanigan and the Judiciary Committee now investigating the ITT settlement. He said he got a "cautious" reaction and that a compromise might be arranged within the next few days.

Unless some sort of meeting is set up with Flanigan, Mathias said the Kleindienst nomination could be in serious jeopardy.

The informal approach, with testimony taken behind closed doors and without a transcript being taken, has been used before by the White House.

Now GOP wants out

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Republican official most responsible for putting the GOP National Convention together at San Diego has urged last-minute consideration of moving it to another site because of escalating costs and construction problems, it was disclosed Thursday.

This urgent recommendation was contained in a letter from Robert F. Knowles, coordinator for the National Convention as he was for the same event in 1968, to Dick Hermann, Nebraska national committeeman and vice chairman of the convention arrangements committee.

Disputes involving labor unions over contracts were listed among the problems and coupled with a warning that the convention hall might not be ready for the opening session Aug. 21.

Mrs. Violet Waggoner, a riveter in the machinists' union, laid out jars of instant tea and coffee, cat food, hamburger relish and dishwashing detergent. She said her five-month survey of Denver supermarkets indicated 77 of 99 items had risen in price, adding 5 per cent to the average grocery bill.

"It's a consumer's nightmare," she said.

"I am a mother of seven children. Imagine my horror when I found peanut butter had gone from 57 to 69 cents."

Charles E. Johnson, a steel worker from Tacoma, Wash., declared: "this whole program is a farce. Phase II is for big business."

Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr., commenting at the close of the panel's two-day hearing on why food prices have soared recently, thanked the price watchers for helping publicize the increases but stressed that the government was trying to avoid drastic steps such as ceilings on all prices.

The commission's aim, he noted, was to control business firms' profit margins. "That's where we do have control. That's where we're watching."

'Secret' talk deal denied

PARIS (UPI)—William J. Porter, chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, said Thursday President Nixon secretly asked the Communists on April 1 to resume the talks he ordered suspended nine days earlier. A Viet Cong spokesman denied it.

Porter said the Communist answer was a "mushrooming invasion" of South Vietnam. The invasion began March 30 when North Vietnamese troops attacked northern Quang Tri province across the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), which separates the two Vietnams.

A Viet Cong spokesman, referring to Porter's statement, said he knew of no such message from Nixon and answered with a repeated charge that it was the United States which rejected several Communist offers to resume the talks.

Wartime measures better?

Labor: Controls farcical

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The AFL-CIO's own price monitors, displaying grocery items to dramatize their point, said Thursday that government price controls were a farce and that even strict wartime-style measures would be an improvement.

If it takes an elaborate new bureaucracy to run effective price controls, the AFL-CIO's Leo Perlis told the Price Commission, "then by God have a bureaucracy."

Perlis, director of community services for the 13.6 million-member labor federation, accompanied six "price watchers," from a Denver housewife to a Spanish-speaking machinist from California, who reported a broad range of food price boosts and charged that the Internal Revenue Service didn't respond to their complaints.

investigate "the plundering and powerful corruptive influence" of giant international conglomerates.

The president said that accords at the conference may have little real effect, since big corporations "handle in silence, conforming with their own interests, the practical application of the agreements concluded."

In a reference to the "ITT affair," Allende said that a huge corporation has started "world-wide campaigns against the prestige of a government, to make it the victim of an international boycott and to sabotage its relations with the rest of the world."

Allende said "a recent and well known case, which affects us so directly, shocked the world and constitutes an alarm signal for the international community, which is under an imperative obligation to react with utmost vigor."

Documents released in Washington last month by columnist Jack Anderson purported to show that ITT had plotted to prevent Allende's inauguration in November, 1970.

Eastland ouster attempt rejected

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democrats rejected Friday a liberal move to strip Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., of his Judiciary Committee chairmanship unless he pledges loyalty to the national party.

The Democratic leadership and all but one of the Senate's 17 committee chairmen — Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr., N.J. — joined Southerners in backing Eastland.

IRA ups bombing

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—Irish Republican extremists Thursday mounted their most extensive bombing and shooting campaign since Britain imposed direct rule over Northern Ireland two weeks ago.

The British army said an elderly woman was killed and at least eight other persons were injured or wounded. Scores of shops and a number of vehicles were wrecked in bombing and shooting incidents throughout most of the province.

The intensive violence came despite renewed appeals from Roman Catholic civil rights groups to the Irish Republican Army (IRA) to end its bombing and shooting campaign or risk civil-war in Northern Ireland.

IRS commissioner claims tax firm fraud widespread

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters of the Internal Revenue Service said Thursday there is widespread fraud and incompetence in the tax preparation industry, but he rejected federal licensing of tax consultants as a possible remedy.

Walters said it would be an overwhelming task for IRS to investigate the estimated 200,000 preparers — some of whom might still be dishonest or incompetent but could use a federal license to attract customers.

In testimony before a House government operations subcommittee looking into abuses by the tax consultant industry, Walters said IRS may ask Congress for authority to seek federal injunctions to prevent preparation of returns by those "who consistently prepare false or deficient returns."

Walters said IRS may also ask for statutory penalties of 10 per cent to 25 per cent of the tax deficiency caused by a preparer who knowingly understates income or overstates deductions, exemptions or credits.

Taxpayers presently are penalized 5 per cent of a tax deficiency due to negligence or intentional disregard for the rules, and 50 per cent where fraud is proved. Some tax preparers offer to pay any penalties they incur in behalf of their customers.

The scope of the fraud perpetrated by tax consultants was revealed Monday by Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, who said a survey in the Southeast showed 97 per cent of the tax returns prepared by persons other than the taxpayer were fraudulent.

IRS has expanded its audit of tax returns that might have gone uninspected and lengthened the hours at IRS offices where some 15,000 persons are available to help those who need tax assistance.

Justice to file TV anti-trust suit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department said Thursday it intended to file antitrust suits against the three major television networks charging they "monopolized and restrained" programming trade in prime time.

ABC and CBS said in New York they would fight the suits. NBC said it "would be inappropriate to comment at this time."

CBS President Robert Wood said the suits "would reduce stations and networks to mere conduits."

ABC said the planned suits were "without merit."

In response, CBS said it produced only 8.2 per cent of its prime time programming and ABC cited a 10 per cent figure.

ABC said of all its programming only 11.4 per cent was ABC-produced, "hardly a monopolistic position by any standard."

"... We concluded that this suit is without merit ... and instructed counsel to defend this suit vigorously. We are confident of our position," ABC said.

The Justice Department said the suits would be filed "shortly," possibly today, and would come under sections of the Sherman Antitrust Act. The Justice Department said it informed the three networks and VIACOM International, which is involved in television program syndication of old CBS shows and cable television, of its intentions to file suits against them at a meeting with its antitrust division earlier this week.

In a message to all stations affiliated with CBS, Wood said the department, in brief, sought to:

—Transfer to advertising agencies and motion picture producers control of network schedules including what programs are put on the air and when.

—Prevent the networks from producing television entertainment programs or feature films.

"In the first instance the department would be setting the clock back 20 years or more to the days when entertainment in both television and radio networking was mainly selected and controlled by advertising agencies," Wood said.

The spokesman said the suits would be filed "shortly," possibly today.

Wood said lawyers for the companies were informed of the pending suits at a meeting called in Washington, D.C.

Exasperated businessman

Eugene Lynn of Effort stands amidst the construction of the hotel-motel complex he is constructing in the West End. He claims since he is a businessman he needs a Bell telephone as he does his calling to Stroudsburg.

'Ma Bell' spurns admirer

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third in a four-part series on the problem of telephone boundary lines dividing the rural West End.)

By MAUREEN RUFFE
Pocono Record Reporter

EFFORT — "If Bell doesn't give me a telephone, I'm going to go up on my property and cut down their poles with a chain saw," said exasperated resident Eugene Lynn, emphasizing his determination to obtain a Stroudsburg exchange.

Lynn's residence is located at the tail end of the "215" calling area and falls within the boundary line of the Palmerton Telephone Company.

However, less than a tenth of a mile from Lynn's front door, Bell Telephone utility poles are being maintained to provide service to Effort residents north of Lynn. The poles are located on Lynn's property, and according to the perturbed West Enders, have no right of way to be there.

Since Lynn is in the process of constructing a hotel-motel complex and since he feels his calling interest is more in line with a Stroudsburg exchange, he has insisted that Bell Telephone cross over the Palmerton boundary line to offer him extended service.

During the past several months, Lynn has contacted both telephone companies and has written to the Public Utility Commission (PUC) explaining his desire to have a Bell phone installed in his home.

The Effort businessman has become so exasperated that he has verbally threatened to cut down Bell's poles with his chain saw if the company does not yield to his request.

Although he admits he actually would never take such drastic action, Lynn says he will hand the entire matter over to his attorney if an affordable solution is not reached in the near future.

Phone representatives from both Palmerton and Bell Telephone met with Lynn last month at his home. "We all sat around in my living room and wasted each other's time," said Lynn.

Currently the PUC is investigating Lynn's complaint which the commission stressed was an "informal" request. If Lynn is not satisfied with the commission's final decision on the matter, which is expected to come sometime this month, the next alternative for Lynn would be to file a formal complaint with the commission.

This would insure a formal hearing would be scheduled to review Lynn's case.

"I own 12 and a half acres of land in Effort," said Lynn, "and the Bell poles are just up the road from my house. There is nothing in my deed that says they have rights on my property. I have to let their poles there and they won't even give me a Bell phone!"

According to the new West End resident, he and his seven-member family moved to Effort in October and began making requests immediately to have a Bell phone installed.

"I needed a Palmerton Telephone like I needed a hole in the head," said Lynn. "I realized immediately that my fire company, doctor, attorney, police, priest, banker, and countless suppliers were all long distance calls. Circuits were busy. I kept getting wrong numbers, and in an emergency I would have to dial a 12-digit number."

Lynn said after Bell received his first request, a company engineer was sent out to examine how close to the boundary Lynn's residence was. The company representative explained a Bell telephone could only be installed on the part of Lynn's property which was actually within the Bell boundary.

"When I first came here, I went goofy trying to dial these long 12-digit numbers," said Lynn. "Normally for information, you merely dial three digits. Here, I have to dial 46-555-1212."

PUC gets involved

Lynn's first, informal letter was sent to the PUC six weeks ago, and the commission indicated it would look into the matter as soon as possible. It was at the PUC's request that the two phone companies sent representatives to speak with Lynn.

"Their alibi was if they cross the lines for me, they have to do it for others," said Lynn. "What's wrong with doing it for me and for others? The government has reapportioned Senatorial lines all over the country and it worked out okay."

"I realize that the authority of these spokesmen is limited," he continued. "Perhaps the higher executives of these phone companies would appreciate our situation and come forth with a solution."

A second letter, mailed to the PUC two weeks ago was more drastic and stressed the seriousness of having to dial 12-digit numbers in case of emergency.

Question of fairness

A spokesman from Palmerton Telephone Company this week said that if Lynn would be able to get a Bell telephone, it would not be fair to other residents. He also emphasized that Lynn's present phone is well within the Palmerton boundary.

The Bell representative said his company did have the right of way to maintain poles on the Effort property and said that right of way was a continuing thing and did not have to be renegotiated each time property changed hands.

He also indicated it would be presumptuous of him to go into another company's territory, since territory lines were already on file with the PUC.

An engineer from the PUC said in Harrisburg last week, that their investigation showed that seven and possibly eight Palmerton customers were located between Lynn and the Bell boundary 700 feet away.

In reviewing past history, the spokesman said there did not seem to be sufficient calling interest among residents to allow companies to provide extended area service. He stressed also, that unusually, toll charges alone cannot be used in themselves for justification in changing boundaries.

Additional changes

The Harrisburg official said if Lynn was willing to pay supplemental charges each month, he could contract for a Bell Telephone under a foreign exchange service. Additional monthly charges would be computed on the basis of mileage from Lynn's home to the Kresgeville central office to the Bell central office.

In a final comment about the problem, Lynn said he would do everything in his power to get a Bell telephone.

"The biggest problem with the PUC and these phone people is that they look at us West End residents as rural citizens who talk loud and then forget the whole thing," said Lynn. "But some people like myself are not going to let this drop. If they think I will, they are mistaken."

NEXT: PUC officials in Harrisburg discuss the structure of the commission and explain how complaints, such as the West End telephone boundary situation, are investigated.

Wide-load relief sought

MILFORD — The Pike County Commissioners have written to Secretary of Transportation Jacob G. Kassab in regard to wide-load use of Rt. 209 in the county and traffic problems in the borough of Milford.

Citing the 1971 ban of wide-loads from Rt. 209 between Bushkill and Milford during the summer and early fall months, the letter expressed a desire to have the same policy in effect this year.

The commissioners also requested wide-loads stop using Broad Street in the borough a practice which is "backing up traffic for at least one and a half to two miles."

Police probe bomb threat

MILFORD — Pennsylvania State Police from the Milford barracks and members of the Westfall Township Fire Department responded to a bomb threat phoned into the Delaware Valley High School in Milford Wednesday.

Students were evacuated from the building and kept at a safe distance after the threat was received at approximately 2:30 p.m., while state police searched the premises with women standing by. The search failed to turn up anything resembling an explosive device.

The students were kept on the school grounds until 3:30 p.m. before they were dismissed.

State police said they will continue their investigation into the threat and are keeping information concerning the anonymous caller confidential.

Allentown tax case postponed

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A move by the Internal Revenue Service to attach the assets of an Allentown couple accused of alleged tax liabilities of $232,000 was postponed Thursday by a federal judge.

U.S. District Court Judge Daniel H. Hayett granted John and Margaret Parenti a 10 day stay of the government order pending the filing of briefs.

Parenti is currently appealing a one-year prison sentence, one year's probation and a $18,000 fine imposed in 1969 after he was convicted of income tax evasion.

Jeopardy assessments against the couple were filed last March 31 by Alfred Whinston, Philadelphia district director of the Internal Revenue Service.

State Sen. Benjamin Donolow, attorney for the couple, charged the action was "completely arbitrary and capricious and had no basis whatsoever in fact."

Ted's bill saves Chappaquiddick

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., has introduced a bill that would place Chappaquiddick Island and surrounding islands under a federal-local trust to preserve their natural state.

Chappaquiddick is the island where Kennedy was driving the night his car plunged off a wooden bridge. A secretary, Mary Jo Kopechne, died in the accident.

Kennedy's press secretary, Richard Drayne, said the senator was "aware" that the bill might renew talk about the Chappaquiddick accident.

"What kind of a senator would he be if he hesitated to introduce a bill because Chappaquiddick is involved?" Drayne said. "If you read the bill closely, you will find Edgartown and Poucha Pond and all the names from 1969."

Another aide who helped draw up the bill said that

Chappaquiddick was "only one small item in a lengthy, 12-page bill on all the islands of Nantucket Sound."

The bill, outlining the boundaries of the preservation areas, refers to "the unimproved dirt road which in a continuation of Chappaquiddick Road divides this inlet from the waters known as Poucha Pond." The bridge was on this road.

In introducing the bill Tuesday Kennedy emphasized that his proposal would not turn the islands into a federal preserve. "To do so would," he said, "chill their liveliness, and would in fact accelerate their destruction."

The Kennedy bill would create a Nantucket Sound Islands Trust, placing the Islands of Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket under the joint authority of the Interior Department and a commission made up of local officials.

Humphrey hits firms

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., charged Thursday that the Nixon administration was governed not by the people but by large corporations.

Humphrey, making a stop at the airport here in his campaign for votes for Pennsylvania April 25 Democratic primary, also criticized Nixon's latest actions in the Vietnam conflict and the President's wage and price programs.

Humphrey told a gathering at the Williamsport-Lycoming County Airport that Nixon should not have sent more carriers and planes to Vietnam.

Wallace man has problem

By NEIL MAXWELL
Dow Jones — Ottaway News
PITTSBURGH — If ever a man had his work cut out for him, it is Norman E. Jones.

A portly, energetic man with a mustache and a wisp of a goatee suggestive of Don Quixote, Jones is out on the campaign trail trying to start a landslide of votes for presidential candidate George C. Wallace.

Black votes. Jones is black. Jones, in fact, is head of what he calls the National Black Citizens Committee for George Wallace Inc., and he is off on a tour of northern cities to whip up black support for Wallace.

There is some question, of course, as to how effective Jones will be at that. That's because there is some question at how effective anyone would be at that. "I don't think Jesus would be too effective," says Leon Hall, a staff member at the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta.

The 63-year-old Jones isn't in the least swayed by talk like that, however. He came here hoping for an interview with the editor of the Pittsburgh Courier, a black weekly with nationwide distribution.

He ended up talking with the sports editor, however. I got the assignment by virtue of the fact that everybody else was out of the office," the sports editor confides.

Not in the least discouraged by that reception, Jones plans to be in Baltimore later this week and in New York over the weekend trying to set up press conferences.

"This is propaganda they are putting out to frighten me," he says. "All they want is to get me out so they can get in on the hustle. I'm a hero to blacks. They are all saying, 'Oh Jones is a smart cat.'"

That's not quite what they are all saying. Says Mr. Young: "In the South, his kind of Uncle Tom activity has been tolerated for a long time, because there's a feeling that it's legitimate to hustle a white like Wallace." (It is a long tradition in the South for crafty blacks to promise white politicians of whatever stripe that they will, for a fee, deliver that black vote on election day. "But in the North, he will meet a lot of hostility."

Hall thinks Jones just might meet a lot of hostility in the South, too, and particularly around St. Petersburg, Fla., Jones' home base. "Oh wow!" Hall says. "Good God Al mighty he'll be lucky if he lives. There's some really tough young blacks down there. They may run him out of town."

Not a chance, says the ebullient Jones, who also writes a column called "Let's Talk Politics" for several black papers in Florida, and whose past vocations have included sales promotion, public relations, hobnobbing, booking agency and appliance selling.

As he sees it, vast hordes of blacks who are disenchanted with integration and with their treatment at the hands of liberals are itching to go with Wallace.

"We have received thousands of letters from black citizens wanting to help," he says, relaxing in a bathrobe in his hotel room here.

Talk like that just amazes other blacks. Andrew Young figures that with or without Jones, Wallace won't get more than one-fifth of one percent of the black vote "and that will be because of calculable errors," such as pulling the wrong levers.

Sour grapes chortles Jones. "I do not believe in the Easter Bunny, Santa Claus or the tooth fairy," he says, waving a cigar. "And I have doubts about the Great Pumpkin. I also do not believe in integration, because it is another fantasy. Two forces

Cheat on your income tax? You cheat on others, too

By JAMES C. HYATT

Dow Jones — Ottaway News
So it's income-tax time again, and your files are in worse shape than the ones that went through the TTT shredder?

The IRS is already questioning your attempt of last year to claim your sheepdog as a deduction?

And your accountant has just agreed to testify in the inquiry into your 1968 return but he's testifying against you?

Cheer up, you're probably cheating on a lot more than your income taxes, but the chances are nobody cares. The chances also are high that you don't even know about these taxes you're not paying.

In cities, counties, states and even at the federal level, countless taxes — amounting to untold millions of dollars — go unpaid every year. Some of the provisions are merely so old and obscure that no one pays very much attention to them anymore; others go uncollected because nobody tries to collect.

And taxpayers are something less than diligent in volunteering to ante up. "I don't think there is any corporation or individual who seeks and tries to be sure he pays every tax to which he might be susceptible," says a Cleveland partner for a major accounting firm.

What kind of taxes are involved? Well, there's the severance tax on hides in Louisiana, for example. Under its provisions, anyone who traps muskrat or opossum or hunts alligators must pay up.

The going levy is one cent per hide for muskrat or opossum, two cents on the first five feet of alligator hides, and up to 25 cents if the alligator happens to measure over 10 feet. (Even if you pay your alligator tax, you might be in trouble; alligator trapping has been illegal in Louisiana for years).

And then there's the widely disregarded personal property tax in Texas. How much money is involved? Not millions, says Carl S. Smith, tax assessor and collector in Harris County (Houston), Billings.

Texas law requires taxpayers to file with the county, in addition to their real estate holdings, a list of all personal property. That means everything — their car, that old pearl necklace inherited from Aunt Mabel and even the change in the kid's piggy banks.

"The law is very specific," says Smith. "It lists jacks and jennies (male and female donkeys), sheep, goats, hogs, dogs, buggies, steam engines, sewing machines and pianofortes."

In practice, Texans in almost all counties ignore the requirement to file a list of their personal property.

"As a practical matter, the law on personal property can't be enforced," says Smith. He explains that there is no legal penalty for failure to file.

A century ago in Pennsylvania, farms put through an occupations tax aimed at city slickers and exempting farmers. The tax is still imposed by many school districts.

Valuations vary widely, but in the West Shore School District near Harrisburg, housewives and retired persons are on a par; they're "worth" $100. Doctors, who rate a $1,000 valuation, are at the top of the scale. All are legally supposed to pay 18 percent of their "value."

In places where the tax is less than aggressively enforced, however, there's considerable temptation to dodge or hedge.

"I heard of an attorney who worked in a general office for years and listed himself as a clerk," says John Ingram, director of the Pennsylvania Economy League, a research group. "They finally caught him."

Tax enforcement is frequently cited as a major factor in unpaid taxes. In Ohio, public libraries complain that they've been under-financed for years because of poor enforcement of an "intangibles" tax on dividend income and securities. The tax produces almost $60 million a year, but the state figures another $18 million should be coming in.

That cheating is about to come to a halt, however. With a new state income tax, Ohio will be able to locate taxpayers with dividend income.

Easton man convicted

Sentence was deferred pending post trial motions and a pre-sentence investigation.

In other Monroe County Court action, Joseph Hothouse, of Belvidere, N.J., pleaded guilty to indecent assault. He had been indicted for assault with intent to ravish.

'Fantasia' Fashion Show whirls with vivid colors

Sue Monelli moves from a 1930 cotton wrap-up ...

... to today's sleek look ...

BUSHKILL — The "Fantasia" Fashion Show held at Fernwood this week for the benefit of the Keystone Heart Association was a phantasmagoria of color and yards of swirling, whirling fashions, all donated by Elsie Odger's Five-O-Six Bazaar of Stroudsburg.

The show netted $350 for the association and offered a bird's eye view into this year's spring and summer couture. Lots of those smartly tailored looks reminiscent of the 1930's ... textured cottons and super sleek jerseys ... jacket and skirt suits with pants to match to give the most for some hard-earned money.

Designers have touched on the prevailing mood of President and Mrs. Nixon's China visit and this influence was noticeably apparent in the show with a high-waisted ankle-length arnel jersey sporting a red, jade green and white oriental design and an ever so soft print knit spotted with Chinese medallions.

Models walked down a runway lined with some very familiar characters from Donald Duck and Pinocchio to Snow White and her seven dwarfs — all adding to the splendour of the "Fantasia" theme.

Nana Snyder at the piano accompanied Sally Ferebee's slick narration with renditions of the "Rites of Spring", "Sorcerer's Apprentice", "Pastoral Symphony", "Dance of the Hours", and "Waltz of the Flowers" — all in "Fantasia" tradition.

Equal to the fabulous fashions were models Prudie Benzoni, Sue Monelli, Kate Mullins, Maggie Price, Janet Flagler, Nora Meyung, Diane Grizka, Sue Bramhall, Ann Weiler, and Betty Jo Fetherman.

Two of the many doorprizes donated by area merchants were received with an additional note of gaiety. Linda Starnes, owner and operator of the Village Beauty Salon in Tannersville, won a shampoo and set at Miss Joyce's Beauty Salon. And Richard Monelli, husband of one of the show's models, was presented a bodysuit.

Mrs. Sue Viechnicki was the show's chairman and the committees were headed by: Mrs. Lynn Reilly, decorating; Mrs. Dolly Magane, hospitality; William Treible, publicity; and Mrs. Audrey Keiper, tickets.

Mrs. Delores Fuscaldo and Mrs. Monelli had presented a three minute spot promoting the fashion show on Blue Ridge Cable Television for three days preceding the occasion.

The Slim Gourmet

Figuring calories

By BARBARA GIBBONS
Dear Barbara: Can you tell me how to go about measuring the calories in home-baked foods?

Eleanore Forbes
Ashland, N.H.

Dear Eleanore: It's simple arithmetic and really worth doing! All you have to do is list the ingredients, add up their calorie counts, and divide by the number of pieces or portions. For example, here's how you might go about finding out the calories in your grandmother's special chocolate cake:

How to Figure Calories
Chocolate Cake	Calories
2 cups cake flour	720
1 1/3 cups sugar	1,001
1/2 cup shortening	884
1 cup milk	160
2 large eggs	162

Jean Anne Ambruch

Jean Anne Ambruch engaged

POTTSTOWN — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Ambruch of 596 Prospect St., Pottstown, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean Anne to Paul J. Maggio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Maggio of 979 Glasgow St., Stowe.

Miss Ambruch is a graduate of Pottstown Senior High School of the class of 1971 and is employed as a clerk and cake decorator by Maggio's Bakery, West End Shopping Plaza.

Her fiancé graduated in 1969 from St. Pius X High School, attended West Chester State College and is also employed by Maggio's Bakery as a baker.

Miss Ambruch is a former resident of Portland. No wedding date has been set.

Meeting set

STROUDSBURG — Senior Citizens will meet at 2 p.m. on April 20 in the C.I.U. social room. All senior citizens are invited.

2 ounces chocolate 429
vanilla, salt, baking soda 218

Total Calories 3356

One Piece (1-12th) 279

(**salt, leavening, extracts and flavorings add less than one calorie per slice, not worth counting.)

After figuring out the calories in a chocolate cake you probably won't want to add any frosting (but I'll save you the trouble of figuring it out: fudge frosting will probably add 1,800 to 2,000 calories to the count! In fact, you may even decide that chocolate cake is not for you, and opt for a less caloric concoction. Angel cake, for instance.

Calculating Cook

Being a calculating cook makes you very conscious of portion sizes. After all, if you cut your cake into eight slices instead of 12, the dessert calories will soar to 419 per portion.

This sort of "homework" inevitably starts you looking for ways of paring the total. In this recipe, for example, using skim milk instead of whole can save you 80 calories.

Replacing the chocolate with its equivalent in plain cocoa (about 1/2 cup) can save you a big 210 calories. Cutting back on the sugar slightly — only one cup instead of one and one-third — will cut out another 250 calories. These seemingly minor savings will deduct 45 calories per slice.

To calorie-count effectively you'll need a good calorie guide, perhaps more than one. If your fourth-grade recall of what-equals-what is a bit rusty, refer to the "Table of Equivalents" in any cookbook. It will tell you that 16 tablespoons equals one cup and other lost facts.

With more and more homemakers becoming calorie-wise cooks, perhaps the kitchen of the future will be equipped with a pretty porcelain-enameled adding machine, decorator-coordinated to match your appliances.

Couple honored for golden anniversary

BETHLEHEM — Mr. and Mrs. Harley Collins of Hanover Farms, Bethlehem, gave a recent dinner to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George Collins of Swiftwater.

Dr. and Mrs. Richard Collins, family members and approximately 25 guests were present.

Collins' hobby is bird banding and, in the last 10 years, he has banded over 18,000 birds in over 100 species. During this winter's invasion of evening grosbeaks, he banded over 2,000 of them.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Marlon Brando's 6 per cent of "The Godfather" already has earned him more than a million ... Charlie Chaplin lunched in "21" with several jet-fanners. Comics George Jessel and Jack Gilford invaded the big table to force chatter on the old gent, and he replied polit-

ly. When they left he turned and asked, "Who are they?" ... Brilliant hooper Bobby Van leaves "No, No, Nanette" after its first 15 months for higher fees elsewhere. Tony Teague is on tap ... Seldom-photographed Garbo inspired six pictures front-paged in Women's Wear Daily, in none of which her fabulous face could be seen — hiding behind her Kleenex.

Mayor Lindsay's charisma is at its wispest here: he even was booed loudly arriving at Gil Hodges' funeral ... Ringling Bros. Circus already owns the famed old 20th Century Limited (bought from the N.Y. Central few years back); the Big Top's building a whole new train itself at its Fla. training quarters for one of its two troupes.

Caterina Valente at the Americana's Royal Box has one wild "problem": she's too versatile ... Jazz clarinetist Sol Yaged is among the best piped pipers around, at Jimmy Weston's very-in spot ... Later nights when Sol repairs to P.J. Clarke's, he hauls it out again, dimes the jukebox for several jazzpieces he digs — and becomes an unpaid piper. The late-late set love it almost as much as Sol ... Another non-live music spot is Raffles, where a septet of nice-looking lads from London, "The Philanderers," couldn't stand the canned music, grabbed their instruments (guitars, bass, banjos, flute), donned their bowlers, and enchanted the staid rich crowd.

Nixon knocked Woody Allen off the Newsweek cover, but it's skedded again. Rodney Dangerfield's car stalled, and the man behind got out and wanted to fight. Rodney told him, "Don't hit me, hit the car."

New mag "Family Leisure" will come stapled into such other pubs as True, Newsweek, Sport and U.S. News ... Racetrack winners are hip to neutralizing their taxable profits by saving their losing mutual duets. Naturally they wouldn't just gather losers off the ground. Doubtless ... New York mag co-founder George Hirsch is doing a Norman Cousins. Launching his own, J. Breslin expects to be in the contributor list.

Pulitzer winner James Michener's China-sigh: "Saddest thing I have seen in Peking is the deterioration of Peking University. It is now a moderately good high school." ... When Nixon sight-saw the Ming tombs outside Peking, scores of seeming holiday strollers dawdled about, listening to transistor radios. Newshawks who dallied after Nixon left saw Chinese functionaries go round collecting the radios ...

Actress Lee Allen becomes that rare exhibitionistic breed, a girl CBS-TV sportscaster. She's been warming up the last 18 months as "Rivka" in "Fiddler on the Roof" ... Silent film actress Corinne Griffith loudly gave $10,000 to George Wallace's campaign ...

Warners is covering two minority bases with one film: "Cleopatra Jones" is about a black gal private eye.

Variety says Sinatra's comeback terms for Lerner &

Loewe's "The Little Prince" film musical will be $200,000 in front, 10 per cent of the gross ... First actor to rate 10 per cent of the gross was Cary Grant and he made $10 million from there to retirement ... "Oh! Calcutta!" producer Hil-ly Elkins is a Bdwy. starter: owes $762,897.

Some Manhattan newsstands are scalping $3 for Cosmo's nude of Burt Centerfold Reynolds ... No new scripts; MGM's redoing "The Postman Always Rings Twice" ... Anthony Quinn blithely lunched in the Essex House window on Central Park South while a crowd gawked every munch ... Jack La Rue's film comebacking. In "A Voice in the Night."

The Julie Harris-Richard Kiley tepid-chiller, "Voices," dropped almost $200,000 on its limp to Bdwy ... The old Madison Ave. martial set now gulp more Bloody Marys ... Hoot at the kid-culture freaks who tell you half the USA now is under 25 years of age. The median now is 29.

Ann Landers

Thanks for help

Dear Ann Landers: As a foreigner in your country I think maybe I should keep my mouth shut, but I would like to repay you for helping me to learn English. When I first came here I started to read your column in the newspaper because it was something I could understand from the very first day. It also helped me know the custom and the nature of Americans.

I want to comment on the letter from the lady who complained that one of her relatives had an annoying habit of licking the corners of her mouth when she talked. Her tongue was very long and unattractive. This habit annoyed many people but no one knew what to do about it.

Please let me tell you how I cured an uncle of mine of a habit which was driving a few people crazy. He used to be a great talker, this uncle, and because he was so rich, everyone listened to him as if he really had something to say. When he spoke, he would use his thumb to push his nose from left to right and from right to left, never stopping for a minute.

I decided to let him know he was bothering me, so I stretched my neck, got very close to him and my eyes followed his nose, from left to right, from right to left. I just kept staring at him until it made him so nervous he stopped. The whole family thought this was quite remarkable but to me it was only common sense.

Virginia Admirer

Dear Virginia: Common sense is not so common. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: You gave good advice to the girl whose fiance kept stalling about marriage. I hope she listens. When I was in my late 20s I went with a man who was three years my senior. Every time I broached the subject of a wedding date Alvin disappeared. My friends kept telling me that all men hate to be pinned down, and Alvin's behavior was "normal." (I noticed the friends who were telling me this were all married!)

After three postponements I told Alvin to leave me alone because I wasn't going to waste any more time on him. I moved 2,000 miles away and asked him not to call or write. Two years later, guess who appeared at my doorstep? Himself in person. I was sure he was ready to marry me, but the clod stayed in town for a week and never got up the nerve to pop the question.

It's six years later. Alvin still writes love letters and sends gifts. He tells me he has "come close" to marriage a few times but he just can't bring himself to make that final step because I'm the one he really wants. You told the gal with the same problem that the guy was bonkers and to tell him to get lost. I hope she takes your advice.

Single's Not All Bad

Dear Single: So do I. Women who are content to go with guys for umpteen years don't really want to get married either — which is perfectly all right, so long as nobody is kidding anybody.

Dear Ann Landers: I am married to a man who claims he is just full of love and good will but I'm beginning to think he's got a screw loose. He kisses waitresses, sales people, musicians, entertainers, barbers, athletes, any one who performs a service which pleases him. This goes for men as well as women. No one seems offended by his outgoing personality but I think it looks odd for a man to be kissing strangers. He was born in Europe and claims this is a warm, harmless custom. What do you think about it?

Kisser's Wife

Dear Wife: Never mind what I think. One of these days your friendly husband is going to kiss the wrong guy and find himself straightened around but good. Be patient. Time is on your side.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex — Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed envelope to this newspaper.

Erma Bombeck

Sewing injurious?

"They ought to put a sign on sewing machines that reads, 'Sewing may be injurious to your health.'"

I have had it with that machine ... the headaches, the tension, the way it has alienated me from my family.

As I told my doctor the other day, "You have to give me something for my sewing habit. I can't kick it alone."

"Sit down," he said, "and tell me about the headaches. When do you notice them?"

"Well, usually after I have sewn a crotch to the outer seam."

"I see. And what about the tension?"

"I feel tense when I wear something I have made. Take the one-piece jump suit I made for a party (I wish you would). I felt elegant in that outfit until I noticed one of my friends staring at me. Right away I began to wonder if my tailor tack was hanging out or a bare seam exposed."

"Finally, my best friend came over and said, 'I can't figure out if you're backing into a room or if your head is on wrong."

"What are you talking about?" I asked.

"Your darts are over your shoulder blades."

"I started to perspire."

"Don't worry," she said, "Luckily your shoulder blades are endowed. Just look over your shoulder all night and act natural."

The doctor paused from taking notes and said softly, "You say your sewing machine has alienated you from your children?"

"Definitely," I said. "At first they liked the little blouses and shirts I made for them. Then sewing became an obsession. I began to buy fabric by the bolt. The kids began to complain. Not only did they look like a singing group in their look-alike outfits, they matched the bathroom curtains, the shower curtain, the sofa in the den and the pillows on the porch swing. Once when I got a bargain on a bolt of wide-wale corduroy, I had to shout to my son, 'SMILE! I know you're in this room somewhere!'"

"There now," said the doctor, patting my hand.

"Face it, I'm a sewing junkie," I said hysterically. "I am pale, irritable, my hands shake and I am addicted to fabric sales."

"I can't help you if you don't turn around and look at me," said the doctor, putting his hands on my shoulders.

"I am looking at you," I said miserably. "I rushed to finish this dress this morning before I came in and the darts are facing the back again."

ARTIST? (Q). My father is president of a company and wants me to be a secretary. I want to be an artist. He doesn't want me to be an artist.

My mother and he are separated. He says she is a drunk and that if I am an artist I will probably be a drunk too. She is not a drunk. I know. She thinks it would be great for me to be an artist. But I live with him. Can you give me any advice?

16½ in California

(A). Yes, be what you want to be and are suited to be. You — not your father or mother — are going to live your adult life. If you are a secretary and do not want to be one or like to be one and are not a good one, you are more liable to end up an alcoholic than if you are an artist and like it and do well at it.

But do not think you can be a good artist just because you want to be one. You have to have a talent for it, and you have to work at it just as you do to be a secretary.

Your best course would be to go to a good college or university and take art courses under artist-teachers. Your father would probably be able to send you. In so doing you could see if you have talents and skills that might permit you to be a good artist.

It is pleasant to think of starting out on your own and becoming a great painter or sculptor. But without a good educational background, the chances are against it.

RUNAWAY: (Q.) When I was 15 I ran away. I found a friend. His name is Eric. He lived in a commune then. Since then he has taken me with him around the country. We loved each other and still do, and we have a baby.

Eric is great to me but he wants me to go back home so the baby and I can be taken care of and I can go to school and we can be married later.

I don't want to go back to my parents. They nagged me.

I know I hurt them but they hurt me too. What should I do?

17 in Oregon

(A.) Do as Eric says. Go home and go back to school. Ask your parents to help you take care of the baby, or find a home for it until you have finished school. It won't be easy, but you can do it.

No parents are perfect and no daughters are perfect. They often irritate each other, but they find ways to get along.

All girls thinking about running away should cut out your letter, paste it up, and read it every morning for a week.

65-year church attendance vow to grandad's memory

"I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that you present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service . . ."
— Romans 12:1.

STROUDSBURG — Levi Marsh was honored in a special service at Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg, Sunday for his faithful service to the church and the Sunday School for 68 years.

Marsh served as assistant secretary, then as secretary of the Sunday School, a position which he was given while in his early 20's and still holds today.

Any Sunday morning he may be found in the Sunday School office tabulating the day's attendance and offering figures after having personally visited each class to collect this information.

He has probably the most faithful record of Sunday School attendance known: for 65 years he has had an every Sunday perfect attendance record. He would have had a 68-year attendance but for having had to be hospitalized over a number of Sundays during that three-year period.

Marsh was not always so regular in attendance; as a young lad, he admits to having excused himself from Sunday School whenever possible. But following the death of his grandfather West, he vowed to change his ways in this respect.

His grandfather had always encouraged young Levi's Sunday School attendance, and to honor his memory, he vowed to do what would please this grand old man most of all.

Marsh has also served a record 50 years on consistory. The board of laymen who carry out the business end of church work, as both Deacon and Elder. He is no longer active in consistory, but faithfully every Sunday continues a duty he was given some years ago to keep an attendance record of the number of persons worshipping in each service at Zion Church.

At the service given in his honor Sunday, Pastor Marshall J. Riu presented the sermon "Your Reasonable Service", which centered upon the achievements of Levi Marsh and compared them with the priestly tribe of Levi in the Bible; that when they made a vow before the Lord it was meant to be kept always as a reasonable service to Him.

Daniel Warner introduced Levi and gave some introductory remarks concerning his faithful service to the church. Toward the end of the service, Pastor Riu conferred upon Levi the honorary office of Elder Emeritus, following which Calvin Schoch, President of Consistory, presented him with an engraved plaque marking the occasion.

Illustrated BIBLE LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

AS THE CHURCH grew, the apostles' time was more and more taken up with administration, leaving little time for preaching the gospel. — Acts 6:1-4.

WITH SEVEN dedicated men handling all the administrative details, the disciples were freed for preaching and winning converts. — Acts 6:5-7.

ALL THE FAITHFUL are to serve or minister, according to their particular talents, to strengthen and enlarge the church. — Ephesians 4:11-13.

THE CHURCH is one body, with Christ as its head, and all must work together. — Ephesians 4:14-16.

GOLDEN TEXT: Ephesians 4:11-12.

Church sounds merger death knell

Ten years ago, in April, 1962, leaders of six major Protestant denominations met in Washington, D.C., full of hope and expectation, to launch a series of merger talks which they christened "The Consultation on Church Union."

COCU, as it came to be called, has expanded over the past decade into forum embracing nine denominations with 25 million members.

In its early years, its meetings were exciting experiences both for the theologians who participated in them, and the reporters who covered them. In remarkably short time, in an atmosphere of contagious good will, representatives of churches long divided found themselves in far-reaching agreement on such matters as the authority of Scripture, the role of the ministry, and the nature of the sacraments. It was a heady thing to hear Christians of diverse traditions discovering they really believed pretty much the same about things which one had caused schisms.

As one of the newsmen who vividly recalls this early, creative phase of COCU, I find it very saddening to have to report that the great United Church envisioned by the Consultation for the past 10 years now seems to be a lost cause.

Its death knell was sounded quite clearly in a recent, underpublicized statement from the Executive Council of the United Church of Christ.

The United Church of Christ is one of the most ecumenically minded denominations in America, and one of the original founding members of COCU. Reporters speculating on which denominations would go all the way to final merger, used to have grave doubts about the Methodists and the Episcopalians. But they thought the United Church of Christ was irrevocably committed to the venture.

That's why it was so significant when that denomination's governing body said the COCU process of merging several denominations into one church may be a dream that "belongs to another day."

The United Church is itself the product of a two-denomination merger of Congregationalist and Reformed churches. Recalling the long years of bitter court litigation and the defection of many local congregations that resulted from that merger, its Executive Council questioned whether it is "possible in these times for an entire denomination, regardless of its polity, to move together into a new structure."

The key word is "together." What the United Church leaders are saying is that any attempt at a nine-way merger may result only in tearing apart many if not all of the denominations entering the new structure.

But the most damning thing the Executive Council had to say about COCU is that there is no enthusiasm for the merger idea among rank and file members of local churches anywhere in the country. The Council said it had discovered a "strong feeling" among churchmen and churchwomen that "the one remaining institution" in which their voices are heard is the local church.

Reeders church sets service

REEDERS — A special musical service will be held at the Reeders United Methodist Church Sunday at 9 and 10:15 a.m. The service will feature the Rev. Lee Robbins, evangelist, tenor soloist and recording artist presently working with the Billy Graham organization and the Bill Glass Crusades.

Robbins will sing some of today's favorite gospel songs along with his own recorded hits across the country. Interspersed with his singing will be stories from his personal experiences as a gospel singer in various countries of the world. He will have a message especially for the high school and college students and the young adults.

Robbins's most recent recorded albums are "Sincerely" and "God of Miracles" which were released by Supreme Records.

The church will present at 7:30 p.m. a new dramatic film, "Like A Mighty Army," a down-to-earth story of a man in tune with his own times. It is the story of a handful of people who with the leadership of a young minister, Rev. James Kennedy, committed themselves to the principle of providing life-changing answers for the people of their community to the frightening problems surrounding them.

In nine short years the church they started, the Coral Ridge Church, has become one of the fastest growing congregations in the world, growing from 17 to more than 2,000 members needing three Sunday morning services to handle the crowd.

A church of this magnitude must have a dynamic message to relate. The story of this Church has now been made into a film, "Like A Mighty Army," released by Gospel Films, Inc., of Muskegon, Michigan.

Starring in the role of Dr. Kennedy is Chris Robinson, best known for his role in the Television series, "Twelve O'Clock High."

Berean conference scheduled

He speaks Russian fluently and has personal knowledge of the state of the Christian Church in Russia. He has dedicated himself totally to the broadcasting of the Gospel behind the Iron Curtain.

A covered dish supper will be held at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Pinebrook Conference Dining Room. There will be an informal time of fellowship and opportunity to ask questions concerning missionary work in the Communist countries. Rev. Poysti will also speak. ## Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North East South West
 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
 2 NT Pass

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠KJ ♥Q85 ♦AQ762 ♣KJ6
 2. ♠A7 ♥J63 ♦AK8754 ♣Q92
 3. ♠A4 ♥Q2 ♦Q98743 ♣AJ95
 4. ♠AQ83 ♥8 ♦K3942 ♣AQ83

1. Four notrump. This is simply a raise in notrump and has nothing to do with Blackwood, no suit having been agreed upon as trump. Obviously, four notrump is a slam try, but North is expected to pass with minimum values for his bids to date.

Two notrump in this sequence is generally treated as indicating 15 or 16 points. If North has maximum values for his rebid, he should accept the invitation to bid a slam. With minimum values he passes, but, in either case, he must be the one to make the decision.

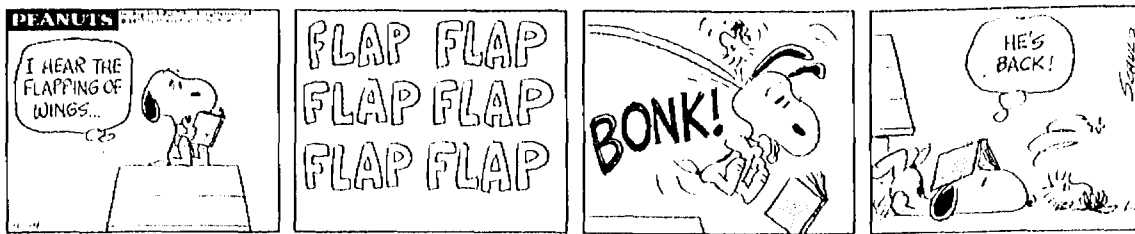

2. Three notrump. The 6-3-3-1 distribution is not particularly ideal for notrump, but that alone should not dissuade you from raising partner to game. Your hand is highly likely to provide six playing tricks in support of an opening bid that North has indicated is not a minimum. It would be right to bid either three diamonds, denying interest in game, or four diamonds, which would be reaching for an eleven-trick game.

3. Three diamonds. Here you must warn partner that the two diamond response was not entirely kosher. Three diamonds tells partner that your two diamond bid, which would ordinarily designate 10 or more points, was an exaggeration of your values. In effect, it says that your previous response was based more on distribution than high cards and that, if partner continues, it is at his own peril.

4. Three clubs. Game is certain and slam is decidedly possible on the bidding thus far, but how many tricks can actually be made—and in what denomination—is still unknown. The best you can do is try to describe your distribution and high-card values, at the same time hoping that North has the right values in the right places for a slam.

The intention is to show spade support at the next opportunity and in this way suggest the singleton heart. The full nature of the hand is thus presented in three installments. What happens then is up to partner.

These three youngsters appear to have reversed the roles with the Monroe County Commissioners Thursday during the session of the meeting devoted to the Day Care Program proposal which was again tabled by the county officials.

In spite of all the furor created by parents and county officials over the program proposal, this youngster seems bored with it all, as she stares at the county solicitor's books.

And boys will be boys. No matter what goes on around them, these two youngsters don't seem to care about all the hoop-la. They would much rather be climbing around under the commissioners' table. (George Arnold Photos)

Commissioners set meeting today

Day Care vote tabled again

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — In the face of 50 Day Care supporters — including 16 pre-school day care clients — the Monroe County Commissioners Thursday stalled a decision on day care funding 24 hours.

Supported by the Children's Bureau, the League of Women Voters and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a new program would shift day care to low income families if the county will put up $10,000.

Deadline for the application opening federal aid on a 75 per cent basis was set for today. In asking the day care supporters for 24 hours, Commissioner Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said an extension on the application was being sought.

That extension was granted by the regional office of the Department of Public Welfare shortly after the commissioners adjourned. Application deadline is now April 19. The commissioners may not vote until Monday.

Mrs. Shukaitis said more research was needed before the county committed its funds to day care. "There is no question of the value of a day care center, but who should sponsor it?"

Mrs. Shukaitis said she had just been provided a copy of the program description. She noted the sponsorship of the program could be authorities other than local government.

Opposition heavy

Mrs. Shukaitis noted public response to the day care issue. She read six letters favoring the program and followed it with a statement saying she had received 15 to 20 calls in opposition to the day care program.

Mrs. Shukaitis said the eligibility of day care recipients had to be established before the county could sponsor the program.

She said programs in operation cost as much as $80 per week for the persons using the service in other areas.

"Throughout the meeting, two to four-year-old children now involved in the pilot day care program at East Stroudsburg State College crawled around the commissioners office, under the commissioners table and made periodic journeys in and out of the office to the bathroom.

Mrs. Shukaitis noted the absence of Commissioner Arlington Martin, saying he had a previous engagement and no vote could be taken without his presence. Martin's chair was occupied by one of the day care toddlers.

Mrs. Shukaitis said day care-type programs could be handled through private enterprise. "Government originally was supposed to do for people what they couldn't do for themselves," Mrs. Shukaitis said.

"The more government we have, the more taxes are needed and the more people have to work," the Commission Chairman said, pointing out the cyclical effect of government programs.

Miss Phyllis Kunda, director of the Monroe County Children's Bureau, answered Mrs. Shukaitis' remarks.

"People have been meeting and discussing" day care since 1965. It is now 1972 and we have an opportunity to use federal funds," Miss Kunda said. "Rather than investing $10,000, you are going to end up investing 10 times $10,000. Let's practice true economy."

To Mrs. Shukaitis' statement about sponsorship by a school district, Dr. Florence McConick, director of day care, said school districts do not have the money needed.

She added the state lost $1 million in private enterprise programs.

Mrs. Doris Hilton, president of the Monroe Chapter of NAACP made a statement in support of day care. Mrs. Hilton said federally funded programs offer equal levels of training for all pre-school children.

She said the advantage of a governmentally sponsored program would be the equality of opportunity provided all clients under governmental standards.

When it was agreed a postponement of 24 hours would allow the commissioners to better research the twice tabled proposal, the day care supporters left the commissioners.

The last one out was a day care student about four years old. Dressed in a yellow jacket and a stocking cap, he tried to cartwheel toward the door. He didn't quite make it, but he kept his hat on.

Retarded a chief concern

Mrs. Humphrey visits area

By ANDREA B. STERN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Stroudsburg area got its first look at Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey Wednesday evening and Thursday morning. And Mrs. Humphrey, guest of honor at Wednesday's April Showers Ball, got her first look at the Poconos.

"It's such a delight to be here in this area," she softly exclaims Thursday morning over coffee. "It's kind of like Minnesota at this time of year."

And, casting a wary eye at the pouring rain billowing her hotel room window, she adds,

"But, like Minnesota, it needs a little more spring."

Mrs. Humphrey mused back a moment to the ball the evening before, donated entirely by Mrs. Suzanne Martens, owner of the Mount Airy Lodge. It netted over $12,000 for the Burnley Workshop and she appears noticeably pleased.

The needs of the handicapped, particularly the mentally retarded, have long been one of her major concerns. On election night, 1960, her first grandchild was born with Down's Syndrome, a condition commonly referred to as mongolism.

"I hope that by talking about Vicky I can help other families with retarded children who might feel embarrassed or ashamed," Mrs. Humphrey explains. "The more openly and honestly we discuss these children, the more we can do for them."

Relating a recent visit to a halfway house for teenage boys, she notes, "They were so busy and so proud of themselves. When I told them how lucky they were, they said, 'Yes, we know.' I think if I had spent five more minutes with them we all would have been in tears."

With a gentle nudge from her personal secretary, she moves on to a breakfast for Sen. Humphrey's campaign workers.

"I must say how important I feel it is that we are working for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey," she tells them. "And I say it that way because I'm tempted to think of him as my husband. And he is. But, in campaigning, I think of him as my candidate."

"Hubert could be a president like we've never had before. He could reach out to the people."

With breakfast barely finished, the party is off to the Pocono Mountain Joint High School, the campaign car cluttered with stickers reading "Hubert H. Humphrey, The People's Democrat."

She speaks to the packed auditorium on a one-to-one basis, calling for a "rebirth of reason," expressing "concern about all those who would divide us and pit race against race and generation against generation."

Students and teachers throng her but she's ushered off, on schedule, to the Burnley Workshop where Salvatore Palazzo, executive director, takes her on a tour of an educational institution that's close to her heart.

And then it's off to Allen town and another swing of campaigning. Several days have elapsed since she last saw her husband and several more will pass until they are reunited.

But the situation is not untypical for a woman who in 1960 made political history when she became the first wife of a politician to campaign independently for him outside his home state.

Police locate missing girl

STROUDSBURG — A 16-year-old girl, missing since April 10, was located by Stroudsburg Borough police and returned to her home at 328 Main Street in Stroudsburg.

According to borough police, the girl was recognized at Stroudsburg High School on Thursday and was returned to her parents.

Shooting ruled suicide

DELAWARE WATER GAP — A 24-year-old Delaware Water Gap man shot and killed himself at his Main Street home here just moments after he shot at and injured his wife Thursday afternoon in a domestic quarrel.

William F. Dalzell was pronounced dead at his home from what was ruled as a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. The ruling was made by Monroe County Coroner Daniel G. Warner.

Dalzell's wife, Janice, was treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County for a superficial gunshot wound.

State police investigators from the Stroudsburg barracks said Dalzell shot his wife during an argument. They reported she fled from the home and was taken to the hospital by an unidentified neighbor.

Delaware Water Gap Police Chief John Uporski said he went into the house to investigate the shooting and found Dalzell lying on the bedroom floor with a rifle nearby. He said he then notified the coroner and state police.

Trooper Alfred Drozdowski of the Stroudsburg barracks is in charge of the investigation.

Dalzell was born in Hartford, Conn., a son of William and Lois (Schwartz) Dalzell.

He had been a resident of Delaware Water Gap for the past seven years and prior to that he had lived in Hazleton.

He was employed by Ramon Metals Inc., of Stroudsburg for the past six years, and he was a member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. He was a 1965 graduate of Hazleton High School.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by his father, William Dalzell, of Miami, Fla.; his mother, Mrs. Lois McBride, of Hazleton, and a daughter, Brenda, at home.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Saturday from the Lanfman Funeral Home, 27 Washington St., East Stroudsburg.

Cremation will follow the service at Maple Hill Crematory, Wilkes-Barre. There will be no visitation.

ESSC's Wildrick defends college's building program

EAST STROUDSBURG — A charge by one state official that state colleges are erecting too many buildings "just doesn't apply" to East Stroudsburg State College, according to administration dean John Wildrick.

Arthur Sinkler, chairman of the Board of State Colleges and University Directors, contends the building trend is "like trying to stop an ocean liner and turn it around. We have to use our wits to make these buildings useful."

"That certainly isn't so here," retorts Wildrick. "We put a late start in building in comparison with the other state colleges. At no time did we ask for a building we didn't have full justification for."

Sinkler said before a House Appropriations Committee about a half-dozen unnecessary buildings state-wide are under construction. Education Secretary John Pittenger figures that number is much higher than that.

"We're at the point now," said Wildrick, "where we're just trying to replace inadequate facilities. One needs only to visit our classrooms to see this is true."

ESSC was just given $18 million for construction of a new science building. Funds for a new fine arts building and library have been approved, but Pittenger slapped on a building moratorium in January.

"Ten years ago," said Sinkler, "it looked like we'd need more and more teachers, so we made plans and began building bigger dormitories and more classrooms."

"Now we see we don't need so many teachers. But we do need the facilities to provide other types of education — more laboratory facilities, for one thing, to take care of the increased numbers studying the physical sciences."

Pittenger said he wished he "could go back five years" to eliminate some of the ongoing construction.

Jackson Twp. supervisors to establish planning unit

READERS — With more than 25 residents looking on in approval, Jackson Township Supervisors decided during their April board meeting to set up their own planning commission.

The five-member board, to serve without pay, will be responsible for drawing up a local subdivision ordinance.

Each supervisor will be responsible for soliciting the names of five residents willing to serve on the commission. Five of the 15 candidates will be appointed to the new body in the supervisors' May meeting.

The move to appoint a local planning commission came immediately after Douglas Williams, chairman of the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission, explained the operation and procedures of establishing local planning controls.

Williams was invited to speak at the April meeting and was told the township would need help to go ahead with the project.

The main question on the proposal, according to Chairman Larry Butz, was how much the move would cost.

"Some townships have spent $2,000 to have expensive, outside consulting firms come in and do the work," said Butz. "We hope to avoid this. Local people have a better idea of layout and how to plan the township."

Residents interested in serving on the commission should contact any of the supervisors before May 10.

County moth spray share totals $9,320

STROUDSBURG — Copies of an agreement relating to the proposed gypsy moth spray program have been sent to the Monroe County Commissioners for signatures before May 1.

The Department of Environmental Resources informed the commissioners the bid on the chemical spray project was $3.48 per acre. The amount is less than the $5 per acre figure quoted earlier.

With 4,035 acres scheduled for spraying, Monroe County's one-third share of the cost comes to approximately $9,320.60. Contractor for the project is AgTofors, Inc., Gettysburg.

It is stated in the agreement sevin and dylox will be the chemicals used to suppress the forest pest. The chemicals will not eradicate the gypsy moth entirely, but will control its spread.

All of the acres to be sprayed are privately owned. The county will be responsible for the promotion of the program and is bound under the agreement to give 20 days notice of the treatment to residents in and bordering treatment areas.

Must give date

The notice must give the expected date of spraying, the method of treatment and instructions as to how the resident's property may be omitted from the program.

All objections to the program should be forwarded to the Department of Environmental Resources within 21 hours of receipt. Anyone wishing to be deleted from the program should make written notice of that wish within 10 days of the announced treatment date.

The commissioners gave the agreement to County Solicitor Elmer Christine to review before signing. They are expected to sign Monday if the agreement is in order.

On the heels of the agreement from the Department of Environmental Resources, Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis introduced a letter from the Ecological Protection Society of Bethlehem, opposing chemical spray.

"The Ecological Protection Society feels that the proposed aerial spraying program should be abolished," the letter read. Specifically citing sevin and dylox, the letter said aerial spraying is expensive, inefficient and uncontrollable.

The ecology group further claimed sevin is toxic to bees, wasps, aquatic insects and lingering trout.

Dylox is termed new and little is known about it according to the letter which claims the chemical is toxic to water insects and birds. Not surprisingly, the ecology group supports biological control through the use of bacteriological agents. Biological controls are the ultimate answer according to the Ecological Protection Society.

Manor granted extension for correction of violations

STROUDSBURG — Thirteen violations of the state Fire and Public Act found at Pleasant Valley Manor and deadlined for correction next month have been given an extended deadline.

According to communications in the Monroe County Commissioners Office, the previous May deadline for the corrections was an error. Counties are given six months from the date an order of compliance is issued.

Monroe County received its orders in late March and early April.

The initial communication from the Department of Labor and Industry triggered immediate action on the part of county officials.

The commissioners ordered a cost estimate from the architects of the county home, requesting an expense schedule on the proposed improvements needed to meet Labor and Industry standards.

The latest communication from the department indicates the county won't have to take emergency action to remove guests from the Manor, as was previously indicated.

Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said Thursday the commissioners will still investigate possible facilities for the aged in Monroe County even though the deadline date has been moved back.

Research into the matter of improvement costs will be continued and the commissioners expect to have information on what has to be done and what it will cost within a week.

In other business at their Thursday business meeting, the commissioners endorsed a Planning and Zoning Commission resolution to request work on Route 209 from the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

The commissioners proclaimed April 17-22 Environmental Awareness Week and approved an allocation of $1,250 for the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council.

The commissioners also moved to send a letter of appreciation to Mrs. Joan Groff, an East Stroudsburg artist who loaned three paintings for their newly painted offices.

Four killed last Oct. 24

Pilot blamed for crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Safety investigators Thursday blamed the crash of an air taxi on Blue Ridge Mountain, which claimed four lives, on the pilot's failure to follow the approved landing approach to the airport.

The plane, a Monmouth Airlines air taxi flight, crashed last Oct. 24 while attempting a landing at the Allentown Bethlehem Eastern Airport.

The plane's two pilots and two of the six passengers died when the plane slammed into Blue Mountain.

Langelle said his organization was a nonprofit force operating on a $350 fee per man hour to cover expenses plus a mileage allowance.

He said the police in the reserve unit have the same training as local borough policemen. Primarily established to supplement local law enforcement in emergency situations, the police reserve requested the commissioners' consideration in plans leading to a county force.

According to the National Transportation Safety Board investigators the probable cause of the accident was:

The pilot's non-adherence to approved approach procedures for executing a non-precision instrument approach in instrument flight conditions.

The board also said the pilots were on duty 14 hours before the crash and fatigue may have affected their judgment.

It also suggested it was possible the pilots could have used the wrong "approach plate" to guide their landing.

The "approach plate" is a small aeronautical chart which shows the pilot the proper approach procedure for a landing at an airport.

The investigators said "it was possible" the pilot may have selected the wrong approach plate for the Allentown Bethlehem Eastern Airport.

Police Reserve credentials outlined to county board

STROUDSBURG — A representative of the Police Reserve of Monroe County presented the organization's credentials to the Monroe County Commissioners Thursday.

Sam Langelle told the police reserve was authorized in 1955 after the flood, and has since acquired police vehicles. The organization now has 15 trained officers which can serve as an auxiliary unit for any police departments in the county.

Miller throws delay responsibility on owners

NEW YORK (UPI)—Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, insisted that the owners should "take full responsibility for the delay of the season on an issue they invented and then dropped."

Miller was referring to the problem of whether the players would be paid for games missed during the strike if they were made up. "The players never asked for pay of lost games," Miller said, and the players will not be paid for the days of the strike.

Under the settlement, the players will not be paid for the days of the strike and the 85 games which were lost will not be played, resulting in an imbalance of schedules for some teams.

According to Dick Moss, Miller's associate counsel, a compromise had been worked out on the play for pay issue to make up games raised by the owners, but when the compromise was presented to the owners Wednesday, the owners decided to drop the issue. The players and owners then agreed no games would be rescheduled.

Originally, the owners said they wanted to make up the games and play a full 162-game schedule.

The American League owners, who long have been in favor of a 154-game schedule, appeared to win the debate among the owners over the question of whether or not to play the full, 162-game schedule.

But Miller deliberately avoided any mention of "victory."

"I think it's fair to say no one ever wins in a strike situation. I'm just happy to announce that settlement finally has been reached so that the baseball season can start this Saturday," Miller said.

"My only regret is that none of the fans were ever informed

Baseball strike settled; cry of 'play ball' ready

By United Press International

Mickey Stanley said players would "be a little reluctant" to do it again, Bill Virdon "felt good." Wes Parker thinks the "fans will be happy."

Fifteen days after the 1972 major league baseball season was to begin, John Q. Public will get a chance to see his first game Saturday. Owners and players settled their differences Thursday and the game's first strike was over.

Stanley, an outfielder for the Detroit Tigers, blamed the owners for prolonging the dispute.

"I know, speaking for myself and I think several others, if something like this came up again, we'd be a little reluctant to call a strike."

Stanley said Marvin Miller, head of the Player's Assn., has "done a great job for us. I know the owners dislike him and this is the biggest reason the strike has lasted this long."

"They want to get him out of being our player association leader, but there's no way we're going to oust

"They were more in question of human dignity. The central issue had to do with the importance and necessity of players being treated as adult human beings. We are not about to claim victory even though our objectives were achieved."

"I think the fans ought to be extremely proud of the players they follow on the field. The players demonstrated great courage against tremendous odds."

Asked what would happen when the total contract is up next year, Miller said: "Collective bargaining is never easy. This experience should be a dividend. There should be greater understanding by the owners of collective bargaining and the need to treat players as equals."

Miller also said he owed a vote of thanks to the National Football League Players Association, "which offered us financial assistance and encouragement."

When Miller was asked if there might be any lingering bitterness between the players and owners, Miller said: "I hope there is enough maturity among the owners to prevent that. Over a long period of time I think the relationship between the two parties should be better. A relationship between a superior and an inferior is not a good one if the relationship is peaceful. A relationship between equals is a far better him because he's done a fantastic job for the ball players," Stanley said.

"He's upgraded our pension a couple of hundred percent. He's done a good job for us, so we're on his side."

Virdon, manager of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, said "I feel good" when learning the strike was over.

"I think I feel happy more for the game itself than for my own personal desire," Virdon said. "A strike is bad for the game. And now that it's over, everyone is better off."

Parker, player representative of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said he "did not anticipate any animosity from the fans when the season opens Saturday. I think they'll be happy to see the players back."

Joe Torre, alternate player representative of the St. Louis Cardinals, said "no player had any real physical advantage over any other prior to the start of the season. People were unable to work out properly without the usual facilities. But everyone is in the same boat. You'll see a big league game Saturday."

Players scramble to open season

NEW YORK (UPI)—The nation's transportation systems began getting heavy play Thursday as baseball players made frantic plans to start the 1972 baseball season Saturday, 10 days after the scheduled traditional opener in Cincinnati.

Settlement of the prolonged owner-player strike set into motion plans previously prepared for this eventuality. Many clubs used the telephone chain setup where one player called another to sound the alert.

At least 11 player representatives were in New York when the dispute was settled and people like the Reds' Jim Merritt had to fly to Cincinnati for the nationally televised game against Los Angeles. Merritt, however, will not start against the Dodgers. Manager Sparky Anderson indicated he would pitch Jack Billingham.

Manager Phil Virdon of the Baltimore Orioles said Jim Palmer will start against the visiting New York Yankees Saturday "because the pitchers have been working out on a four day rotation and it's Palmer's turn."

Palmer said he "felt readier before the strike." The 20-game winner refused to predict a nine-inning stint, but he didn't think he would hurt his arm because of the layoff, either. In Kansas City, manager Bob Lemon immediately called for two practice sessions today. Twelve players were at Rotary Club luncheon prior to the settlement announcement. About 400 boosters attended the function.

The Chicago Cubs said their players were "pretty well scattered," but were sure the full complement would be on hand for Saturday's game with the Philadelphia Phillies. The neighboring White Sox said they began immediately to charter transportation for their players.

Joe Torre, the St. Louis Cardinals alternate player representative, was caught in New York and was a spokesman with Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, when the settlement was announced.

Torre, shuddering when one uninformed newsman asked him how he spelled his name and if he had played last year, said he expected some fan reaction when the season finally opened.

"But it's no worse than the catcalls you get when you strike out with the bases loaded," Torre said.

defending champion Montreal from the National Hockey League Stanley Cup quarter-final playoffs four games to two Fairbairn, the leader in the series with eight points, set up what proved to be the winner at 29 seconds of the final period when he passed to puck to Walt Tkaczuk. The slim New York center drilled a 50-footer from just inside the blue line past Montreal goalie Ken Dryden and broke a 2-2 deadlock.

The victory advanced the Rangers into the Stanley Cup semi-finals against Chicago. Fairbairn's two goals were his fourth and fifth of the series.

BOSTON (UPI)—Walt Frazier poured in 36 points Thursday night and the New York Knicks coasted to a 116-94 win over the Boston Celtics and a 1-0 lead in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship playoffs.

Frazier packed nine of his points into a one minute and three second span in the second quarter to break the game wide open.

The Celtics, trailing by 13 points early in the quarter, cut the New York lead to 31-25 with 6:58 left before Jerry Lucas sank a 12-foot hook shot and Frazier put on his one-man show to give the Knicks a 45-25 lead.

Frazier hit on a layup with 5:42 left, stole the ball and scored an easy basket 20 seconds later, then sank a

Teeners league head fears end imminent

STROUDSBURG — Unless it gets some help quickly, the Monroe County Teeners League will fold, league president Doug Schoonover said Thursday night.

The baseball league for boys ages 13 to 16 years old has been in operation since 1947.

"We are definitely on shaky ground," Schoonover said. "Unless something happens fast, it'll be all over."

Schoonover, who has served as president since the league first formed and who is a former manager in the league, cited the need for sponsors and managers in the league.

Right now, he said, the eight-league teams needs two sponsors and four managers. He also said there is some question whether the two West End teams — Saylorsburg and Pleasant Valley — will return or join the newly-formed Senior Little League.

Players in the Senior Little League are in the same age group.

Schoonover added tryouts for the Teeners League, scheduled for 1 p.m. Saturday, have been shifted from Stroudsburg to East Stroudsburg High School field.

Squires batter New York behind effort by Erving

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Rookie Julius Erving poured in 26 points and was credited with 15 assists Thursday as the Virginia Squires battered New York 138-91 to win the first game of the Eastern Division finals of the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Erving led four Squires into the 20-plus point column; George Irvine scored 25, Adrian Smith 23 and Bernie Williams 20.

Rookie John Roche led the Nets with 26 points. Rick Barry, who averaged 31 points per game against the Squires in the regular season, managed only a dozen.

The Squires shot 56 per cent from the floor in the game, while the cold Nets could do no better than 34 per cent.

The Squires, winners of four straight against the Floridians in the quarter finals, wrapped up the game in the first half. The Nets were held to only 35 points, breaking a record set by the Denver Rockets last week. The Nets also scored only 13 in the second period.

The series shifts to Norfolk for a game Saturday night. The third and fourth games will be played in New York next week.

Hill grabs Monsanto lead; 'exhausted' Trevino leaves

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI)—Why Dave Hill, who sometimes gets into trouble with the PGA for saying what he thinks, let his putter do his talking Thursday when he shot a 7-under-par 61 to take the first round lead in the Monsanto Open but equally outspoken Lee Trevino threw in the towel.

Hill played wildly from tee to green but needed only 21 putts in his eight birdie, one bogey round and finished the day one stroke ahead of unheralded Bob E. Smith who capitalized on a 30-foot eagle putt to forge his 65.

Trevino, reigning U. S. and British Open champion but playing poorly of late, unexpectedly withdrew Thursday after shooting a 74-10 strokes off Hill's pace—but insisted his score had nothing to do with his decision.

"This has nothing to do with the golf course and nothing to do with the way I played," Trevino said quietly. "It's something that's been building up now for some time. I'm absolutely exhausted. I'm not thinking at all. I'm not thinking at all. I'm not acting myself."

Trevino said part of his problem was the "extreme pressure" he was under at last week's Masters and added he does not feel he can play winning golf until he gets some rest. He said he will take off until next Wednesday when he goes to the Tournament of Champions.

"I simply was not mentally ready to play in this tournament," he said. "I came in here drained. I hope the gallery will understand."

The good Lord didn't have anything else to do today but look after me," the 34-year-old Hill quipped after his sensational round. He had five birdies over his first nine, two on 35-foot putts.

Hill, one of the top money winners on the tour during 1969 and 1970, continued his hot putting on his second nine as he birdied three of his next six holes to go 8-under with three to play. Up to that point, Hill had had only 17 putts in 15 holes but he then three-putted the next and needed good putts to save par on the final two.

"Those greens looked like a pool table to me," said Hill. "The more I play the more I'm convinced no one knows anything about this game. I figured I'd shoot a 76. That's what I've been shooting. All I've been trying to do is keep from whipping the ball. It's been that bad the past eight months."

Jim Colbert, the 1969 champion here, was at 6-under until he suffered a double bogey two holes from the end of his round and wound up tied with big Chris Blocker at 4-under-par 67.

The Pensacola Country Club course, hard upon Pensacola Bay in this northwest corner of Florida, appeared to be playing much tougher in the afternoon than in the morning and the golfers blamed the generally higher scores on the fast-growing poa annua grass on the greens.

A dozen golfers in the morning half of the field broke par Thursday but only five were able to accomplish this feat in the afternoon.

"This is not the easiest course on the tour by any means because the greens are so small," said Smith. "If you miss the green and get into that high rough, it's hard to get up and down."

The withdrawal of Trevino all but stripped this $150,000 tournament of big name golfers since Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Billy Casper was among those who didn't show up at all.

Jim Barker, Bob Gooley and Ray Floyd all shot 68 Thursday and George Archer, who won this tournament in 1968, was at 69 along with Harry Foscano, Deane Beman and Lou Graham.

Rounding out the 17 golfers in the 147-man starting field who broke par on Thursday, with their 1-under 70s, were Homero Blancas, Lee Elder, Bobby Cole, Labron Harris and Grier Jones.

Sample faces 75 year term after federal conviction

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—A federal jury Thursday night convicted Johnny Sample, former star defensive back for the New York Jets and the Baltimore Colts, of charges of cashing 25 stolen government checks worth $7,400.

Sample, whose controversial career in pro football was detailed in his book "Confessions of a Dirty Football Player," was acquitted on only one of the counts against him. This was a charge of possessing a commercial check valued at $1,666.

The former athlete was shaken by the verdict and his attractive wife, Andrea, burst into tears upon hearing the verdict.

Sample's lawyer indicated that he would file a motion for a new trial.

The jury deliberated four hours before reaching a verdict. They apparently did not believe Sample's claim that he was in New York City winning $7,000 at a racetrack the day seven of the checks were cashed.

Under the 10-count conviction Sample faces a maximum of 75 years in prison and fines totaling $15,000.

The jury of 10 men and two women received the case after opposing attorneys pictured Sample as either a "patsy" who was the victim of professional thieves or a "well known" sports celebrity who used his fame to cash the checks.

Herbert Hardin, the defense attorney, maintained that the checks were cashed between April 5 and April 8 of last year by "professionals who picked up a victim and a patsy." He said the bank was the "victim and Sample was the patsy."

Galli argued that Sample picked his own bank to cash the checks because he was "well known" there as a sports celebrity and the tellers would not question him.

Galli said the tellers could not have mistaken Sample for someone else because he is a "big man, a powerful athlete, and has a distinctive face."

Site switches to Milwaukee

NBA Western series to 'start again'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—The Western Conference NBA playoff between the Los Angeles Lakers and the Milwaukee Bucks, which is finally beginning to turn into the battle everybody expected, opens up again at the Milwaukee Arena tonight.

And that is not the best of omens for the Lakers.

Since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar joined the Bucks, Los Angeles has visited the arena 10 times and the Bucks have won nine times.

That statistic alone raises some questions about Laker Coach Bill Sharman's statement that "there's no reason why we shouldn't win one or two in Milwaukee."

But there are other things besides statistics to consider about the Lakers.

Jim McMillian, who scored 42 points to lead the Lakers to an exciting 135-134 win Wednesday Night to even the series at one game each, is certainly one of the things to consider. So is Bob Dandridge, who guarded McMillian.

The Bucks defense, which swarmed over the Lakers in the opening game, suffered a noticeable letdown Wednesday night. McMillian was frequently free for clear shots and he hit 16 of 25 from the floor. The Bucks weren't getting the double-teaming effort they need to play their defensive game.

But McMillian wasn't the whole Laker show. The entire team rebounded from the miserable performance in the opener and beat the Bucks when Milwaukee was having one of its best nights.

"The Bucks shot 61 per cent to 49 per cent for the Lakers, but Los Angeles got the baskets when they counted."

The game, however, was not all good news for Los Angeles, as Milwaukee got some strong performances from Curtis Per-

Attles signs two-year contract

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Al Attles emphasizing his loyalty to the club that has always been good to him, signed a two-year contract with the Golden State Warriors Thursday and said "I was happy to accept it."

Attles took over as Warriors coach in mid-season 1969-71 and in his two full seasons took the club to the National Basketball Association playoffs twice.

Unfortunately, both times the Warriors met the Milwaukee Bucks in the first round and did not survive. Still, the club won a record 51 games this past season and a Warriors spokesman said Attles was paid as the "Coach of the Year."

What that meant is that he was given a substantial raise which he said was the only offer made to him.

"This organization has always been fair to me and they were more than fair in their offer," he said, and then added he had "no intentions" of shopping around for another job.

Rumors had been circulated that Attles was looking elsewhere for future employment. In fact, the Seattle Super Sonics asked permission of Warriors owner Franklyn Mielch to talk with Attles.

Attles laid all the rumors to rest when he said that he never had any intentions of leaving the club.

In these days when sports contracts are broken all the time, Attles remained firm in his loyalty to the Warriors. Breaking contracts and turning away friends, he said, wasn't his style. "I just don't feel that way," he said. "I happen to have a strong sense of loyalty to the Warriors."

Attles also added that while he was a little disappointed the Warriors didn't go all the way in the playoffs, he is confident of the team's future.

"We did a lot of good things this past season," he said. "We still have some weaknesses but we'll just have to work hard to eliminate them. I didn't think this was a good club I wouldn't have signed to come back."

No split pacts for Hunt group

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—The United States Lawn Tennis Assn. (USLTA) will under no circumstances seek separate peace with Texan Lamar Hunt's World Championship Tennis (WCT) group, a top U.S. official said Thursday.

"Absolutely untrue," said First Vice-President Walter E. Elecock, Brookline, Mass., commenting on press reports that USLTA might bypass the International Lawn Bowling Federation in order to get the top professional stars back into the home tournaments.

Elecock is a member of the federation's 10-man committee of management which will meet today to discuss series of proposals for long-term peace drawn up by Hunt and top federation officials, including President Alan Heymann of Denmark.

"Hopefully we'll have open tennis after this meeting or at least a strong recommendation for our general assembly (to be held in Helsinki, in July). Whether peace will come in time for Wimbledon or Forest Hills, I would not want to predict," Elecock said.

Elecock said great progress had been made after Hunt and Heymann met for three days in London in March.

"I believe most of the financial difficulties have been solved. Now we have to find a way to coordinate the international tournament calendar."

The major proposals the committee of management will discuss at Copenhagen's Tennis Club are:

Hunt would operate the calendar from January to April 1973, the federation would coordinate events for the last eight months.

Team handball workshop scheduled

EAST STROUDSBURG — A demonstration-workshop on Olympic team handball, a new sport in the 1972 Olympic Games, will be conducted Tuesday night at East Stroudsburg State College.

The program will begin at 6:45 p.m. in the LeRoy J. Koehler Fieldhouse and continue until 10 p.m. with a film on the sport, questions and answers, an exhibition game and an observation and participation workshop.

Participating in the exhibition will be league all-star teams from the 1st Battalion (Mech) 109th Infantry Sponsored Waives Armory League, Scranton. The game should run for an hour, beginning at 7:45.

The program is being sponsored by the ESSC chapter of Phi Epsilon Kappa, men's national honorary physical education fraternity, and the ESSC Intramural Athletics Department. It is open to the public.

Robert Sweeney, Intramural director, plans to add team handball as an intramural sport at East Stroudsburg this spring.

Team handball is a game played indoors or outdoors on a court slightly larger than a basketball court. The ball used is a little smaller than a volleyball, about a pound in weight and about seven inches in diameter.

Seven players compete on each team at one time, six courtmen and a goalkeeper. The object is to throw the ball into a goal, which is approximately the size of a hockey goal, 10 feet wide by six and one-half feet high.

A player may advance the ball by dribbling basketball style or by passing. He can take a maximum of three steps with the ball and when not dribbling cannot retain possession for more than three seconds. The ball may be hit by any part of the body above the knee.

Team handball was originated in Europe in 1901. It was played in the Scandinavian and European countries. In 1946, the International Federation of Team Handball was formed with 54 countries.

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) adopted the game in 1965 for the 1972 Olympic Games which will be held in Munich, Germany.

Interest in the sport in the United States was aroused when the game was adopted for Olympic play. Programs have been started, in conjunction with the President's Youth Physical Fitness Program, to teach the game throughout the country.

Davis Cup first, USLTA dictates

COPENHAGEN (UPI)—If it's a matter of ruining the Davis Cup tournament then South Africa should be expelled again from the competition, a top official of the United States Lawn Tennis Assn. said Thursday.

Walter E. Elecock, Brookline, Mass., a first USLTA vice president, is a member of the seven-man special committee which will decide on South Africa's fate this morning.

"We are not against the republic's participation for political reasons," Elecock said, "but we don't want the tournament ruined when other countries withdraw in protest."

The special committee meeting was called in March by Elecock after South Africa, by a 4-3 vote, had been readmitted to the worldwide tournament after two years banishment.

"Frankly I was surprised over the vote and I don't think it will stand up. I wish the republic had not forced the issue right now but waited until the general assembly of the ITF (to be held in Helsinki in July) has been able to deal with the problem."

Elecock said South Africa's two top officials, SAFTU President Alf Chalmers and Vice-President Ben Franklin, would be invited to present their views at today's meeting.

Elecock said Basil Reay, the Davis Cup nations secretary, had brought a thick file of letters from other nations protesting South Africa's readmission. He said the United Nations document, which criticized the decision, was another telling point against the republic.

"If all players, black or white, are allowed to play under the same condition, then the republic should be readmitted. But then we would have to draw up firm rules dealing with countries withdrawing in protest and this cannot be done before the general assembly meeting," Elecock declared.

Elecock said he "was willing to believe the situation had improved in South Africa, but it's a question whether it has improved enough."

Sweep of hip roof gives horizontal linear look to house.

Vacation retreat small but special

By JOHN D. BLOODGOOD

This compact vacation house has more spirit than size. The two-bedroom plan provides adequate room for sleeping, meal preparation, even for living indoors on rainy days.

Much of the time, your vacation living will certainly be done on the decks or in the yard.

The house is planned with an enclosed partial basement under the center portion only. Here, heating and hot water heater (plus bulk storage space) are protected from the elements.

The two side wings float over open space from the end concrete wing walls to the center core. The deep roof overhangs are designed to visually float over the stanchion concrete walls.

Thus, the house combines the here-to-stay look of massive supporting walls with a floating, casual house between them.

Inside, the kitchen, planned for minimum chores but maximum storage, has a pantry that's 4 1/2 feet long. Make half of this pantry lockable with a separate key for storing your own belongings if you'll have others using the house from time to time.

Bedroom closets, each 9 feet long, store suitcases as well as clothing. The linen cabinet is conveniently built at the end of the bath vanity.

A separate garage-carport plan is included with the house for more storage space.

Prefabs invade patios

The trend toward outdoor living has led to development of a prefabricated screen room that makes it possible for a homeowner to transform a patio into an outdoor living room in one day.

The unit has an aluminum frame with aqua fiber glass screening and incorporates features designed to simplify installation.

A newly designed scissors-type gable system allows the homeowner to compensate for variance in the pitch of the patio roof. Top and bottom U-channel expanders, used to fasten the screen's panels to the patio roof and floor, also are designed to accommodate variances of up to three inches of patio floor pitch.

Roof panels on the room slide together and interlock without nuts, bolts or clips. The roof also includes built-in gutter and reinforcing corner supports.

All materials necessary for assembling the screen room — hardware, base channels for attachment to the patio and roof rail for mounting against the wall of the house — are included in the kit.

Aluminum-framed vinyl storm panels may be used on the screen room for year-round use.

Give hard water pleasant touch

Hard water not only leaves a ring around the tub, it clogs plumbing and inflates water-heating bills. But it is by no means the only water problem.

Iron in water stains bathroom fixtures, discolors laundry, and spoils the flavor of tea and coffee.

Acid water corrodes plumbing, eats fixture enamel, and causes brown or green stains, depending upon whether piping is iron or copper.

Sulphur, decaying vegetable matter, silt, and other unpleasantnesses spoil water for drinking, cooking, ice cubes, and baby's formula.

According to the Culligan Water Institute, all these problems can be solved with a single new water conditioning unit. Called the "UltraClear," this new water conditioning appliance comes in models to cope with any combination of water problems.

Hardness is the Number 1 problem however. It affects 85 per cent of U.S. and Canadian water supplies, and is particularly annoying because it makes good grooming difficult. A proper shampoo is impossible with hard water. This is because hard water deposits scummy residues — the same as those in the ring around the tub — that leave hair drab and limp instead of clean and lustrous. Washing in hard water leaves the skin rough and tacky instead of soft and smooth.

Water softening equipment may be bought or rented. Simpler yet, "soft water service" can be arranged on a monthly basis. Service is especially advantageous to young families and to those who rent their homes because there is nothing to buy. A unit is merely hooked to the water supply line.

Further information on how to turn bad water into good is available from Water Softening Equipment dealers.

Carport-garage adds space

This three-in-one design provides a carport, a garage and a walk-in storage closet that will add utility to your year-round or vacation house.

The lockable garage has generous room for a second car or a boat.

The storage closet, designed for personal items, can be locked separately to make tools accessible to a service man or, if you rent your house, to a tenant.

The deep overhang of the hip roof gives extra protection to the building.

Siding and roofing materials should be selected to coordinate with your house. The floor plan is shown at left.

Getting on beam

Easy-to-apply urethane foam beams and architectural details can turn any room into a striking period showcase.

Early American, federal and English renaissance components can be applied over any clean, dry material, including concrete, terrazzo, tile, plaster, plywood, metal and other wall and ceiling materials.

The only tools needed are a pencil and some adhesive.

Repair leaks, conserve water

Conserving our natural resources is just as important to our environment as maintaining a comfortable standard of living.

Ever stop to think of all the appliances in the home that use water: sinks, dishwashers, toilets, showers, baths, automatic ice cube makers, laundry.

Especially important is prompt repair of faucet drips and leaks.

Do-it-yourselfer has panel choice

When your walls are out of date the whole room suffers. But even with a limited budget, homeowners are brightening entire walls with the newer factory finished wall panelings.

Never before has the do-it-yourselfer faced such a wide choice of wood species, patterns, textures, colors, and surface materials when selecting a paneled wall covering.

Imagination needed for apartments

More and more owners of cooperative and condominium apartments are becoming aware of the advantages of remodeling their property. An improved apartment has a higher value and is easier to attract buyers to.

Many older apartments which were converted from rent-control have outmoded kitchens and baths and are generally without laundry areas.

The bedrooms in these older apartments were outsized and lend themselves readily to subdivision. Think of the difference between a three bedroom apartment and a five or six bedroom apartment, all possible with imaginative remodeling.

Costs are incurred only in construction of partitions. When subdividing a room keep in mind the size of the furniture and the necessary allotment for storage areas.

Another caution: when remodeling an apartment check your wiring for electrical load.

The addition of air conditioning units, laundry appliances, etc. may require an upgrading of your load capacity.

The owner of a condominium has few of the restrictions imposed upon the owner of a cooperative apartment.

Some of the texture is subtle. Panels with embossed distressing supply the aged look of antiqued impressions in the wood surface to suggest the warmth and heritage of old world living. Other textures are bolder with deeply embossed wood veneers to provide a distinctive grain character.

In trying to break away from the 20th Century polish and precision, paneling manufacturers like Georgia-Pacific have combined the deep grained patterns of weathered wood with a saw-texture to give rustic boldness that liberates the monotony of four plain walls.

With the improvements in color and grain reproduction plus the introduction of grained surfaces, the vinyl panelings have grown out of the "fake" wood category.

Now, highly realistic reproductions of expensive and exotic woods are available at surprisingly low cost with all the tough, low maintenance properties associated with a vinyl surface.

The newest step in paneling carries the factory-finished textured panel one step further with the addition of color. Bright new panels in soft pastel colors have opened up a host of decorating possibilities which never before existed.

Today, when a family considers paneling, they no longer automatically assume that all four walls of a room must be covered. Creative and individual use of the product in an original manner is the order of the day.

Tasteful decorating is usually more a matter of imagination than cost. Paneled wainscots rather than a full wall, a single accent area, decorative cut-outs, arches, and even paneled ceilings are becoming more common. Kitchens, baths, bedrooms and hallways have been added to the traditional living room and den areas.

Obsolete election system denies millions vote rights

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Millions of Americans will be denied the right to vote in the November presidential election under an obsolete election system which works to the detriment of voters and candidates alike, an independent nationwide survey concluded Sunday.

"Considering the all too frequent occurrence of complex forms, unhelpful and poorly trained staff, machine breakdowns and inconveniently located registration and polling places, it is surprising that so many citizens do vote," the League of Women Voters Education Fund said in releasing the findings.

"That the system functions at all is a tribute to the sheer determination of citizens to overcome these inconveniences and obstacles."

The statement concerned a survey financed by the Ford Foundation and conducted by more than 3,000 members of the independent League, who studied election practices in 251 communities in 50 states during the 1971 fall elections.

"Administrative behavior was observed in a non-presidential election year," the statement said, "in which various types of contests, some considerably more important and appealing than others, were at stake. This factor tends to mute the findings and conclusions drawn from this study. It is reasonable to conclude then that the findings contained might be an understatement of the problems citizens experience when participating in presidential elections."

The statement said that in the presidential election year of 1968, some 73 million Americans, or 60 per cent of the total population of voting age, actually voted, while 47 million or about 40 per cent did not.

"Millions of citizens fail to vote not because they are disinterested, but because they are disenfranchised by the present election system," the surveyors concluded. "In the case of minorities, the poor, the uneducated and the aged, the system imposes complicated requirements which exclude them from the electoral process."

Recognizing that situation, the Supreme Court in March invalidated lengthy residence requirements and said that 30 days residency within a state was sufficient time to be eligible to vote.

The ruling could affect those in the "mainstream of American society" who accept a company transfer, go to college, get married and move out of state, or enter military service. There are 140 million Americans of voting age this year.

League Chairman Lucy Wilson Benson cited examples which suggested that local officials have failed to use tools allowed by law to make registration and voting easier.

For example, 52 per cent of the 458 registration places observed were not clearly identified, and 38 per cent of the communities had no additional registration hours available 30 days prior to the close of registration; 77 per cent of the communities studied had no Saturday registration in non-election months; 55 per cent of the communities charged a fee for providing registration lists; and 28 per cent of the communities surveyed gave poll workers either no training or minimal hours.

The survey recommended a series of remedial steps saying that "alternative strategies" would be considered at a Washington meeting April 20 of 60 citizens organizations.

The league recommended that: —The chief election official in each community use broad discretionary powers under current law to expand citizen opportunities to register and vote.

—The chief state election official ensure uniform interpretation and administration of state law by requiring local officials to comply with statewide standards.

—Identified voter needs be met through localized special services such as use of temporary and mobile registration units; expanded registration and polling hours; bilingual materials, and mandatory training sessions for poll workers.

—Citizen groups participate in selection of local election officials, monitor their decisions and work for specific administrative reforms.

—Political parties, the media and educational institutions use their influence to create and maintain a responsive and responsible election system.

"In a democratic society, no right is more fundamental than the right to vote. Regrettably, our election system is not working well," Mrs. Benson said.

Exhibit set for Lehigh

BETHLEHEM — The public is invited to attend a one-day exhibit and sale of original Oriental art to be held in the second floor lounge of Lehigh's University Center, between the hours of 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. on Tuesday, April 18.

On display will be etchings, woodcuts, lithographs and drawings, in all price ranges, by such 18th- and 19th-century masters of Oriental art as Hiroshige, Toyokuni, Kunitchika, Chikanobu and many others.

The exhibit is being arranged by assistant dean of student life Nathan Harris.

Your tax problems

"Your Tax Problems" is published as a public service and is prepared by the Philadelphia District Office of the Internal Revenue Service. Send queries to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, 401 N. Broad Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, 19108. For personal replies give name and address.

Q. Will the IRS automatically give a taxpayer an extension of time to file his income tax return?

A. A taxpayer can now get an automatic two-month extension to file his Form 1040 by properly completing Form 4868 and sending it to the IRS along with payment of tax that is estimated to be owed for the year. This extension is available for tax years ending on or after December 31, 1971 and thus can be taken during the current filing season. The Form 4868 must be filed with the IRS Service Center on or before the due date of the Form 1040.

If the tentative tax paid, when submitting Form 4868, is less than the final tax shown on the Form 1040, interest at the rate of 6 per cent a year from the original due date will apply on the amount of the difference. The late payment penalty will also apply unless there is reasonable cause shown for the delay. Reasonable cause will be presumed if the balance due on the Form 1040 is no more than 10 per cent of the total tax for the year and this balance is paid with the Form 1040.

Q. I understand that the IRS has an official income tax guide for individuals. Where can I get a copy?

A. A copy of Publication 17, "Your Federal Income Tax," can be purchased for 75 cents at IRS district offices, the Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C., 20402, and many post offices throughout the country.

Q. Where can I get some information about the tax treatment of a DISC — the Domestic International Sales Corporation — established by the new tax law?

A. A new publication, "DISC — A Handbook for Exporters" can be obtained for 40 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. You may also call your IRS office for information on DISC.

Q. I made a political contribution last year. May I deduct it on my 1971 return?

A. No. Under the Revenue Act of 1971, only political contributions made after December 31, 1971 can be deducted up to $50 ($100 for a joint return), if you itemize deductions. Instead of a deduction, the taxpayer can take a credit on his 1972 return against his tax for 50 per cent of the contribution up to $12.50 ($25 for a joint return).

If you plan to make any political contributions this year, be sure to keep good records to justify a deduction or credit on your 1972 return.

Q. Are alimony payments deductible?

A. Yes, if you itemize deductions on your return. The person who receives alimony must include these payments in income. The reverse is true for child support payments. These payments are not deductible to the one who pays them and are nontaxable to the recipient.

Q. Should I use Schedule D to report a gain from the sale of rental property?

A. No. Schedule D is now used only for reporting the sale or exchange of a capital asset and in computing the alternative tax, Form 4797, "Supplemental Schedule of Gains and Losses," should be used to report certain sales, exchanges, or involuntary conversions of business or depreciable property, including the sale of rental property.

Q. How did the new tax law change the personal exemption and standard deduction on this year's tax return?

A. The Revenue Act of 1971 increased the personal exemption to $675 for tax year 1971. The new law did not change the standard deduction which the Tax Reform Act of 1969 had increased to 13 per cent of adjusted gross income, or $1500, whichever is less.

Slate girl injured

PEN ARGYL — A Pen Argyl girl was admitted to Allentown General Hospital Sunday night after she lost control of her car on Route 512 north and struck a telephone pole.

Debbie Brown was reported in satisfactory condition with multiple injuries although her 1968 auto was demolished. Damage to the telephone pole was superficial.

Pennsylvania State Police from the Easton barracks are handling the investigation.

Your Horoscope

Frances Drake

(March 21 to April 20) (Aries) — The ambitious Aries should find this day a most challenging one. Be ready for new opportunities, new beginnings, new incentive!

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Fine aspects encourage clever action, but don't set up hazards for yourself through haste, superfluous moves, non-trivial interests.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Emphasize sympathy, affability, sincerity. Don't spend all you've earned monetarily, but double your spending in friendship, wholehearted interest in the good things of life.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Keep ears attuned for really useful hints; recognize the valued efforts of others; transfer good ideas to your own program. Emphasize composure all day.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Being a natural leader, others now look to you for guidance, incentive. Supply both generously. They will be grateful and you will reap compensating reward.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — A new goal in mind? Stop to ascertain first what is really required, then figure out the best avenues to its achievement. Consult with those who have your interests at heart.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — If there is a fragile conception of values this day, then your picture is NOT in focus. You should be scaling the heights of inspired thinking.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Why not step forward in more venturesome manner if you have all needed facts, and your intuition tells you that NOW is the time? Stars are on your side.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — You are due for a unique surprise now, or soon, unless you work at odds with congenial influences. Wrap up duties without delay; save some time for rest and relaxation.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Do the things that make you feel that life is worth living. In this way, you can relieve the tensions of the past, become more fit to handle the busy days ahead.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — A fine day for artistic, literary and social interests. In all things, capitalize on your finesse and general know-how.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — A number of small matters, well handled, can add up to a winning day. Begin early to determine just where you wish to go, and HOW!

YOUR BORN TODAY are a natural leader, with a penchant for introducing the unusual to add novelty and increase public interest in a product or endeavor. You are extremely energetic and, being quite materialistic in your aims, are willing to work long and hard for the luxuries you desire. You usually achieve them, too, for your perseverance and determination are outstanding. You make friends easily, but sometimes lose them through overpossessiveness and bossiness. Try to curb these traits since they can also be liabilities in your business or profession. Your versatility is almost boundless, but the field in which you could succeed most notably include writing, the theater, painting, business management and finance. Birthdate of: James Branch Cabell, novelist; Sir John Gielgud, Eng. dramatic actor; Julie Christie, film star.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Now that he's finished this job, will he be able to find a new one?

He did his tour and now he wants to pick up on life. But that sometimes takes help.

Whether you're a veteran or an employer, you should know about the Federal Government's program of financial assistance that can benefit both of you.

As an eligible veteran, you should know that the Veterans Administration is ready with the money you need to make a fresh start — in school or on the job. This is no hand-out. It's money you've earned the hard way. And all you have to do is apply for it.

As an employer, you should know that these same G.I. benefit funds can save your company money during the veteran's training period. Hundreds of businesses and industries are eligible to participate in this on-the-job training program. Probably yours. You won't find out until you ask.

It's a good deal all around.

Both of you, veteran and employer, owe it to yourselves to learn more. Contact your nearest VA office or your state employment office.

You'll be helping each other.

House plans and home modernization

Miniature blueprints available for new homes featured in this edition

Authentic look has been preserved by the architect by the use of Colonial detailing throughout. Note the paneling under the lower front windows and the wood surrounding the front door, among the touches adding to the planned traditional appearance.

Four-bedroom Colonial has balance

By ANDY LANG

An important design element in a house with as many as four bedrooms is the matter of balance.

Obviously, such a home will be occupied by a family with several children. It will need living areas of sufficient size to handle large groups. And it must have a place where one or more members of the family can read or study in privacy when the occasion demands.

This week's plan takes care of those needs. Architect Herman H. York has incorporated into it a living room 24' long; a family room with a fireplace and a separate study or den. Everything else is in the proportion necessary to handle the requirements of a sizable family and its guests. Even the foyer is spacious to avoid crowding at the end of a party when several persons leave simultaneously.

The cross-hall stairway to the second floor makes for an attractive entry because the open balustrade of the stair is in immediate view and tends to add space to the foyer, inasmuch as the rear wall of the stair is visible. The living room, to the left of the foyer, is sunken. It has only the one entrance and thus cannot be used as a passageway, a boon to the housewife who may want to reserve it for formal entertaining. The family room is at the rear of the house for ready access to the terrace.

The dining room, to the right of the foyer, is completely separate, preferred by most American homemakers. It is a perfect square of 13' 4" in each direction. The kitchen can be reached from the foyer, the dining room and the family room. It is large enough to have a separate dinette that looks out onto the rear patio. On the right side of the kitchen, behind the two-car garage, is a laundry-closet area, with a door to the outside. The garage has a large storage alcove.

On the upper floor are four bedrooms, with bedroom no. 4 positioned to allow for an alternate use as a sitting room or nursery. Here a door can be placed to connect this room with the owners' bedroom. The latter is large, has a private bathroom with a stall shower and has two closets, one a walk-in. A second bathroom is accessible to the three other bedrooms.

On the outside, design S-12 has a colonial motif, with a narrow wood siding, corner boards, panels under the windows and attractive shutters. A hip roof on both the main section and over the garage adds to the mass without overpowering the elevation. An asphalt shingle roof, preferably in black, will contrast well with almost any color used on the sidewalls.

The garage doors are on the side, but the plans show an alternate front location should the size of the lot not permit a side entry.

New wall panels reproduce exotic textures inexpensively

When your walls are out of date the whole room suffers. But even with a limited budget, homeowners are brightening entire walls with the newer factory finished wall panelings.

Never before has the do-it-yourselfer faced such a wide choice of wood species, patterns, textures, colors, and surface materials when selecting a paneled wall covering.

Some of the texture is subtle. Panels with embossed distressing supply the aged look of antiqued impressions in the wood surface to suggest the warmth and heritage of old world living. Other textures are bolder with deeply embossed wood veneers to provide a distinctive grain character.

In trying to break away from the 20th Century polish and precision, paneling manufacturers like Georgia Pacific have combined the deep grained patterns of weathered wood with a saw texture to give rustic boldness that liberates the monotony of four plain walls. With the improvements in color and grain reproduction plus the introduction of grained surfaces, the vinyl panelings have grown out of the "fake" wood category.

Now, highly realistic reproductions of expensive and exotic woods are available

Enhance yard beauty with colorful roses

A rose by any other name is still a rose. One of the special joys of springtime is watching flowers bloom in your own backyard.

Of all the flowers, roses furnish a wide variety of lures for pleasant effects. Roses are colorful. They span the spectrum from pure white to deep red velvet.

Many durable hybrids have been developed so even the novice "green thumb" can keep roses blooming from spring through fall.

at surprisingly low cost with all the tough, low maintenance properties associated with a vinyl surface.

The newest step in paneling carries the factory-finished textured panel one step further with the addition of color. Bright new panels in soft pastel colors have opened up a host of decorating possibilities which never before existed.

Today, when a family considers paneling, they no longer automatically assume that all four walls of a room must be covered. Creative and individual use of the product in an original manner is the order of the day.

Tasteful decorating is usually more a matter of imagination than cost. Paneled wainscots rather than a full wall, a single accent area, decorative cut outs, arches, and even paneled ceilings are becoming more common. Kitchens, baths, bedrooms and hallways have been added to the traditional living room and den areas.

Garage Opener saves back-breaking work

Who lifts 30 tons or more a year?

You do, if you have an overhead garage door that is manually lifted at least twice daily.

For as little as $100, you can save your back with an electronic garage door opener — and have the added advantages of convenience and safety from the elements and intruders.

A push of a button sends out a silent, ultra-high frequency (UHF) signal to open or close the door. If you are driving, you don't even have to get out of the car — an important advantage in bad weather.

Once considered a luxury, electronic garage door openers are now available in a wide range of prices and models to fit most any budget, and type of door and any opening. And, if you are a do-it-yourselfer, you can install the necessary electronic equipment and track yourself with basic hand tools.

If you don't have an overhead door, a replacement costs as little as $60, which puts the entire package — electronic opener and door — under $200. This includes mounting plates for the door, if necessary, and materials for swinging door conversions.

Electronic garage door openers are designed with a host of fail-safe factors: the door reverses if it is obstructed in roll-down travel; the automatic reverse cuts off during the last few inches of downward travel so ice, snow, a garden hose, will not cause the door to reverse and the door cannot be commanded to operate unsafely.

Other features include drive units with solid-state circuits; special security switches to make the radio control unit inoperable and an electrical outside key lock.

Finishing materials offer wide choices

Plaster and plaster board are still the most widely used interior finishing materials, but the list of attractive and serviceable materials is growing by leaps and bounds.

It includes metal and hardboard panels, prefinished hardwood plywood, cement board, stained lumber, plastic and glass fibre panels, ornamental tiles, marble, glass and masonry.

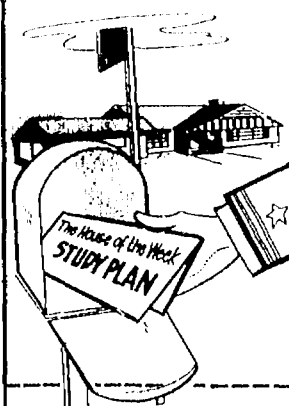

In addition, there are the new supported and unsupported vinyl coverings for unfinished walls. In choosing wall and ceiling materials you have the factors of cost, appearance, maintenance and acoustical properties to consider.

Adds grace

Homeowners can transform the standard brick fireplace into a dramatic and gracious feature using readily available stork millwork. It is a simple job for a carpenter to make alteration of outmoded architectural settings.

Family room star of three-bedroom ranch

By ANDY LANG

The family room is no afterthought in this ranch house. It's where the emphasis is.

Rather than being relegated to a spare corner, the family room is placed boldly along the rear of the house, with sliding glass doors leading to the garden or terrace. Just as long as the living room — 20' — it is 2' wider. And it gives the illusion of being even larger, since it is on a line with the kitchen, which has a dividing snack bar that could be used as a pass-through server or clearing counter.

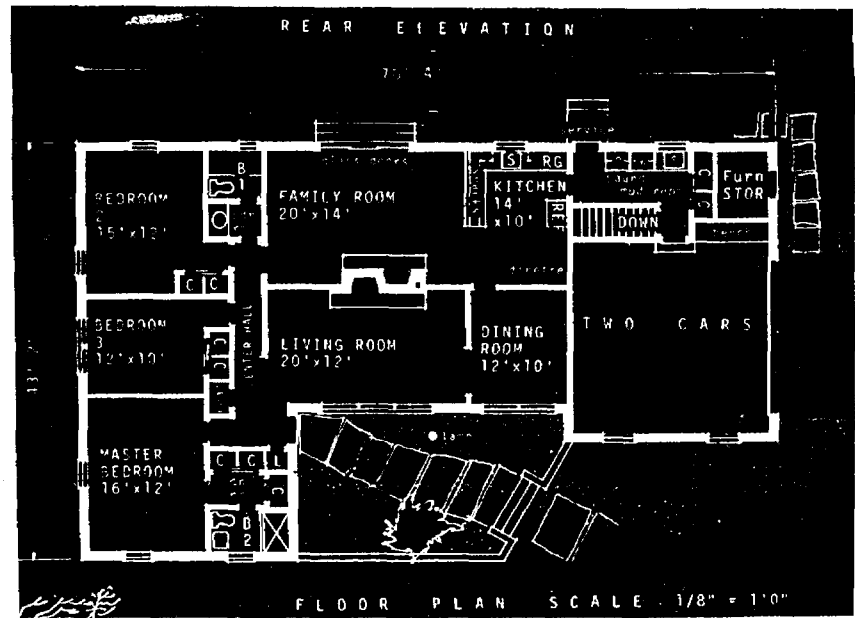

An attractive masonry fireplace is centrally located in the family room on the wall opposite the glass doors. There's easy accessibility to the area, not only through the glass doors and the rear service entrance, but directly from the front door via the center hall.

At the front of the house, the living room and the dining room flow together, with large windows in each. A fireplace in the living room utilizes the same chimney as the one in the family room. Architect Lester Cohen has thus provided an arrangement that does not push either formal or informal living into the background, giving "equal time," in effect, to each.

To the left of the center hall is the bedroom wing, which includes three bedrooms, all buffered by hall, closets and baths from the living rooms of the house. The master bedroom has two exposures, good wall space and a dressing area, plus a separate bathroom with stall shower. A second full bathroom is at the rear, convenient to the two other bedrooms as well as the rest of the house.

The service area is next to the kitchen, but out of its way. It can be entered from the rear or from the two-car garage, providing protection for the kitchen from muddy feet as well as a passageway to the basement, since the stairs are located there. There is space in the service section for a washer and dryer, with a sink under a window and with two closets. Also in this area, but with a separate outside opening of its own, is a place for the storage of outdoor furniture, garden equipment, bikes, etc.

Clean, crisp lines mark the exterior of this ranch. Brick veneer is used all around, with stone trim at the front and a large stone chimney. A feeling of extra warmth is achieved with window shutters, an outside lamp, a flower box stretching across the master bedroom and bathroom windows, a cupola on the garage and, most of all, an area at the front for shrubbery and flowers, enclosed by a low brick wall.

Home office paradoxical

The need for a miniature office at home is part of the paradox of our times. Automation has increased leisure hours, but actual free time of the executive and the professional is mired in paperwork. With unfinished business carried home, and complicated tax systems that require everybody to be his own bookkeeper, it is inevitable that the home, once the refuge from the cares of the day, has become a place where a desk and filing cabinet are necessary equipment.

Creating an office area in the home has become a popular idea, too, with working wives and mothers. Full-time mothers can also use desk space to take care of charge accounts, balance the budget and checkbook, or keep track of organizational functions. Moreover, the luxury of an adult sanctum where no one is required to sleep, eat, cook or live becomes increasingly valuable in this overcrowded era.

But since few homes can afford the luxury of a full-fledged office, even when it moonlights as a guest room, the usual procedure is to pre-empt part of another room for the desk detail. A few square feet in the living room, the bedroom or even the foyer can be made into attractive and efficient space for homework with a few pieces of essential furniture. A spacious desk, a comfortable chair and good lighting are necessities. Storage space should take into account the future as well as present needs — the most well-designed home office will soon look like the nest of a pack rat if specialized storage is not conceived in advance. Wall units like those designed in Denmark for Royal System which incorporate desk and storage are perfect for small rooms or apartments, with the added bonus of improving the room's architectural interest.

Where you can afford the luxury of a separate room, it is important to remember that this is not the place for the extended vista in decorating. Instead, the feeling should be one of snug enclosure, created by a background of wood paneling, wallpaper, carpeting, and windows which admit the sun but not a distracting view. Paneling and carpeting are important sound-conditioning considerations, too. Tranquility can come also from a decorative quality, one without busy patterns, distracting colors, or a clutter of objects. The need for a good reading light, of course, goes without saying, but it should be one which can be switched off to give way to a more muted background light when work is done and relaxing is in order.

"Home office" used to mean company headquarters. Now it is also one of the more pleasant ways of dealing with our paperwork age.

DELUXE INFORMALITY: The family or guests approaching this uncommon house could not help but feel the vacation atmosphere it is intended to convey; the architect has taken special care to see that its dramatic design does not interfere with practical living.

Dramatic vacation house — circular core

By ANDY LANG

Unusual designs are generally more acceptable in vacation houses than year-round residences. Where informality is the keynote, conventional construction often is not necessary and, in some cases, is not desired.

If drama is a requirement for a vacation home, this design offers the ultimate. It's a showplace for the family that wants something highly individual — a large circular core with four wings projecting beyond. Actually, it's like an auto wheel, with the hub containing the lounge and the tire portion containing the bath, a refreshment bar nook, the front foyer and a porch. The four wings house three bedrooms, each with a private "sleep-out" porch, and a dining room and kitchen.

The circular lounge is 23' in diameter, with a sunken conversation pit, including a circular seat and an open log-burning area. Architect Rudolph A. Matern suggests that this central portion of the house could have a flat floor, with the circular fireplace raised to that level, should the prospective owner desire to eliminate the sunken effect. (Some families with children feel that a sunken area is not practical.)

The interior walls, like the exterior, are finished in stained wood for the minimum in maintenance. The ceiling is slightly pitched and is pierced with four triangular sky domes. Consider the effect of being able to look up at the blue sky; the sunlight and moonlight shafts that would stream in; and the interesting visual pattern that would be formed on a rainy day.

With maximum separation between the three bedrooms offer privacy not often available. Guests would feel more comfortable. Even the porches, which are entered through sliding glass doors in the bedrooms, are fenced and screened off from one another. The bedroom adjacent to the large bath has direct access to it. The bath has another interior entrance to it as well as an exterior door. This outside entrance is excellent for restricting sandtracked floors, dripping bathing suits, etc., to the bathroom. An oversized shower stall is directly at the door for duck-in-duck-out use.

One of the four wings includes a dining room, unusual in summer homes and cottages, and a U-shaped kitchen. The latter has a counter-unit hot water heater and a washing machine, with a side door leading to an outdoor terrace for fresh-air dining. Incidentally, the dining room could double as a sleeping space in an emergency.

The exterior rendering shows this house located near a body of water, a typical setting for a vacation home, with the basic plan built on a concrete slab. Varying site conditions might dictate different construction treatments, which could be handled by a competent contractor at the location.

There isn't much doubt that this is a house that some persons will consider "way out." But neither is there any doubt about its livability for the vacationing family that likes to spend its time off in a frank atmosphere of complete relaxation.

'Thingamabobs' have real names

You've gone the unpainted furniture route — stained, antiqued and lacquered two stackable storage pieces — and you're very proud of your efforts.

So you place the bookcase against the wall, set the sliding door cupboard on top, fill them with prized possessions, and stand back to view the effect.

The cat jumps up to investigate. The cupboard slides a bit to one side. You shudder and shoo the cat.

You weight the top of the cupboard with heavy bric-a-brac. Junior and the dog thunder past. The cupboard slides forward — ominously.

Okay. The problem is clear. You have to fasten those units together — firmly, so the cupboard won't slide, and from the back where the First Aid won't show.

"You know what we need?" you say to your husband. "Two of those thingamabobs, you know?"

He looks blank. He doesn't know. And neither does the clerk in the building supplies store or the one in the hardware store when you try to explain what you need.

You get frantic; the clerk gets surly; the manager intervenes. A wise man and a patient one, he hands you a pencil and paper.

"Draw me a picture," he tells you. Shakily, you sketch it — a simple long rectangle with a hole at each end.

The manager nods sagely, pats you on the shoulder. "Sure," he says. "A mending plate. How many did you want?"

This sort of scene goes on every day all over the country. The problem is vocabulary — the customer knows what he wants, but he doesn't know what to call it.

Maybe you know what a mending plate is, but can you pass the following quiz?

1. You move into a house where some of the windows are painted shut. What's the tool you need to unstick them?

2. You have a lamp, a radio and an electric alarm clock. Behind your bedside table is one measly electric outlet. What do you call the thing you plug in to make three outlets from one?

3. You want to hang drapery panels at each side of a window — just at the sides, not across the middle. You don't want any hardware to show. What kind of curtain rod do you need?

4. You buy a lampshade that clips to the bulb. You bring it home and it hangs too low. So you buy a bigger bulb. Now the shade hangs right, but the light's too bright. What's the solution?

5. You're starting a carpentry project. You know you need a saw. What else do you need to know before you rush out and buy one?

6. You want a hammer that pulls out nails as well as pounding them in. What do you call it? What do you call the other kind?

7. Can you use a candle-base bulb in a standard-socket lamp?

8. What are four things that you can do to bridge the communications gap between you and the hardware industry?

Answers

1. You want a window zipper. It's a handle with curved toothed blades set at the proper angle for wedging between sash and frame to scrape out excess paint.

2. You call it a cube tab. It comes in varied sizes and styles to suit particular problems.

3. You need a crane rod. The best ones are adjustable to fit your panel heading exactly, and raise and lower slightly so heavy fabrics won't sag.

4. A socket riser. The riser screws into the bulb base; the bulb screws into the riser; and the smaller bulb is raised to the height you need for the shade to hang properly. The risers come in several heights to accommodate all needs.

5. Are you cutting with the grain of the wood? If so, you want a rip saw. Are you cutting across the grain? Then you need a cross-cut saw. Probably you need both.

6. Claw hammers pull out nails. The other most common household hammer is the ball-peen — with a ball at the head.

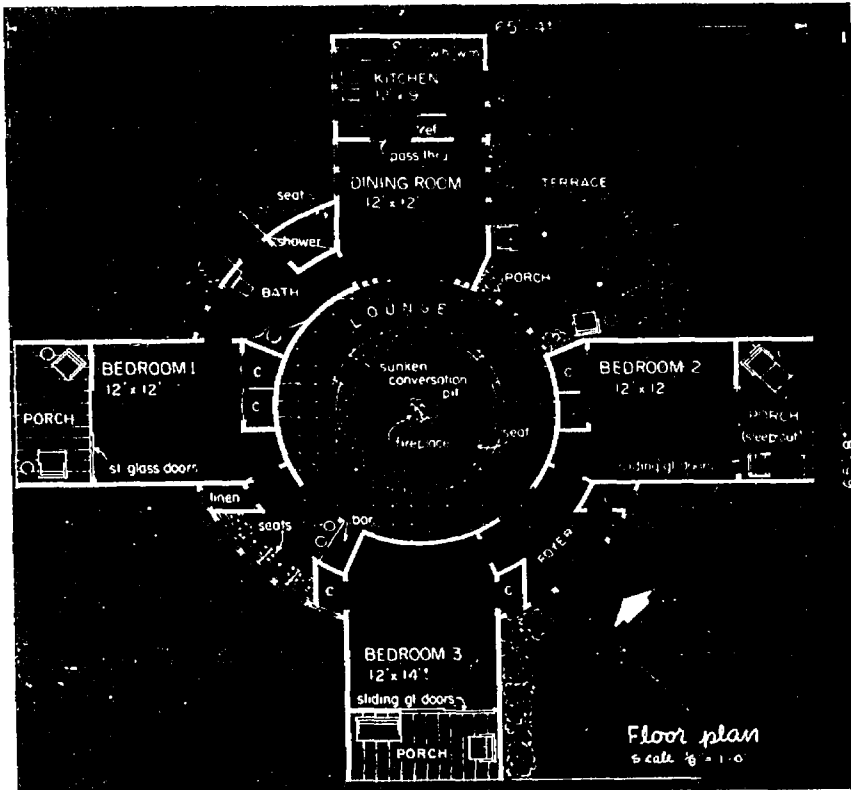

7. Yes. There's a socket bushing that you simply screw in, which converts a standard socket to a smaller base.

8. First, find a man you can talk to, and consult him before you begin with any household project. With his knowledge of products and methods, he can probably make the job much easier than you thought.

Secondly, bring along samples wherever possible — the kind of screw you mean, the color pink you want, etc. Bring along the whole project if it's portable. Don't feel foolish; dealers prefer it. It saves time and trouble for them and for you.

Third, remember that a picture is worth 1,000 words. If you can't describe it, draw it — your sketch doesn't have to be artistic, just enlightening.

Fourth, when you do learn the names of things, write them down, so you'll remember the next time.

Charming variation of Queen Anne style

By ANDY LANG

Early American homes varied considerably. How they were built depended mainly on the national derivation of the first immigrants, but also on such things as climatic conditions and the availability of certain materials. Thus, there were Cape Cods, Georgians, Garisons, Spanish stuccos, Dutch Colonials and many others, each with several variations.

One of the most interesting of these was the Queen Anne. Like the Dutch Colonial, it had a gambrel roof; that is, a roof with a broken slope of two different angles. The principal difference between the two styles was the presence in the Queen Anne of dormer windows in the lower part of the roof.

A variation of the Queen Anne has been created by architect William G. Chirgott for the House of the Week series. The gambrel roof has been designed with no attempt to achieve a slope of a certain number of degrees, but for the particular purpose of sheltering the four bedrooms on the second floor without sacrificing floor space. The broken roof lines and the large chimneys add to the free interpretation of the design.

While the exterior has all the charm of the 18th century house of its type, its floor plan fulfills the requirements of modern residential layouts. The much desired good traffic pattern is evident, since one can go from the entrance foyer to the kitchen, dining room, living room and family room on the first floor, or to the bedrooms on the second floor, without cross-room circulation.

The kitchen offers more than 20' of width across the back of the house. The U-shape of the work area provides a maximum number of counter tops and cabinets in a minimum amount of space. The picture bay window in the breakfast section or dinette gives a clear view of the backyard, and the window over the kitchen sink assures plenty of light and air. Only a few steps away is the rear service entry, with a mudroom closet and a laundry chute from the second floor to the laundry room.

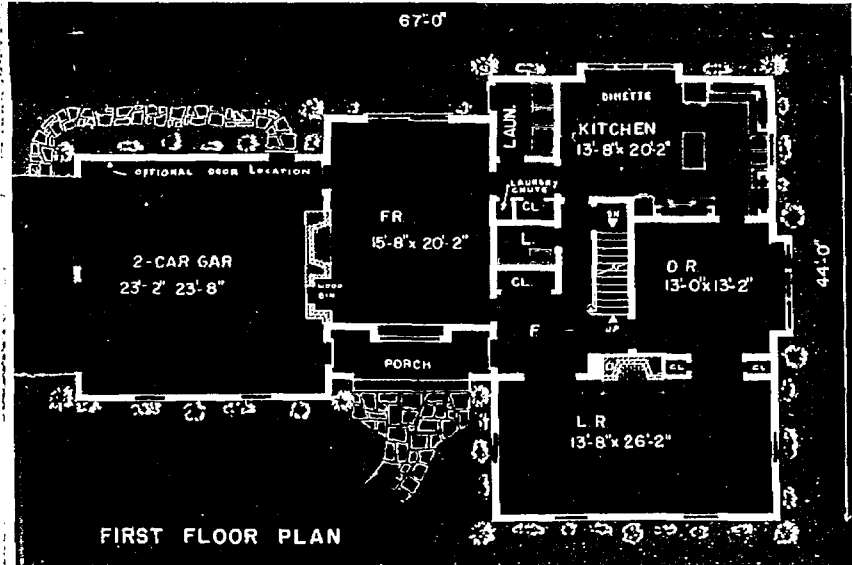

The huge living room — more than 26' long — has a fireplace and wall areas well suited to various kinds of furniture arrangements. The adjacent dining room is accessible from the living room, kitchen and entrance foyer. Off this foyer are a lavatory, a stairway to the second floor and a family room, which has a brick fireplace with wood bin, paneled walls and a sliding glass door leading to the outdoors.

On the second floor, three bedrooms are close to the main family bathroom. The master bedroom has a dressing alcove with a walk-in closet, a private bath with a shower stall and a full-length counter vanity. Entrance into this area is through lowered doors, which may be left open, if desired, to provide a "dressing room" appearance. An optional additional room on the second floor can be used as a den, sewing room or a fifth bedroom.

The old-time flavor of the house has been preserved by having a side auto entrance to the two-car garage. The front of the garage seems to be part of the over-all structure. This feeling would remain should it be desired to locate the garage doors at the rear. There is access to the garage from the foyer by means of the portico that shelters the front entrance.

Traditionally enchanting on the outside, this Queen Anne variation makes full use of every square foot of space on the inside.

Add rooms by improving them

Avoid taxes; better existing space

Even when a house is bulging at the seams, homeowners may hesitate to add space for fear of having property taxes increased. One way to avoid such a rise in cost-of-living is to improve existing space instead of adding to it.

Before remodeling, check with the local assessor's office to see if the planned improvement will increase the assessed value of the house. As a general rule, any permanent addition of space, such as enlarging a one-car garage to accommodate two automobiles, or enclosing a screened porch for year-round use, will eventually lead to an assessment charge.

Added space and increased resale value of the house may well be worth higher taxes, but there are improvements such as replacing old windows and doors with attractive modern ones that add considerably to the comfort and appearance of a house without raising the tax base.

Take a room that has tiny windows and plain doors — big new wood windows and solid panel interior doors will give it new life. Generous new windows open a room to the outdoors, making it seem infinitely larger and more livable.

Windows galore
There are many sizes and styles of factory-made ponderosa pine windows to choose from. For year-round comfort, choose wood window units equipped with insulating glass Handsome game room was once dark, seldom-used dining room. Larger window increased apparent size.

— two panes sealed at the edges to hold an insulating layer of air. The sealed-in air helps prevent heat loss and the accumulation of messy moisture on the panes in winter.

Since wood is an excellent insulating material, new wood windows with insulating glass will keep the remodeled room cozy all winter, no matter how large they are. And they will eliminate the maintenance problems of storm windows.

To give modern wood windows a charming, old-time appearance, there are removable grilles that snap into the sash over the panes. They can be lifted out when the windows need washing or painting. Panel doors of ponderosa pine, solidly made and ready to be painted or stained, also come in many styles and stock sizes. Both interior and exterior doors come in traditional, provincial, Mediterranean and modern styles. For closets, louver doors are popular because they permit air to circulate — and they add a pleasant dimension to a room.

One of the most effective ways to open up a room is to install a gliding patio door of ponderosa pine. With insulating glass sealed into the wood, the door will lighten, brighten and "enlarge" the room while keeping it comfortable throughout the year.

Glass doors make way for sun

Open up a wall and let the sun shine in!

A gliding patio door can double the fun of a family room. Its large glass area provides a living, changing, three-dimensional mural; it makes the room seem much larger than it really is, and it glides open to make the patio outside a continuous part of the activity area in the summer.

Since a patio door may replace an entire wall, it is important to choose a well-made one that holds heat inside in winter and lasts a long time with little care. Gliding doors with wood sash and insulating glass are recommended by the Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., a leading manufacturer.

Wood is a natural insulating material, and air sealed between the two panes of glass also prevents heat loss.

For easy maintenance, Andersen makes gliding patio doors with vinyl-clad wood sash that require no exterior painting. These doors, called Perma-Shield, will not pit, rust or corrode. The insulating glass, which is available in heat-reducing tints for sunny areas, is tempered for safety.

Power mowers

To reduce air pollution and increase power mower efficiency, all service manuals for Toro Manufacturing Company's 1971 mower line recommend unleaded gasoline. Low compression engines run better with the new anti-pollution gasoline, and spark plug fouling and valve deposits are reduced. Toro experts believe.

Home improvement top 'better housing' priority

Home improvement becomes a top priority for property owners as the need for housing in the nation far exceeds the rate of new construction.

It's far more than a matter of personal pride for the home owner. It is more than a matter of assuring the family continuous comfort and improvement of its standard of living.

It also is a matter of maintaining and enhancing the value of the home that is owned. And surely, if it's an additional house or two owned for rental purposes, improvements in these existing structures can help increase the rental return and serve a community need.

Home improvements this year can very much become a contribution to the health and welfare of the family, in the universal fight against pollution and on behalf of preservation of our natural resources.

Involves keeping things clean

This important phase of home improvement involves, essentially, keeping the home and its grounds clean; abjuring the use of pollutants and nondegradable materials, collecting recyclables, such as glass bottles, aluminum cans, all manner of paper, for delivery to services set up for this purpose in the community.

It also involves avoiding wasteful use of electricity and gas, among other things. And all of this serves to create savings for the family.

The home improvement action is moving strongly also into the area of apartments—especially condominiums, and in some instances into cooperatives, where owner permission is given. It is possible for occupants to make themselves more comfortable by taking advantage of the many ingenious ways for making their apartments more liveable, more efficient.

Do it yourself

The traditional pride of home owners and the new imperatives of modern living are expected to send the total annual volume of dollar demand for the necessary materials, tools and professional services to a new historic high this year — now estimated at more than $17 billion.

A marked increase in the do-it-yourself capabilities of people, both men and women, nurtured by availability of tools designed specially for them, and materials that also are designed for ease of manipulation, help them make their home improvement dollars go farther.

There are several areas, however, in which even the most accomplished of the do-it-yourselfers would do better for themselves by calling on the professional for expert help.

These, of course, include anything involving electrical wiring, plumbing and the addition of a room or two or major structural changes in the home.

Practically everywhere, these types of home improvements, involving safety and health, are subject to local government inspection.

Outdoors also

Home improvements are by no means to be confined to the interior of the home. In addition to modern new sidings, a new roof where needed, there's the landscaping of the grounds on which the home stands, about which home owners should be concerned.

And here is another one of the home improvements that can contribute to improving the ecology of the immediate environment in which the family lives.

Trees and shrubbery can do more than enhance the appearance of the grounds. Their proper placement and nurture can help sweeten and purify the air in which the family lives.

Inducing neighbors to plant selectively can not only multiply the improvement in the beneficial effects of greenery for all concerned.

Do a check-up

While most experienced home owners are by this time well aware of what needs to be done to repair and improve their homes, even the most knowledgeable can profit from an indoor-outdoor check-up of their properties, to make sure liveability and value are both enhanced.

Financing home improvements need be no problem. Commercial banks, and in some instances savings and loan companies, can help you.

So why not a thoughtful family conference — one that will give the kids as well as mom and dad a chance to have their say.

Make your indoors check, room by room, your outdoor check by a family stroll around the grounds.

Recessed ceiling fixtures are one of the most effective ways to improve lighting in the kitchen, cast no shadows over work area in grouped together.

Remodeling kitchen? Keep it beautiful

The Kitchen. That's where the action is. So it generally gets top priority when home improvements are planned. And once improvements are made, whether they're structural or simply the installation of modern appliances, you'll want to maintain that new look for as long as possible. Years, hopefully.

One way to help maintain it is through your choice of cleaners. You'll want one that can be relied on not to scratch surfaces. According to a recent issue of Consumer Reports, "Over a period of months or years, whatever you clean regularly with scouring powders will be noticeably the worse for wear." Scratched surfaces grow rough, catch and hold dirt, so in addition to looking unsightly, become more and more difficult to clean.

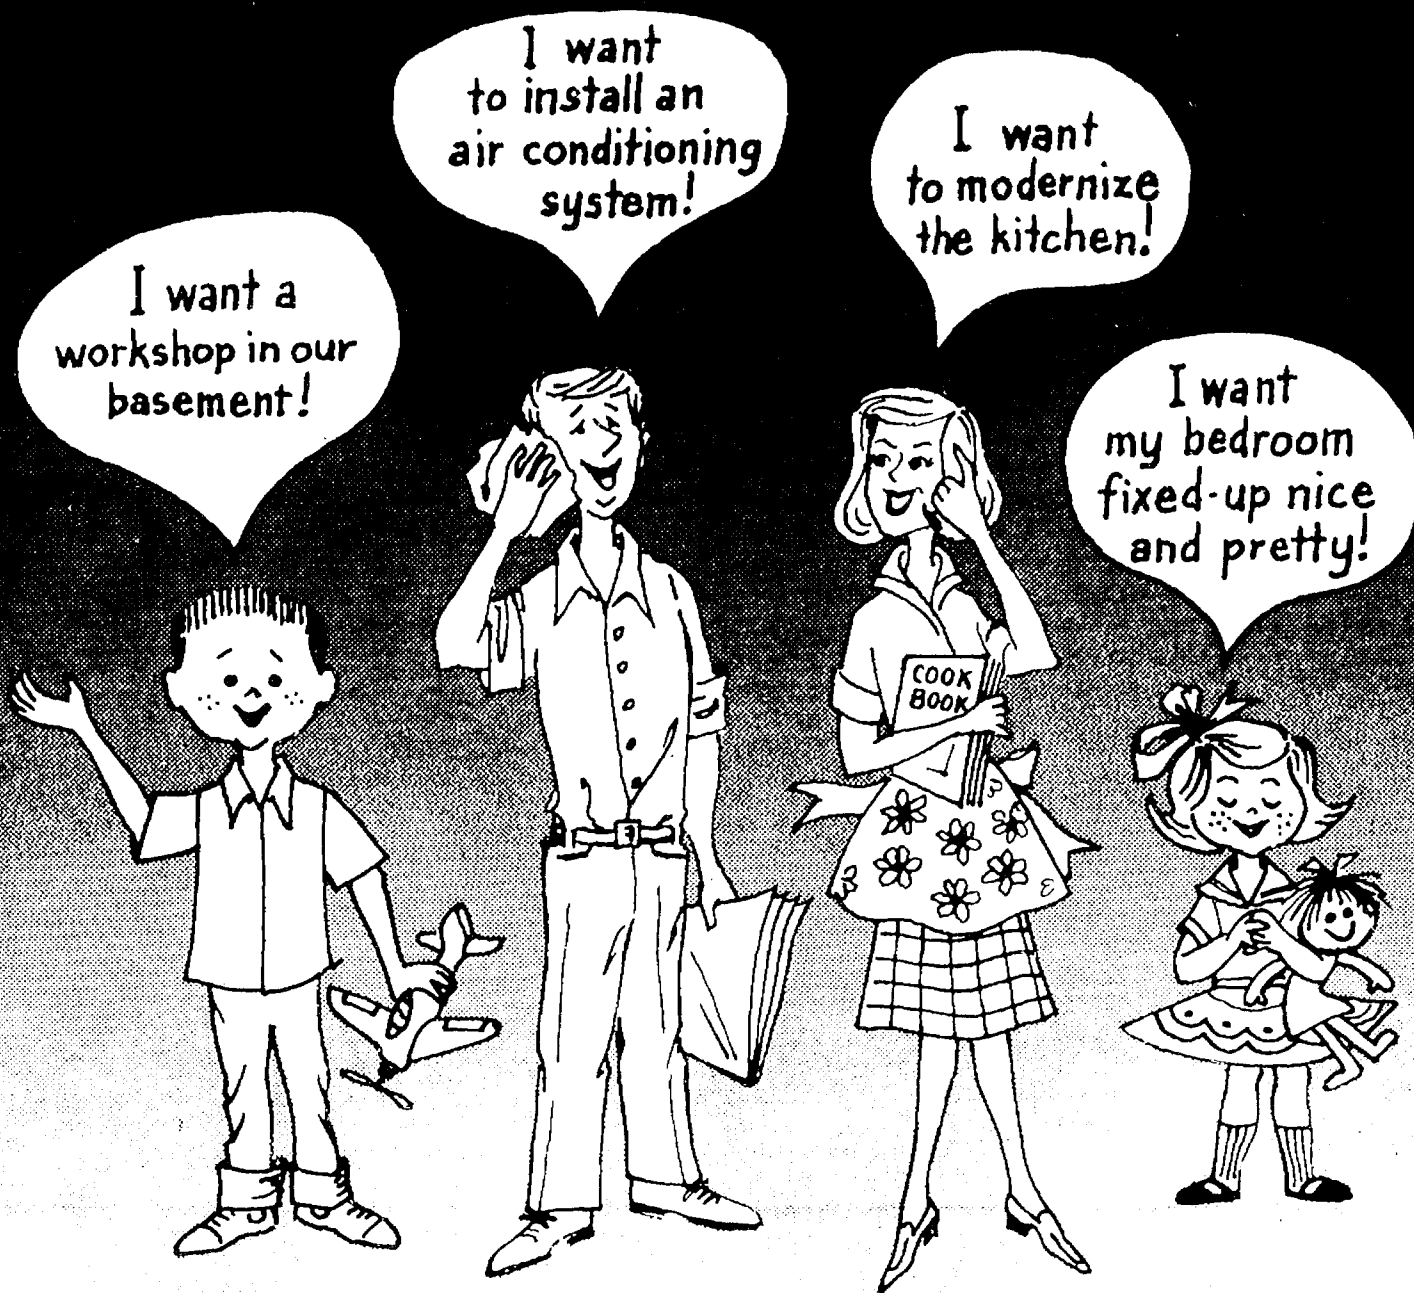

One product that can be counted on not to scratch, whether it's the enamel surface of your stove, the plastic interior of the refrigerator, the stainless steel work surface, the wooden butcher's block or the porcelain sink, is baking soda.

And to the safety conscious there's a sense of security that goes with using baking soda on areas that come in contact with food. Baking soda is a pure natural product... a cooking ingredient. It has found favor among the ecology conscious too, for it's free of phosphates and therefore safe for our waters.

Add one more plus for this safe, scratchless cleanser. It removes odors at their source rather than masking them with a fragrance. Try it on that new butcher block after you've chopped onions and garlic. There won't be a trace of a smell.

For barbeque

Furniture styling comes to outdoor cooking with introduction of a redwood barbeque wagon by Weber-Stephens. Called the Sequoia, the wagon has an early American cabinet wrought iron hinges and handles and, for modern mobility, eight-inch rubber heels. The Sequoia's Weber covered barbeque kettle has lifetime porcelain finish, cooks with reflected heat.

Acoustical tile absorbs noise better than earplugs

Engineers measure sound intensity in decibels, and in a room with many flat surfaces, decibels can bounce loudly back-and-forth like a rubber ball.

Some kitchens, for example, are similar to the cockpit of an old DC 3 airplane in noise level — enough to drive you bananas, not to eating them.

Much of this sound — up to 70 per cent of it — can be absorbed by installing an acoustical ceiling in the room, according to Douglas L. Odell, national manager for Sears, Roebuck and Co. building materials.

Acoustical ceiling tiles or panels, made of wood fibers, are flame-resistant and easy to keep clean by wiping them occasionally with a damp cloth. And, if the decorating scheme changes, they can be painted to match without destroying the sound control properties.

The same acoustical and maintenance qualities exist with other kinds of tiles, such as fiber glass and aluminum-covered types. Tiles generally have a rating number for acoustical properties.

"Acoustical ceiling tile can be installed on furring strips under an old ceiling. If the old ceiling is level and true and in good condition, the new tiles can be installed directly on the surface with adhesive," Odell said. "Or, if a lowered ceiling is desired for that cozy look — or for hiding ceiling pipes — a suspended ceiling system could be the proper choice."

In measurement and layout for the installation project, find the center of the room; then snap a chalk line both ways — length and width. Measure the lines along the length and width and mark them off with the number of the whole tiles that will go along each line. If six inches or more is left over (or half the tile), adjust the tiles from the market line. A left-over space of less than six inches will result in a narrow row of tiles near the wall. To avoid this, mark a new line six inches from the center line and work from this measurement.

A razor knife cuts tiles to be fit around pipes, lighting fixtures and duct. If the ceiling has fluorescent lighting, be sure to arrange the center measurement line so the lights fall between two rows of tiles. This may require aligning the lights slightly, since the tiles should fit parallel to them.

Cove molding — or most any decorative molding — around the edges of the room where the tile meets the walls, completes the tiling job. Be sure to refinish the molding before installing it. Nail holes can be filled with dabs of wood putty or stick filler and lightly touched up with the finish you choose.

Most building material departments have understandable do-it-yourself instructions for installing acoustical tiles, Odell said.

New gloss latex paint fast, easy

Touch up jobs or full scale paint projects call for the new gloss latex paints for exterior use.

These 100 per cent-acrylic emulsion enamels are recommended for enhancing doors, window frames, shutters and a variety of outdoor objects. Acrylic latex enamels may be used to cover a variety of surfaces including wood, stucco and brick. They can be applied quickly with brush, roller or spray and clean-up is easy with ordinary soap and water.

These exterior paints are now available in a full range of coordinated colors from a number of manufactures.

Utilitarian, eye-pleasing

Laundry center handy

If home remodeling is on the schedule, due consideration should be given to the laundry area. In or near the kitchen seems to be the odds-on favorite location since the homemaker spends most of her time in meal preparation.

A bit of extra attention in advance of remodeling can provide for a truly utilitarian laundry that will also please the eye.

An average homemaker with two children will do as many as eight loads of washing per week. Washing and drying is not all the laundry room should be equipped to do, however. Clothes need ironing and occasional repairing. It's more practical to include a sewing center and an ironing board right in the laundry room. The sewing machine can be built into the counter top, so that when extra space is needed for cutting out garments or folding clothing, the sewing machine folds away into the counter.

An ironing board is easily stored in a tall cabinet at one end of the laundry area.

According to Elkay Manufacturing Company, world's largest manufacturer of stainless steel sinks, special attention should be given to the choice of a sink. For the hard usage required in the laundry area they suggest stainless steel sinks shining and attractive, they require very little upkeep. Because of the special properties of stainless, they don't chip and are impervious to stains — even when used to dye garments.

If the laundry room is located near the back door, children can use it as a clean-up area. It can also double as a mud room where boots are shed and dirty hands and sneakers can be washed.

For the woman who indulges in arts and crafts projects, the sink acts as a clean-up center where hands can be cleaned and brushes washed. Since most cleaning supplies will be stored in the laundry area, the sink automatically becomes the place where dust mops pails and sponges are rinsed or washed before putting away.

The laundry area can be one of the handiest places in the household if the time is taken during planning stages to design it for maximum efficiency.

New flooring can give that total decorator look

Outside of a new dress, the surest way to lift female spirits is the prospect of redecorating. Whether finding a unique use for Aunt Sophie's dollies or literally raising the roof for an extra room, the lady of the house enjoys a change of pace.

Without totally refurnishing, papering or painting, you can often achieve that "total decorator look" with the installation of a new floor covering. And, if you choose from the new breed of resilient floorings, there'll be added spring to your step.

Cushioned for maximum comfort, and made for minimum maintenance, sheet vinyl flooring is an asset anywhere in the home from the children's playroom to the elegant entry. Quality, cleanliness and continued beauty of resilient sheet vinyl is insured by the nature of the wear surface.

Because of the clear, non-porous vinyl layer which GAF Corporation applies to its sheet vinyl flooring, waxing for floor protection is virtually obsolete. Whether the guests track in sand from the beach or gravel from the driveway, the dirt and grime remains on top of the wear layer and is easily removed with a hand brush or electric broom. Qualities such as these make cushioned sheet vinyl flooring ideal for frequented rooms such as the kitchen, dining area or den.

If you're concerned about excess noise generated by over-exuberant children, there's a deep cushion of vinyl foam beneath the wear layer on the sheet vinyl flooring which will even help to deaden the strains of a transistor radio. This foam interlayer also provides additional insulation against drafts and cold when children lie or sit on the floor as they often do. And, if it's open season for barefeet in your house year-round, the whole family will appreciate the added warmth of a floor of cushioned sheet vinyl.

If you imagine GAF Corporation constructing its sheet vinyl flooring like a sandwich, with all the good things inside, a clear image of the product and its qualities will emerge. A moisture-resistant backing, the first slice of "bread," gives stability to the floor covering. Next, they add a "filling" of soft, resilient, vinyl foam, imprinted with a high fashion pattern. Last, but not least, a clear, nonporous surface of unfilled vinyl tops off the "sandwich" and keeps the cushioned sheet vinyl floor bought today, fresh for tomorrow.

Color makes world go'round

Colors affect one another. A near neutral will appear to change color depending on the colors adjacent to it. For example, green will appear more blue when compared with yellow.

Light also affects the appearance of color: sunlight, lamplight and fluorescent light will all affect color. If possible, select colors in the light in which they will be used.

A pale pastel in a large room would look washed out while a bright color, such as red, could prove to be unbearable in a small one.

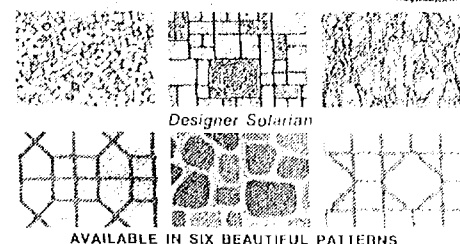

Taking these various factors into consideration when buying paint can result in fewer disappointments in color selections. Colors on sample cards seldom vary from the paint itself. Manufacturers take great care to assure this.

Three shelves on corner walls are versatile and effective in breaking up bland expanse of wall space, serve to set off decorator objects used to add allure and luster to any room.

Change wall into backdrop

Shelves problem solvers

The toughest challenge when redecorating is to turn a huge wall into an effective and decorative backdrop. Your furniture and how you use your room almost dictates the floor plan, but walls are another thing. And there are four of them for every floor area requiring vertical space planning.

The most difficult walls are windowless ones, or without fireplace or beams to lead the way — a huge expanse of unrelieved wall space. How to make them interesting and decorative is the challenge. Many choose wallpaper which introduces pattern but with a large wall, the design of the paper can take over. One of the best solutions is to use a mixed bag of tricks. A darker color of paint shrinks the wall, bringing it optically down to size. The next step is to break up the space with various decorative elements. For instance, shelves.

There are many types on the market from the well known systems to the little specials from your local lumber yard or glass cutter. Syroco, a firm widely known for its range of wall accessories and SyrocoArt, now is offering solid oak shelves with decorative brackets in both formal and informal styles.

Shelves of course are not just confined as a vertical space user or decorative ploy. They work well all over the house. In the kitchen they hold cookbooks and can support a bulletin board message center. A pair of three foot Syroco shelves hung side by side in the dining room or small dining "L" can serve as a sideboard service area. Ideal for newlyweds, a pair of shelves can act as night stands while waiting to afford the "big" pieces.

Groupings of shelves interspersed with pictures and personal accessories often offer the most versatile answer for almost any type of room. In doing these wall arrangements, it is best to try laying them out first on paper in sketch form. It's done much the same as a floor plan with graph paper measured out to represent the dimensions of the wall. Then sketch in some of the accessories which you have or would want. Be sure to sketch in the furniture that goes against the wall, otherwise good balance can't be achieved.

Another very good method, and not necessarily instead of the sketches, is to lay the shelves and accessories in the planned groupings right out on the floor. This can save both time and labor, and gives room for experimentation. "Instant Groupings" can be formed and mistakes avoided before the first nail goes into the wall. One warning: don't overcrowd!

Make room for music in the home

Your children will enjoy music if they have a room outfitted for this special purpose, and time spent on practice sessions will probably go up sharply.

These are the findings of educational consultants to Hammond Organ Company, the nation's largest manufacturer of electronic organs.

Remodeling plans don't have to be elaborate, they say, to make any room into a beautiful musical setting.

Sound is the key, of course, and installing handsome, acoustical tile may well be a starting point toward remodeling. Wallpaper featuring designs of musical notes, drawings of famous composers or musicians, or a mountage of instruments will add a lively music hall atmosphere. Folding plastic doors will help control the melodies coming from the room, so Grandpa can still hear the evening TV news.

Furniture is the next key item and almost any room in the house can be converted into a music room with the addition of a musical instrument — if it has a handsome, modern look.

One of the newest and most versatile instruments on the market is the Piper Autochord, a keyboard instrument recently introduced by Hammond. The Piper is styled in a contemporary case — with hand-rubbed walnut wood finish, accented in chrome and ebony — that lends itself to almost any room setting.

But the fun of the instrument is in the playing, and the excitement of the organ is what's inside.

Designed for the non-musical person or family who would like to play an instrument but doesn't have the time for daily practice, the Piper is so easy to play that one can turn out an accomplished combo-like sound after a half-hour "jam session" on the instrument.

The instrument features a number of short cuts to easy playing, such as an automatic accompaniment for the left hand that plays rhythmically with a phantom bass when the chord keys are played and held down. An automatic rhythm section provides a constant latin, western, parade, jazz, rock, ballad, or waltz rhythm. Voicings or tones include the newest sounds around, from guitar to banjo to muted "wa-wa" trumpet. Unlike an organ, there are no foot pedals.

If you don't want to do a lot of remodeling, the organ will fit neatly into an unused corner of the family room or "rec" room. It can even be put into the family station wagon to take along to the summer cottage for weekend musical fun.

An instrument the entire family can play and enjoy, the Piper should be where the living is, even if that's not the living room. And, if you do add your own music room, you'll know you've followed a "sound" approach.

Hammond Organ Company, Chicago, is a subsidiary of Hammond Corporation.

Planning to add on to home?

The rambler style house is one of the easiest and least expensive houses to remodel.

Chances are that the owners of a soundly constructed rambler house can add a room to provide desirable living space and increase the value of their property by as much as, or more than, the cost of the remodeling project involved.

The design of the typical rambler home provides flexibility in floor plan and the simplicity of its rectangular shape permits a variety of exterior alterations.

The structural shell of the one-story rambler involves relatively simple carpentry and alterations can be accomplished with equally straight-forward and inexpensive building methods.

Split-level homes present a few more problems than the rambler or bungalow style residence in remodeling but the possibilities of adding space are just as great, and the design potential may be even greater.

A good rule to follow is to keep the addition at grade level for an obvious reason: it cost less to build on the ground than it does to build on a platform.

However, if a post-supported second level room is added, there is the possibility of creating a carport and sheltered patio under it.

If all three are desirable, then it would best to build high instead of low.

The split-level can take a 16 by 20 room addition very well, providing it is carefully thought out.

The first consideration should be traffic patterns in your home; a split-level house usually has a more sophisticated traffic flow than other homes, and care should be taken to maintain the traffic pattern.

Whatever you do, plan carefully to get the most room for your budget.

Flexible house for modest budget

By ANDY LANG

Economy and flexibility are effectively combined in this small Colonial. Essentially a two-bedroom house, it was designed for those who like the extra living space of an expansion floor but also have an affection for the outward appearance of a ranch.

The small family — a young husband and wife with one or two children, or perhaps a retirement couple — need only utilize the first floor's 1167 square feet of habitable area. In addition to the two bedrooms, the owners would have a living room, dining room, kitchen, bathroom, a one-car garage and, behind the garage, a porch that could be left as is or enclosed to make a den or family room — all within overall dimensions of 38' 6" by 36' 2", including the garage and porch.

For the family that required two extra bedrooms, the upstairs area could be finished into two bedrooms and a bath as shown in the plans of architect William G. Chirgottis. Even if this were not done during the original construction, the need for use of the expansion floor might arise at some later time.

The living room, to the right of the entrance hall, is 20' long, a good size for this type of room in a small house. A picture window adds to the appearance both from the inside and the outside. The dining room, accessible from both the living room and the kitchen, has a window looking out to the rear.

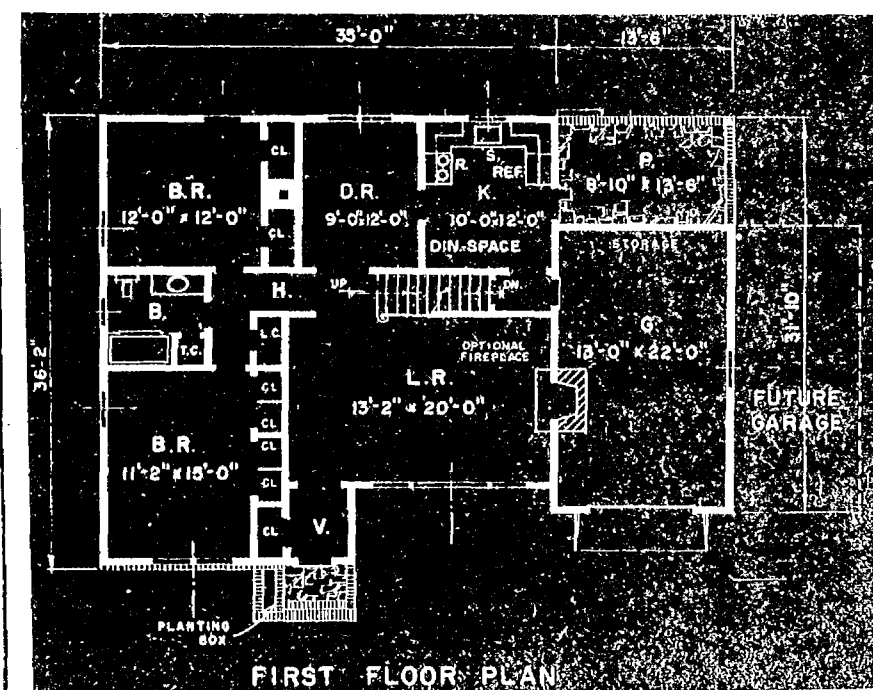

Also to the rear is the step-saving U-shaped kitchen, with a full complement of appliances, a large countertop area and a maximum number of cabinets in a minimum amount of space. Just off the kitchen is a porch, an ideal location for serving refreshments or quick snacks. This is the area that could be made into a den, a family room or whatever. In front of the porch is a one-car garage which, of course, could be expanded to take care of two autos if desired and the land were available. As a matter of fact, the reverse is also true. A family that wanted to cut down on construction costs could substitute a carport for the garage.

Both main floor bedrooms are at the left side of the house. Each has ample closet space. The sizable bathroom is strategically located between the two rooms.

Plans for the upper floor include two bedrooms, one of which is 13' 6" long, a large bath and generous closet and storage space.

The exterior is traditional in character except for the picture window. Wood shingles, brick veneer, bush boarding and conventional gables give it a homey appearance.

Burglaries more frequent

Home burglar alarms practical investment

Now that home improvement time has rolled around once again, increasing numbers of homeowners will be adding extra rooms, replacing weather-worn siding and trim, and sprucing up dull interiors with fresh paint and wallpaper.

For many wise homeowners, home improvement time will also be the time to add an effective burglar alarm system. With intrusions and burglaries becoming more frequent, a quality alarm system is a practical investment that can pay off in added protection and peace of mind.

Home burglar alarm systems are available in a wide range of types and in a price scale that generally conforms to the quality and performance of the individual systems. Installations can range from a simple appliance-type alarm, which can be installed directly by the homeowner, to a professionally installed home security system that is custom-tailored to the needs of a specific home.

Among the latter systems are complete burglar alarm installations made by ADT, the nation's largest supplier of electric protection services.

An ADT home alarm system is based on a central control unit measuring about a foot square and designed for neat, flush mounting in a hallway, near a door, or in some other convenient spot. To this control, any number of remote sensors may be connected.

These burglar alarm sensors can be magnetic contacts which tell when doors and windows have been opened, sensitive floor mats which are hidden under carpets to detect the pressure of footsteps or even advanced ultrasonic units that are capable of sensing any movement in their area of coverage.

In most cases, an installation in an average home can be completed within a short time, with little disruption of normal family routine. Wiring is concealed as far as possible, and all exposed sensor units for intrusion detection have a neat, inconspicuous appearance that blends effectively with surroundings.

For the homeowner seeking the best form of protection,

ADT offers central station security service in most areas of the country. For a monthly fee, the company will connect a home burglar or fire alarm system to one of its 132 central stations. Thus, if an intrusion occurs, a signal is automatically transmitted by leased line to an ADT central station which is manned 24-hours a day.

Operators at the station receive the signal, which is coded to indicate either fire or intrusion, and take immediate action to notify local police departments.

Compact panel mounted inside home and close to outside door, is easy control for temporarily deactivating home burglar alarm system.

Outdoor lights bright idea

A number of attractive outdoor lighting systems are on the market today ranging from the soft nostalgic glowing gas light for poolside and driveway to the high-watt crime-deterrent system for discouraging prowlers at night.

Flood lighted gardens and walkways provide "other rooms" for those families who entertain large groups.

The brightly illuminated garden and walkway become usable and safe long after sundown.

Landscaping will take on an almost fairy-like beauty with imaginative flood lighting. Thermostats will automatically turn the lights on and off at the hour you dictate relieving you of all worries about wasting electricity or gas.

Informal theme in contemporary ranch

By ANDY LANG

Exposed beams, following the roof line, increase the feeling of spaciousness in this stylish, L-shaped, three-bedroom, 2½-bath ranch house of contemporary design. A cathedral ceiling in the entrance foyer living room area adds height to the rooms.

Although other materials could be substituted for the exterior, the plans call for 1" by 6" rough-sawn, bleached, red cedar vertical V-joint siding, with two interesting brick "privacy" walls. The low-pitched white gravel asphalt-shingled roof is specified for its reflecting and insulating value. There is a partial basement under the family room, kitchen and dining room. It is accessible from the garage, the laundry and the outside. The balance of the plan is constructed over a three-foot ventilated and insulated crawl space.

All parts of the design radiate from the main foyer which is 16' long and makes a nice reception area. Straight ahead is the living room with its floor-to-ceiling sectional windows and bottom-ventilating louvered sash. The dining room also adjoins the foyer and is next to the kitchen for convenient serving.

The three bedrooms are nicely arranged, with excellent ventilation and just enough of a hall to permit easy circulation. The master bedroom has a walk-in closet almost 8' deep and a full bath, including an oversized tiled stall shower and a full-length mirrored vanity. The main bath is compartmentalized and within a few steps of the two bedrooms and the living sections of the house.

For informal entertaining, the family room has all the necessary attributes: accessibility to the kitchen, a fireplace, wood-paneled sidewalls, and open-beamed ceiling and floor-to-ceiling glass doors that lead to the outdoor sitting and recreation area. Note, too, that unlike most family rooms, it has two spacious closets. The family room is well located to keep other parts of the house free from traffic. And its proximity to the kitchen makes it convenient for the person who does the serving.

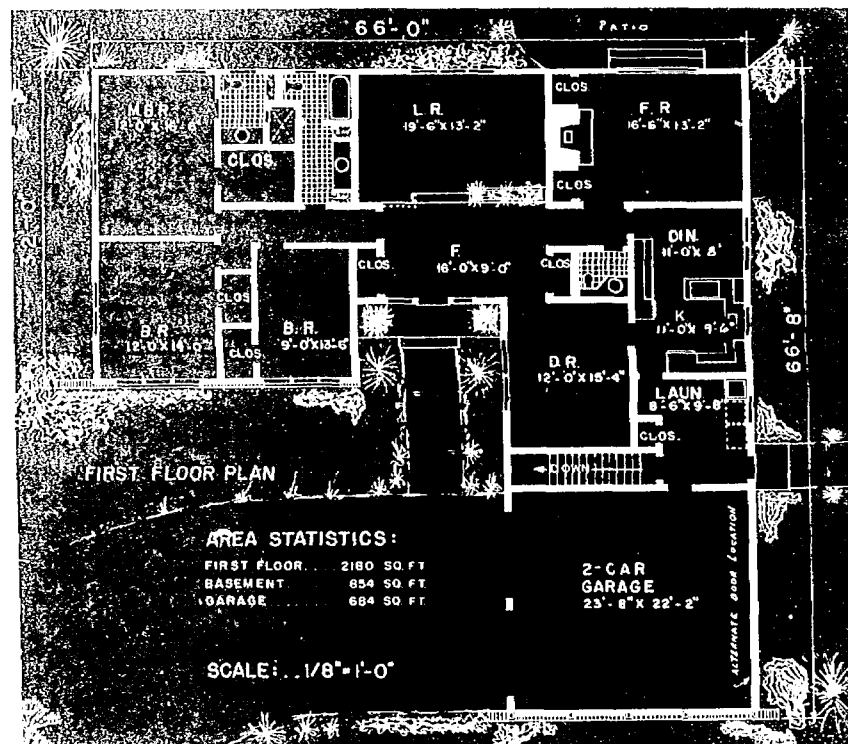

The oversized two-car garage connects directly with the laundry room. Depending on personal preference or lot width, the garage doors may be located at the front rather than as shown in the plans. Space is available for garden tools, lawn chairs, toys and other equipment. The laundry room to the right of the kitchen has access to the outside as well as to the garage.

The step-saving, U-shaped kitchen has a full complement of appliances, a large countertop area and a maximum number of cabinets in a minimum amount of space. The picture window in the dinette and the window over the kitchen sink assure plenty of light and air.

It is rare indeed when, as in this case, the lady of the house can move from the dining room to the kitchen, living room, dining room, laundry, family room or bedroom wing and never once set foot in any other room.

For those who are oriented to the convenience of one-level living and have the land which can handle this house, design Z-8 provides everything for modern comfortable living.

Stand-by home electric power timely idea

Experts agree there may never be another blackout like the one that hit the Northeast in November 1965, but production of electricity sometimes lags behind the rate of consumption. This is expected to produce blackouts, brownouts, and dimouts — regardless of the area in which you live, according to electric power officials. It will take years to correct this situation and its connected problems — including ecology.

When the power poops out, your appliances and some tools with motors are affected. This can be harmful, because the friction of the current on motor windings can generate heat, which breaks down the insulation of motors. Overheating then causes damage to the motors and may burn them out.

Some appliances, such as air conditioners and refrigerator units, come equipped with a device that shuts them down when they overheat. Many of today's homes also have circuit breakers that snap open when a power emergency arises. But this on-off action can soon cause damage to the insulation on the wires and windings, as well as special heat-sensing switches and starting capacitors.

A practical answer to the power shortage is an emergency standby power unit. Less than $300 will buy a 2,000-watt system that will supply power for the lights, radio, freezer, small window air conditioner or furnace, and sump pump. The units operate on gasoline, liquid petroleum or natural gas. The systems range from 1,100 to 5,000 watts of output to meet your household needs.

Intermittent-use power units are designed for partial or full loads of power for interrupted periods of time. Wattage runs from 1,100 to 5,000; features include oversize mufflers for noise control, constant voltage regulation, overload protection, extra starting power.

With standby power, you also need a transfer switch. It costs about $50. The switch prevents power from your generator from seeping back into the highline.

To determine the type of equipment you need, according to Sears, Roebuck and Co., first figure out what you want to keep running when the juice tapers off. List the starting watts for all appliances you want in service, such as refrigerator, freezer and furnace. Each is tagged with this information. Then list the operating watts of all lights. This information is printed on the light bulbs.

Now, total up the wattage you need to determine the size of standby power equipment you should buy. Leave some margin for the appliances you might add later.

peres and not wattage. To find out the wattage, simply multiply the amperes and volts.

If your home is on a 230-volt power system, Sears suggests at least a 3,000-watt standby unit to run the lights, freezer, deepwell water pump, sump pump, and one or two window air conditioners.

Choice of cabinets

When it comes to the carpentry of your kitchen, you have a wide choice of manufactured wood cabinets, steel cabinets, or local custom-made cabinets. Similarly, you have a choice of pre-fabricated or locally built counter tops.

FRIENDLY AND COZY: The charm of this L-shaped ranch lies, to a large degree, in its lack of pretentiousness. Constructed of two rectangles and without exterior frills, it nevertheless imparts a feeling of warmth and hospitality.

Simple construction in L-shaped ranch

Farmlike in its simplicity, this L-shaped ranch exudes charm and friendliness. But the house has more than pleasant aesthetics. It is functional in layout, simple in construction and economical to build.

The three-bedroom dwelling has a habitable area of 1450 square feet within basic dimensions of 41' 8" by 52', with the frontage increased to 60' 10" by the two-car garage. Architect Samuel Paul has placed a covered porch at the rear to add livability during pleasant weather.

The entrance court which leads to the front door is at the angled part of the L. A central foyer permits easy movement to all the rooms: living room, dining room, kitchen-family room and the bedroom wing. Off the foyer are two large closets which separate it from the dining room.

Approaching the living room, the eye is caught by a corner stone fireplace diagonally opposite, which can also be viewed from the dining room. The exposed beam ceiling in the living room reflects the farmhouse quality of the exterior.

The dining room, although a completely separate room entered from the foyer, has one side fully open to the living room, creating a feeling of spaciousness. A window looks out on the covered rear porch.

The large kitchen-family room combination has three exposures. The kitchen portion toward the front of the house commands a view of anyone coming to the front door. It contains all the latest in equipment, including a wall oven, dishwasher, large refrigerator, wall cabinets and base cabinets. Space is provided for informal dining in the kitchen area. The family room section is to the rear. The large covered porch flanks the living room and family room, with easy access from each area. It features an outdoor barbecue. Off the family room and adjacent to the two-car garage is a stair leading to the basement. The stair is also convenient directly from the outdoors. The full basement includes a laundry room, heater and ample storage.

At the front of the house, the bedroom wing has three bedrooms, two of which have double exposures. This area is reached by an offset hall which gives privacy to each bedroom. The master bedroom suite includes a bathroom equipped with a shower stall, vanity and water closet. The main bath has a double basin, large medicine closet, built-in tub and water closet. An abundance of closets and windows is part of the ensemble.

The arrangement of two simple rectangles results in economical construction. Stock-sized lumber is used for a minimum of waste. The roofline is accentuated by extended overhangs over the garage, giving variety and interest. The vertical siding, fascia and eaves have the natural rich color of redwood, counterpointed against stone veneer.

First aid kits vital equipment

An important part of any home improvement should be safety. In addition to power tools, hand tools and other maintenance equipment, the well-equipped handyman should have a first aid kit available to cope with common injuries.

Statistically the average home is still the most accident-prone place in the nation. And it becomes even more dangerous when the home handyman begins do-it-yourself projects.

Accident prevention and first aid procedures should therefore be as much a part of the home remodeling project as the very plans for the ambitious undertaking.

Take it easy

When planning to prune your roses, remember that severe pruning tends to weaken the plant. The fewer leaves the plant has, according to nurseries, the less food it can manufacture using the energy from sunlight. Also, pruning away dormant wood eliminates food reserves.

Enhance yard with roses

A rose by any other name is still a rose. One of the special joys of springtime is watching flowers bloom in your own backyard.

Of all the flowers, roses furnish a wide variety of lures for pleasant effects. Roses are colorful. They span the spectrum from pure white to deep red velvet.

Check roof, most important part of home

If you stop to consider that a prime reason for building a home is to keep a roof over a family's head, it's a wonder why homeowners don't spend more time investigating the different types of roofing shingles available and the merits of each, especially heavyweight shingles. That's the opinion of Bob Deerfield, roofing products manager of the Building Products Division of GAF Corporation and a veteran of over 25 years in the roofing field.

From the standpoint of protection, Deerfield notes, the roof is the most important part of a home. Worn roofing or roofing selected for less than maximum weather resistance can permit a home to depreciate greatly in value by failing to provide adequate protection for the vital timbers. And repairing the damage caused by roof failure can be extremely costly — more costly than the price of a new roof itself.

So, if you're about to build a new home, take a good close look into the various roofing materials available and make sure your roof will provide the necessary protection. And if you're already a homeowner, check your roof periodically for bald spots, missing shingles, or areas where the roof looks shabby. In the case where the roof is beginning to show the signs of wear, remember that a new roof on an older home can add fresh beauty, as well as many years of weather protection. Considering this, a new roof is an inexpensive investment.

In either case, prospective or present homeowner, to get the most for your money, Deerfield recommends that you keep these points in mind:

First, choose a roofing material that will give maximum service and minimal maintenance. Heavy weight asphalt shingles, which weight 300 pounds or more per 100 square feet of room area, he points out, can provide extra features that many ordinary type shingles cannot match. Timberline shingles, for example, a line of 340 lb. heavy weight shingles from GAF Corporation, have the look of wood and are warranted to render maximum protection for 25 years without maintenance.

Second, use the roof to upgrade and individualize the home's exterior. It's the exterior that gives guests their first impression of your home so you might choose one of the many distinctive new colors available in heavyweight shingles that are designed to allow easy coordination of roof color with other exterior features and with the geographic surroundings. Timberline shingles, for example, offer such natural tone colors as charcoal blend, and redwood blend, as well as cedar, slate and heather blends.

Third, be sure the roofing is fire-resistant; it's essential to protection for your family and home. In addition, a fire-resistant rating may help lower your homeowners' insurance protection. All heavyweight shingles carry an Underwriters' Laboratories Class C fire-resistant label while some, such as GAF's Fire Guard shingles, even have a Class A rating for additional protection.

Fourth, if you live in a high wind area, be sure to consider wind-resistant roofing. This includes both interlocking shingles and the popular "self sealants" — shingles with a factory-applied adhesive that bonds each shingle to the one below to form what is, in effect, a one-piece roof. The adhesive on GAF's Sovereign heavyweight shingle line, for example, is activated by the sun after the roof has been installed so that no costly hand-cementing operation is required. A written wind warranty is included with this type of roof.

FIVE-BEDROOM COLONIAL has imposing appearance, with double chimneys, effective combination of wood and stone and an unusually long covered front porch, stretching from front entranceway past breezeway and across the two car garage.

Outdoor living stressed in colonial

By ANDY LANG
As land for housing becomes increasingly scarce, it becomes more and more important that outdoor living space be concentrated rather than dispersed.

In this two-story Colonial, designed for a large family, there are several spacious outdoor areas for relaxing, playing and dining. Yet all are within overall dimensions of 77'9" by 33'11", figures that also include the house and two-car garage.

Architect Rudolph A. Matern has accomplished this by extending the front porch 56', providing a large breezeway at the back of which is a terrace, placing a rear porch off the sunken family room, and giving the master bedroom on the second floor a separate porch. Plenty of space here for gracious outdoor living!

The sunken living room, nearly 22' long, is at the right of the entrance foyer. It has an attractive bow window facing the front and a log-burning fireplace, one of three in the house. The separate dining room, set in the rear right corner, is accessible from both the living room and the kitchen.

The latter has the usual complement of modern appliances, plus a breakfast bar and triple windows over the double sink. To the left of it is a laundry-mud room with a lavatory and a stall shower. This entire area can be reached from the foyer, the rear porch and the kitchen and is adjacent to the basement stairway.

To the left of the foyer is the family room, with a fireplace and its close relationship to the breezeway and the rear porch, having sliding glass doors leading to each of them. Just outside the doors to the porch is a built-in barbecue, which can be used from two sides.

There are five bedrooms on the second floor. Four of them are, well, bedrooms — each with a double closet. But the master bedroom is something else again. It has all the features most of us wish we had in our bedrooms, but don't — a fireplace, a dressing room, a private bath with stall shower, a porch reached through sliding glass doors, cross ventilation and plenty of space for almost any type of furniture arrangement, being more than 20' long. The other bathroom on the bedroom floor has dual lavatories and a closet of its own. There is another linen closet in the bedroom hall next to the stairway.

Outside, Design S-14 is traditional and impressive, with the second floor covering the main part of the house but not the breezeway and garage. The materials are well located for variety and have always been the choice of many... hand-split wood shingles, some boards and batlings and a bit of stone. The Dutch front door, the bow window and the cupola on the garage add to the pleasant appearance.

Taking steps makes it easy

Now is time to prepare your swimming pool

Remove protective winter covers from pool and equipment and sweep inside pool and surrounding areas. Inspect pool to determine if any cracking of walls or floors has occurred. And don't forget to examine all exposed valves, controls and pipes.

If all seems proper, turn on water to fill the pool. Again examine all valves, controls and pipes for leading. While pool is filling, check filtration equipment for operational readiness. Follow manufacturer's cleaning directions.

Proper pre-coating of filter elements with filter aid assures crystal clear water. This is done by circulating a mixture of diatomite and water into the filter to provide a coating about 1-16" thick on the elements. As filtration progresses, the improved clarity and sparkle of water will be amazing. Chlorination and addition of other chemicals or algicides is the next step. Now for the first dip... weather permitting.

Your own spa — beauty retreat

Once upon a time, a spa was a resort area near mineral springs — a watering place to which world-weary beauties would beat a regular retreat. Today the word "spa" still conjures up images of a beauty retreat — but it needn't be a formalized resort or beauty school. It might be as close as your own bath... a personal oasis of peace and quiet created by your hands, as a setting for your own beauty rituals.

How to transform the lowly bath into a lovely spa? Surround yourself with things that put you into a happy frame of mind. Select fresh flowered fabrics for curtains and towels. Tuck pots of ferns and trailing greenery into every corner. Place a favorite framed watercolor or small sculpture where you can see it while soaking in a perfumed tub. Have a speaker installed on the wall so that your favorite music can pour over you while you relax in serene luxury.

Then, when you're feeling thoroughly restored in both body and psyche, why not do a few isometric exercises right there? Stand up straight on the bathmat, and contract abdomen muscles — hold for a count of six, and relax. Stretch arms overhead and reach for the ceiling — one hand at a time — in time to the music. Bend forward at the waist until you feel the tingle of fresh blood rushing to your face; stay in that position long enough to give your hair a hundred fast brushing strokes. Now when you start to put on makeup, you'll see a fresh and glowing face reflected in your three-way mirror!

For an overall picture, you'll want a good full-length mirror on the door — also, an accurate set of scales on the floor. It's a good idea to keep a tape measure handy too, to see that you measure up to the new body-conscious clothes so important to the fashion scene for '71. Remember, it's easier and healthier to stay in shape than it is to change weight drastically several times a year. Slender diet food from Carnation is a great help here. One packet of this protein-packed powder mixed until frothy with 6 oz. of non-fat milk makes a delicious Beauty Spa Shake containing only 164 calories. Pour it into a faceted plastic tumbler (no breakable glass, please) and carry it into the spa with you, to sip while trying out a new hairdo, or reading in the tub.

What's cooking

Counterspace cooking, new concept from Corning, features four thermostatically-controlled cooking units. "Counter-range" and "Counter That Cooks" electric ranges provide even heating through direct contact. There are no coils burners or drip pans to be cleaned.

Tractor handles more than 40 yard tasks. With the variety of implements now available, as illustrated by the line of accessories, the lawn and garden tractor is as versatile as it is good-looking. Some with wide-oval tires, automatic transmission and other "status" extras.

Garden tractor's capability increases tool's popularity

Growing recognition of the lawn and garden tractor's versatility has contributed to an increase in its popularity.

Industry sales of lawn and garden tractors have increased from $35 million in 1962 to more than $250 million during the past year, according to figures disclosed by Sears, Roebuck and Co.

The small tractor's primary market is in suburbs or outlying areas, among homeowners with a half-acre or more of property. Persons with smaller acreage also account for a substantial number of sales, which the company attributes to the "prestige" factor of owning a yard tractor.

Designed for looks as well as performance, today's sleek, streamlined tractor can handle more than 40 yard tasks ranging from lawn mowing to snow removal. With the variety of implements now available, the unit also is used for cultivating, plowing, harrowing, spading, planting, grading, backing and filling, fertilizing, spraying, aerating, sweeping, hauling and lawn rolling.

This same versatility has extended the yard tractor's appeal beyond the homeowner's market to other areas requiring yard maintenance, including school grounds, airports, parking lots, nurseries and motels.

A wide selection of models, engines and optional attachments makes it possible to customize a tractor for special needs. Engines rated under 10 horsepower, for example, are adequate for lighter yard and garden jobs, while 10- to 12-horsepower engines are recommended for heavy-duty work.

Standard equipment often includes eight-speed transmissions, dual headlights, parking brakes, fuel gauges and spring-mounted, cushioned seats.

Some points to review

Plan to install link fencing?

While many homeowners who buy chain link fencing have plans to erect it themselves, the majority hire someone else to do it.

Only 15 per cent of chain link fence installations are done by the property owners themselves, according to industry-wide survey figures disclosed by Sears, Roebuck and Co.

"Homeowners choose chain link fencing," explains Wayne S. Mergott, national merchandise manager for Sears fencing lines, "because it's durable, it offers excellent protection and it increases property values. And to make the most of a long-term investment, they'd rather trust the installation job to qualified hands."

He recommends the following installation steps for chain link fencing:

— Make sure the desired locations of fence lines, gates and terminal posts don't exceed property boundaries. Then lay out the job, using offset stakes and stretch lines to determine locations of end, corner and gate posts. Plan to set posts at least six inches inside property boundary lines, to allow extra space for concrete foundations.

— In determining post locations, start with terminal posts, which are used at ends, gates and corners. Next, fix locations for line posts. Be sure gate posts are set for the actual opening.

Measure and mark posts with chalk to insure the proper length of post will extend above ground level when they are set in the ground. Terminal posts should be set so that the tops extend two inches above the fencing fabric. Line posts should be two inches below fabric height.

— Dig post holes wider at the bottom, in a bell-like shape, to prevent the possibility of posts dislodging from frost action. A concrete mixture of one part cement, two parts sand and four parts gravel should be used for footings.

— Set terminal posts first, and cap all post footings with rich cement mortar, crowned above the ground for water drainage.

— After posts are in and concrete has hardened, slip metal tension bands and brace bands onto the terminal bands, and then apply post caps. Put loop caps on the line posts, and connect them by threading the top rail horizontally from one loop to the next.

To install the chain link fencing fabric, unroll it along the fence line, and secure one end at the terminal post by threading the tension bar vertically through the end of the material and the tension bands.

— Tighten bolts on tension bands, and attach a stretcher bar at least two feet from the other end of the fabric. Support the fencing fabric with wire tied loosely to the top rail.

— Now attach a fence stretcher to the other terminal post and stretcher bar. Apply enough tension to make wires taut without distorting their diamond shapes, and cut the fabric to proper length. Thread another tension bar through the end of the fabric and tension bands, tighten tension band bolts and release tension on the fence stretcher.

After the entire fencing fabric has been installed, apply hinges to one of the gate posts, hanging the top hinge upside down so that the gate can't be lifted off. Loosen female hinges on the gate frame, and slip them onto male hinges attached to the post.

— Set hinges to allow for full swing of the gate, which usually is hung to swing into the fenced property. Tighten all hinges securely in final position, to help prevent the gate from sagging.

Toolshed gives way to building

That battered, wooden eyesore once known as the tool shed has given way to the lawn building. And the transition has been more than a matter of semantics.

It happened with the swing to backyard living. Lawn chairs, barbecue grills and badminton nets — the tools a family needs when it moves outside for the summer — required storage space. Logically, these items could have moved in with the lawn mowers, hedge trimmers and bags of fertilizer, but that would have meant carrying them to the weather-beaten tool shed behind the lilac bushes at the farthest corner of the yard.

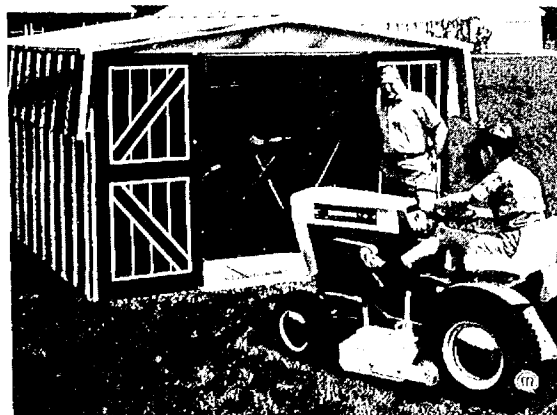

So the equipment was stashed in the garage, leaving little room for the family car.

The answer was a lawn building — big enough to provide all-weather security for an assortment of patio furniture, and attractive enough to command a position near the house.

Decorative colors and styles now available are illustrated in Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s line of lawn buildings. "The Biltmore" features skylight panels and an embossed wood-grain finish.

For families who prefer a rural look, there's the "Lexington" lawn building. Or the wood-grain, vinyl-finish "Woodridge" can accompany a traditional home. Another is a red-and-white, double-door replica of a barn.

Tractor-size lawn buildings also provide space to store recreation equipment, patio accessories and tools.

Vacuum cleaners better

Dirt remains the same though it comes in a greater variety today — but the conventional cleanup tools of yesterday have changed.

The evolution for some may call it revolution is reflected in development of the vacuum cleaner. Arriving on the scene in 1906, it offered homemakers a versatile replacement for the broom, dustpan, dust mop and feather duster in cleaning furniture, carpet and floors.

Improvements in vacuum design and performance features since the first upright model are recorded in the catalog pages of Sears, Roebuck and Co., which has sold approximately 20 million units over the years. A blower attachment model was introduced in 1912, followed by the first electric unit in 1916, the tank-type cleaner in 1939, the canister in 1953, a "whisper quiet" vacuum in 1962 and the built-in vacuum in 1965.

Newest vacuum in 1965.

DEAR ABBY

Wife May Play It Cool to Get Air Conditioner

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We live in Huntsville, Ala., where it's very hot and humid. My husband makes over $20,000 a year. We live in a $35,000 home. Have no debts. Our children are gone and on their own, and we have money in the bank. My complaint? My husband refuses to put an air conditioning in the house.

He works in air conditioning all day while I slave over cleaning, cooking, ironing, and nearly die of the heat. He says cheap air conditioning is too noisy, and good air conditioning is too expensive. How can I change his mind?

BURNING UP IN HUNTSVILLE

DEAR BURNING: The price of the finest air conditioning system available will look like peanuts compared to what your husband would have to lay out in doctor bills should you collapse from heat exhaustion. Make a little noise on your own, sister, and chill that man of yours until he thinks a North Dakota blizzard has gripped Huntsville. So air conditioning is too expensive? It's a lot cheaper than alimony.

ABBY

Thanks, Abby.

We couldn't have said it better. If you were burning up last summer in that home of yours, now is the time to do something about it. Remind your husband that he can Trane his red hot mama to be a cool chick with Trane Whole House Air Conditioning, installed by Charles J. Gordon Company.

And now is the time to have Chas. J. Gordon Co. install Trane Whole House Air Conditioning. Prices are lower, Gordon technicians are immediately available and you'll be ready for summer's first heat wave. Write or call now for a free, no obligation estimate.

TRADITIONAL COMFORT: The over-all impression of the exterior of this two-story house is one of solidity and comfortable living. Architectural lines create the illusion of width, although the frontage is only 45', enabling it to fit on a lot of modest size.

Not four, nor five- but six bedrooms!

Built in flexibility is the key feature of a traditional two-story house that equally meets the needs of a large family and a family that may become large.

The house has a six bedroom potential, aimed at the family which requires that much space. But until that time arrives, the floor plan allows the use of three of the bedrooms for other purposes. For instance, the room adjacent to the owners' bedroom will serve as a sitting room for TV or reading, creating a suite tied in to a sun deck and a private bath. This is made possible by a layout that permits an arch opening of 4' between the rooms or a full closed wall.

Another room with flexible possibilities on the second floor is what architect Herman H. York calls a studio bedroom, which can be used in as many ways as the owners' imagination permits. As a hobby or studio room, it is tucked away in one corner to give privacy to anyone looking for a chance to "get away" for a few hours. It even can be used as part of the owners' complex, as it connects conveniently with the sun deck just outside the sitting room.

A third room that can be considered part of the six bedroom arrangement is on the first floor at the left side of the house.

The house is a true center hall plan with a covered entry approach. A curved stair railing adds interest to a generous foyer with a coat closet nearby. The closet is in such a position that it can serve both the front door and garage entry in that area. There is a second entrance from the garage into the house. The second one leading into the service section. This dual entrance from the garage is unusual in single family house plans. Incidentally, a powder room just past the foyer is nicely situated to serve both the formal living areas as well as the kitchen.

The living room and the dining room, in line at the right side of the house, provide a vista of 33' and an exceptionally large area for entertaining. The kitchen, with all modern appliances and a dinette, is very spacious — 21' 8" in length.

The lower level at the front is brick, with design overtones of French Provincial. A second floor cantilever above the living room bay window creates a longer horizontal line that would normally be possible in a house 45' wide.

Sidewalls of vinyl for beauty

When thinking about improving your home, consider the exterior first. Too many times home exteriors are wrongfully overlooked for the more dramatic interior work.

It must be remembered that it is more than likely that unsightly interiors resulted from inadequate care given to the outside of the home.

Interior water damage can be prevented with care being given to the exterior. Consultation with a reliable home improvement contractor can lead to preserving the interior as well as the exterior of the home.

One of the new revelations in home exterior siding is solid vinyl siding.

Manufactured by Bird & Son, Inc., East Walpole, Mass., this siding is impervious to damaging weather conditions and the ravages of time.

Solid vinyl siding cannot rot, blister, peel or decay like wood, and never needs paint. The color of this new plastic siding material goes all the way through it. The siding comes in an array of colors most compatible to exterior decor: white, gray, green and yellow.

In addition to virtually eliminating maintenance and the need for outside painting, solid vinyl siding will not support of spread flame. It cannot conduct electricity and, thus, does not need to be grounded. Furthermore, it will not interfere with radio or television reception.

Vinyl is warm to the touch because of its being a very poor thermal conductor — the prime requirement for superior insulating materials. As an insulation, it minimizes heat penetration in summer and cold in winter. The siding also helps reduce the outside noise level in buildings.

Solid vinyl building products, because of their nature, are becoming the byword of leisure. Environmentalists say that the insulating properties and the very low maintenance feature of these products are giving homeowners a new dimension in living comfort and leisure hours.

In addition to sidings, there are also companion building products of solid vinyl which give the exterior of the home overall protection from damaging climatic conditions. These products of solid vinyl include gutters, downspouts, shutters, soffit and fascia systems and roof edgings.

The Bird & Son solid vinyl sidings and accessories have been approved for insured construction loans by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA).

Before the application of solid vinyl siding and trim accessories, homes require periodic painting and sometimes extensive maintenance. Exterior appearances become unsightly, shoddy and show evidence of needed repairs. Solid vinyl building products eliminate the need for further painting and maintenance and are manufactured by Bird & Son, Inc., East Walpole, Mass.

After the application of solid vinyl siding and trim accessories, and shutters, homes are restored to their original beauty; a beauty that will endure and require little or no maintenance. Bird & Son, Inc., East Walpole, Mass., are the manufacturers of solid vinyl sidings, shutters, rain-carrying systems, soffit systems, fascia panels and roof edgings.

Create 'quiet' house

Requirements to create a "quiet home" include: Tight construction of walls to prevent sound leaks; sealing or caulking of all electrical, plumbing and other sound penetrating installations; use of sound-conditioned doors; use of acoustical insulation board ceiling tile in kitchens, work rooms, family rooms and hallways.

To further reduce noises: Use of resilient mountings under noisy appliances; use of large piping or air charged cylinders to reduce water pressure noises; use of sound deadening materials around air conditioning units, disposers, heavy duty laundry equipment — are but a few more of the many available techniques.

Medical doctors, psychiatrists and other researchers are agreed that steps must be taken to alleviate the growing levels of "noise pollution".

Metal Wizz, an all-purpose snips by Wiss, is an ideal tool for the home handyman because it does so many jobs well — such as cutting wire, downspouts, plastics and a variety of materials used in repairs about the home.

Cutting tool tackles variety

Are you planning to take care of those three or four repair jobs around the house over the weekend, but figure you'll need that many different cutting tools to complete the chores?

No need to worry if you own a pair of Wiss "Metal Wizz" snips. With this multi-purpose utility cutting tool, you can tackle a variety of cutting jobs that might often be left to the professional.

Use this sturdy tool for cutting light wire, screening, floor tile, shingles, sheet metal, linoleum, baling wire, rubber or rope. Also great for cutting leather or canvas when recovering seat covers or chairs.

Its compound action and hardened tempered serrated blades which prevent slipping, make it a perfect tool for cutting downspouts, and in repairing leaders or gutters. It cuts straight or curved surfaces with comparable ease.

The hobbyist in the family will also appreciate Metal Wizz when creating tin-can art and metal wall sculptures that is the popular craft today for decorating a den or family room.

Tin-plated steel and galvanized wire, used extensively in these hobbies, are cut easily with these versatile shears. Having an overall length of nine inches, the snips make a cut of one and three-eighths inches long.

Fitted with comfortable vinyl grips, the tool features a handy thumb operated latch. Moderately priced, the product is available at home improvement centers and hardware stores everywhere.

In addition to maintenance work around the home, the Wiss snips is recommended for use in mail and shipping rooms for cutting wire and metal bands around boxes and cartons, and for use on the farm for cutting barbed wire and baling wire.

And now roofs in natural colors

Emphasis today is on the environment; even natural roof colors are coming up in the world. A recent nationwide survey of homeowners showed that "earthtone" has moved up to number three among the most popular colors for roofing.

What is "earthtone"? It's not one single color. Rather, it's any of the muted tones of nature — soft greens, red-browns, woodtones, beiges and silver-grays. And how do you acquire an earthtone roof to blend with the landscape around your home?

Visit a local building supply center or talk with a reputable roofing contractor about the new heavyweight asphalt shingles. He can help you with color selection. But first decide if you need a new roof on your house.

Check the old roof for worn spots, splitting, curling, cracking, and for leaks that leave stains in the attic and on walls and ceilings. Any of these symptoms is an invitation to re-roof with attractive new shingles.

For colors, texture, and durability, heavyweight asphalt shingles are recommended. "Heavyweights" are more massive than standard shingles; they weigh 290 pounds or more, instead of the standard 235 pounds per 100 square feet of applied roofing area, and are designed to last up to 25 years.

Heavyweight come in a variety of popular earthtone colors. To add to their natural look, many asphalt shingles are richly textured and have thick butt edges, some with a random effect. Their greater mass gives them both the look and the performance of quality roofing. Their many years of service makes their purchase price, which is lower than most quality roofing, even more of a bargain.

Heavyweight asphalt shingles bear the Underwriters' Laboratories Class C or better fire resistant label. Self-sealing heavyweights bear the UL wind-resistant label. Asphalt shingles can be applied over most old roofing.

Dreams of better kitchen center around dishwasher

If you've been putting up with a less than ideal kitchen, there's never been a better time for making improvements. For never before has there been such a wide selection of easy-care materials for walls, floors, counters and cabinets.

But whether you might plan a total remodeling or just the addition of, or replacement of, some appliances, a good place to start is with the sink center and the addition of a dishwasher.

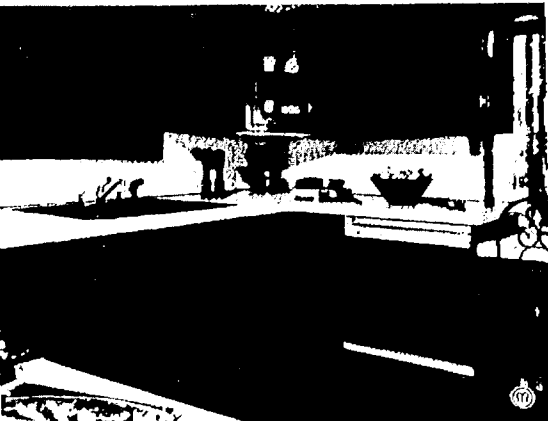

It's unbelievable what a difference a dishwasher makes — really more than any other kitchen appliance new models of ranges and refrigerators are a joy to use and their self-cleaning features do save time and energy on your part when cleaning is required.

However, the average kitchen generates a depressing amount of clutter every day, clutter that quickly disappears when a dishwasher is on hand to serve you.

All told, this mechanical maid can save you an hour or more a day, not to mention the boost it can give one's morale just because clutter doesn't happen — at least not in the kitchen!

Possibly you have already started collecting ideas for revamping the kitchen; magazines and newspapers are chock full of suggestions for arranging a kitchen and for utilizing existing space to best advantage. Many manufacturers also offer helpful information such as the new fully illustrated 32-page booklet Kitchen Ideas and Dishwasher Facts available for $1 from: Consumer Information Center, The Maytag Company, Newton Iowa 50208.

Careful planning is how a good kitchen happens! But no matter how long you expect to keep your home updating the kitchen is a good investment, especially if it's an older home.

Easy, fun-to-prepare meals start here in this remodeled kitchen with Mediterranean wood. And the cleanup comes just as easily with the aid of a built-in dishwasher, styled to match the cabinetry.

Not only does a modern kitchen make housework a lot easier but a convenient, pretty kitchen is a real plus if at some future time you must sell the home, often it can return full investment value when the home is sold.

Small remodeling projects frequently can be handled by the owner who is handy with tools. A good "do-it-yourself" for instance, can install a built-in dishwasher by the simple, fully illustrated instructions found in Maytag's Built-In Dishwasher Installation Guide, also available for $1 through the company's Consumer Information Center at the above address.

If, however, the remodeling involves the whole kitchen or calls for the work of several trades (carpenter, plumber, electrician), it would be wise to hire a kitchen specialist to help plan and oversee the project.

Dreams of a better kitchen turn into reality each year for thousands of housewives — why not for you? — by starting with a dishwasher.

Keeping noisy pipes quiet

Bothered by water hammer? If pipes slam or shudder when water is suddenly turned off, it may be because they have become lined up with hard water deposits.

There are anti-hammer, shock-absorbing devices which can be installed on these pipes. Or, relief can be gained by fastening pipes to supports more securely, particularly where pipe turns a corner.

Modest-sized lot can be utilized for construction of this three-bedroom, one-story house because rooms are not placed in long line. In L-shaped design, with side of garage facing the front, family room is set directly behind it next to kitchen.

Family room gets unusual location

By ANDY LANG

Normally, a house with as many rooms as this one is spread out, requiring a fairly large lot. But in this design, we find the garage and utility area tucked in front of the family room, reducing the overall frontage to 56'. Architect Herman H. York's placement of the family room in this location is somewhat unusual in a one-story house. Yet it is likely to be the favorite gathering place of the family, set strategically between the kitchen and covered porch on one side and the garage on the other. Also, it is directly off the entrance foyer. If it is desired to isolate the family room from the view of the foyer, it can be closed off by a pair of sliding pocket doors. Generally, though, the doors might be better left open, since there is an excellent view of the family room fireplace from the foyer.

A small snack bar in the kitchen faces the family room and thus can double as a counter for serving refreshments at party time. On the other side of the kitchen is the dining room, which is in an L-shaped relationship with the living room, providing an appearance of additional space and making an excellent arrangement for entertaining. Both these rooms, as well as the master bedroom, face the rear yard. An alcove for dressing and a vanity-topped lavatory are provided for the main bedrooms. One of the two closets in this bedroom is a walk-in. The alcove is best floored with wall-to-wall carpeting, carried through from the bedroom itself. One of the other two bedrooms has a closet 8' long. The hall bathroom has twin lavatories with a long vanity top. Besides a linen closet, storage space is available below the vanity in the bathroom as well as in the main bedroom's alcove vanity base. Getting back to the family room area, the adjoining laundry room has space for a washer and dryer, two closets, lavatory-toilet, a door to the outside and another to the garage. The latter, with a storage space for garden tools, can be made larger to accommodate one or more additional cars without affecting the architectural appearance of the elevation. There is a full basement under the house. The wall of the garage facing the front has been given an interesting and attractive off-center gable end. Combined with the covered portico, this softens the entrance area. Stone, wood shingles and vertical banded wood siding are effectively blended. Although it has a somewhat different floor layout, this house is soundly designed for practical living.

Build entertainment bar where action is

If you had a dime for every step you've taken between the kitchen and the room where you entertain guests you'd probably wind up very rich. But carting rounds of drinks and hors d'oeuvres between rooms only earns you some tired legs when you'd much rather shine.

There is step-saving convenience in an entertainment bar built into the living room. Your party supplies and equipment are all in one place and instantly locatable. You don't wear a path in your carpet with trips to the kitchen. And the host and hostess remain a member of the gathering and don't miss parts of the conversation.

If you have carpenters doing other remodeling get them to build you a living room entertainment center while they are around. Or buy a ready-made bar at your furniture store and use those finished plywood panels to construct an enclosed niche to give it that luxury, built-in look.

If plumbing costs don't frighten you the greatest convenience to have are a sink as well as a refrigerator built into the bar. Otherwise, invest in a big, foam-insulated hamper to keep mixers and soda cold, and a large and fancy ice bucket to be kept handy on the bar top.

There's a new gleaming ice bucket, for example, that is whimsically like a giant ice cube with ice tongs for a handle. Treat yourself to a set of matched bar gadgets in their own rack, a jigger, bar knife, etc. It's more fun fixing drinks with a status set of bar tools.

Check your liquor stock too. You should have on hand some fine, 101-proof Kentucky bourbon for the connoisseurs, such as Wild Turkey Bourbon; some Scotch, gin, rye or blended whiskey; and, perhaps some Polish vodka for the pleasure of having a short, cold, down-the-hatch quaff that tastes just like a very dry Martini.

Retire old bottles of liqueurs to the kitchen for cooking and fill in with fresh after-dinner cordials. And a sophisticated delight for guests who prefer low-proof spirits is a European aperitif like Campari, taken simply with ice and soda, or in the famous Americano cocktail.

Keep your cheese board, fondue pot, hors d'oeuvres trays and snack dishes stored together in the bar, along with cocktail napkins, toothpicks, coasters and small paper plates. There should be room for highball, old-fashioned, cocktail and liqueur glasses; for a cocktail shaker and mixing pitcher.

The pleasure of convivial cocktails before dinner shouldn't wear out the hosts before the evening has barely begun. A built-in bar adds personality to your room, and makes it easier for guests to help themselves if they wish. And the cost is repaid by the disappearance of all that between-room walking cocktails and canapés you used to require. The plus is the fun of relaxing with your guests.

Add on extra room

Two-story homes can often benefit from added space. Usually a new room in a two-story house is intended to function as a family room, or as a master bedroom that will free an upstairs bedroom for use as a playroom or recreation area for children.

The two-story home has some built-in structural advantages but can pose some knotty design problems.

Structurally, the two-story house can take a new room with minimum of complicated carpentry.

Explore heating

Before adding a new room to your home, find out how to heat it. In most cases, your existing heating plant has enough capacity to heat a 16x20 foot addition.

Do-it-yourselfers: Power in hand with electric tools

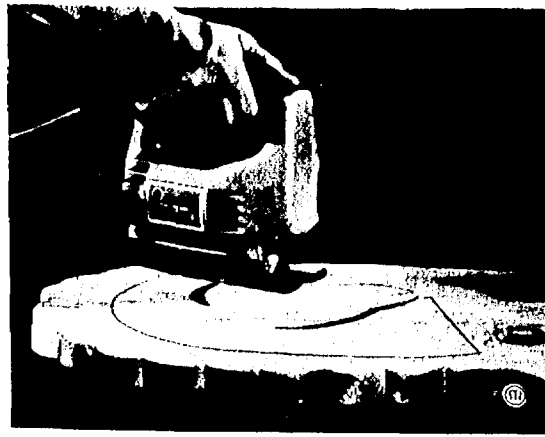

Since the first 1/4" drill was made especially for the home user by Black and Decker in 1916, the growing popularity of doing-it-yourself has been accelerated by ever increasing power tool values for the consumer. Unlike most items, the price of your power tools has steadily declined as the quality has become better and better.

According to the Power Tool Institute, approximately six million power tools were purchased in the United States in 1971. Available statistics show that 91 per cent of tool buyers are home owners and surprisingly enough 36 per cent are bought by women.

Electric drills are the top seller of all power tools. Back in 1916, the home drill was designed as a single-speed unit and sold for $16.95. That original price would be approximately $35.00 in terms of today's dollars. Today, a safer, more powerful and dependable unit costs under $8.00. Modern drills for home use are available in 1/4", 3/8", and 1/2" sizes.

Scrape, sand, polish. Options include double insulation, variable speed, and reversing action. With accessories, a drill can scrape, sand, polish, grind, stir paint, and tighten and loosen screws and bolts.

Jig saws are the second most popular power tool. In fact, about 72 per cent of all power tool owners have one. Currently jig saws are available in single, two and three speed models as well as variable-speed units. With a wide range of blades available, the jig saw can

The first jig saw for the home user was introduced by Black — Decker in 1952 for about $50.00, or approximately $75.00 in terms of today's dollars. The same company has recently introduced a more sophisticated and safer jig saw for $9.99.

Other particularly popular power tools are finishing sanders and circular saws. Finishing sanders offer straight line action for smooth sanding and orbital action for fast material removal. The ladies are particularly attracted to the finishing sander because of the growing popularity of furniture and antique refinishing.

At around $13.00, the sander price is popular, too. Introduced in 1952, the first finishing sander for home use cost $72.00 in terms of today's dollars.

Does rugged jobs
The circular saw continues as the real workhorse of the home shop handling the most rugged cutting jobs. The first circular saw especially designed for use around the home was introduced in 1949 at $93.00 in current dollars. Today Black & Decker markets a better model for under $20.00.

The do-it-yourselfer has come a long way since the first home drill was introduced over a quarter century ago. Today he enjoys unmatched performance, safety and value in power tools that help him get a better job done more easily and in less time.

Safety tips for chain saw users

More than five million American households this year are expected to own a chain saw — a power tool once used almost exclusively by professional lumbermen.

The estimate was made by W.S. Mergott, Sears, Roebuck and Co. National Merchandise Manager, based on industry-wide marketing surveys.

He attributes the chain saw's increasing popularity to an evolution of the product into a lightweight unit that is versatile enough for many around-the-home uses.

Without being a skilled craftsman, a homeowner can use a chain saw to build furniture for patio, garden or camp; to erect cabins, bridges, fences or other rustic structures, and to create a number of other valuable articles.

"A chain saw is no more dangerous than many other power tools, but a few basic pointers are necessary before you start," he said. He listed the following rules, which are included in the operator's manual furnished with all reputable chain saws:

1. Always fuel saw over bare-ground away from the work area; start the saw at least 10 feet away from the fueling point.

2. Breaking in a new engine and chain is important, so don't attempt a heavy cutting load immediately. Run the new engine for the first few minutes at reduced speeds, pressing the oil pump lever frequently to lubricate chain and guide bar groove.

3. Keep the chain sharp at all times. Avoid cutting into dirt or sand; check it for sharpness and tension after each refueling and sharpen after three or four tanks of fuel are used.

4. Plan all work — before starting to cut, pick a clear place to stand. Control the saw using both hands; don't fight the saw. Let the saw's weight and self-feeding action carry the chain through its work.

5. If a cut begins to close, pull saw out and insert a wedge into the cut before it "pinches" the bar.

6. Always cut on the uphill side of a log. Stand to the side to keep out of the path of flying chips.

Not to mention trouble

Right tool saves time

A basic tool kit for emergency home repair jobs and do-it-yourself maintenance projects can help reduce scheduled waits for busy professionals — plus the cost of their service.

What tools should go into the kit? Sears, Roebuck and Co., which has been selling tools since before the turn of the century, offers some guidelines:

First, select a claw hammer with a 16-ounce head and a metal composition handle or a wooden handle with nonslip features. The 16-ounce hammer is a good, all-around tool for most jobs from setting fences to repairing a roof to hanging pictures.

A 14-inch jack plane for trimming and smoothing edges of dimension lumber, doors and trim is a wise buy. The long "bed" or bottom of the plane permits shaving without rock-

Other basic tools should include a twist drill set, up to 1/2-inch, for boring holes in both metal and wood; a 1/2-inch hand drill to operate the twist drill set; screwdrivers with 4- and 8-inch blades and 1/4 through 3/4 inch tips for removing and driving screws in small appliances, hinges and locksets, and a medium-size No. 2 Phillips' screwdriver. The Phillips' screwdriver can be used for mechanical repairs such as small appliances, electrical systems, and on autos.

For cutting, an 8 ft. saw is best. It can be used for both ripping and cross-cutting fiber and wood materials. It provides fairly smooth sawn edges, eliminating planing and sanding labor.

Also handy for cutting purposes are a utility (razor) knife for wood, paper and fiber materials; a single-cut 8-inch shoe rasp file for smoothing wood and fiber materials; and a combination oilstone for sharpening planes and other cutting edges.

In basic tools, an adjustable locking plier-wrench is a good buy since the tool can be used for both loosening and tightening stubborn bolts and screws. An Allen wrench set is necessary for driving socket set screws in small appliances and autos.

For general use — from plumbing repairs to tightening and loosening bolts on bikes and washing machines — 6- and 10-inch adjustable wrenches are a must. To turn pipe and couplings on large plumbing lines, a 10-inch pipe wrench does the best job.

For holding purposes, two or more C- or spring-type clamps go into a basic tool kit. Also needed are a combination square with a 12-inch blade for measuring and marking accurately, and a spout can of light oil for motor maintenance.

After you purchase the basics, consider buying additional equipment in "project" form. This might include a home painting kit, home plumbing kit and concrete patching kit. This way, you buy tools for specific jobs that can be added to the tool kit you already have.

Panels transform ugly walls to warm display

Simple transformation can turn an ugly wall into one with the warmth of wood paneling and the convenience of its own wall-hung furniture.

In a room on display, everything has been hidden away behind the System Cado panels which have a vertical row of obliquely drilled holes at both sides of each 31 1/2" width.

These match the dowels on the back of the 24 different kinds of shelving wall furniture — shelves, cabinets, drawers and tables — which can be arranged anywhere on the panels to suit individual needs.

wall. Furring strips for mounting to the wall and molding strips for perfect finish along the floor and ceiling, are supplied with the panels.

There is a choice of oil-treated Bangkok teak, Brazilian rosewood and American walnut or non-gloss light oak, all with an surface treatment that enhances the natural beauty of the wood.

Taping session

When taking apart objects that contain screws, nuts or tiny parts, first put down a piece of masking tape. Place each part on the tape as it is removed to avoid loss.

Plant fence - of roses!

Here's good news... now it's possible for homeowners to plant a beautiful living fence of roses, at minimal cost!

An unusual hybrid has been developed as a non-sprawling, tall-growing, fast-growing fence that grows very upright and compact and is ever-blooming from early spring to late fall.

Flower with bright red roses from top to bottom, this amazing variety rapidly develops into an attractive, thickly foliated, impenetrable barrier.

Providing a low-cost answer to the homeowner's fencing problem, it is specially mass produced in order to reduce the cost per plant.

A special type of propagation, not used for most roses, was necessary in order to make it available for use in mass quantity on an economical basis.

Unlike regular rose bushes, the rose fence can be trimmed and trained with regular hedge shears.

Fast-growing, it attains 4 feet or more the very first year, and between five to six feet by the second year.

Home gardeners can expect almost continuous production of semi-double flower clusters.

A dense hedge of border is achieved quickly by installing the plants 18 inches apart. Less density is achieved by spacing the plants approximately 24 inches apart.

Because the plant is self-rooted, it is apt to spring back quickly even if frozen to the ground in the severe weather areas of the country.

As an added bonus the cut flowers from this living fence provide colorful, longlasting blooms.

Design your kitchen to be uniquely you — to fit your moods, your needs, your desires! This Country French kitchen combines the look of 18th century regal elegance with the versatility and convenience needed by today's busy women.

Kitchen design should fit each family's life style

Where do most women spend the biggest share of their time? In the kitchen, of course — cooking, eating, talking, working on hobbies, making shopping lists! Kitchens serve a wide variety of purposes in the typical home.

Not all kitchens are alike, but then not all people are alike either. One kitchen design won't do the same job for a bachelor as it does for a family of 10. The needs are different. The life styles are different. Is your kitchen you — or is it just another room in your house?

Kitchens should be designed especially for the people who use them. For instance, do you like to cook, try out recipes, collect cookbooks? Or do you regard cooking as something to be done as speedily as possible?

Are you the only cook in your family, or does your husband like to make food preparation a joint project? This one fact will largely determine how much working area you'll need. If you like to mix cooking with talking, a preparation area and dining center combined in one room may be the answer. Or if you're an "everyone stay out of my way so I can get something done" cook, you can install dividing counters for privacy.

Do you and your children work on hobbies in the kitchen? Plan a desk or work table area where adequate lighting is available. If you're a gourmet cook with a large assortment of special-use tools, utensils, spices and herbs, you're going to need some extra storage areas.

Just because the rest of your house is decorated in Early American, you don't have to have maple cabinets in the kitchen too. For a new warm, solid look, try oak! The distinctive grain and rich color of Sheffield Oak, a new wood variation by Mutschler, can give your kitchen a sociable and homey atmosphere with just the right touch of massive elegance! There's a big selection of other woods that create specific moods for cooking.

Do you want a kitchen that incorporates all the latest designs and space-saving devices? If you treasure the mellow charm of some loved possessions that have come to be a part of living, you may need a display area.

Do you eat informally in the kitchen around a big table near the stove? If yours is a white-tie-and-tails family, you may want to enclose the work area by suspending cabinets from the ceiling for a divider effect.

Make an "I wish" list. Let yourself go. Decide who you are and what you want your kitchen to do. Make this a rapid-fire enumeration of what you would like if you could "have your druthers." Don't let practical considerations of what you believe is possible or impossible, either financially or architecturally, enter into this list. In kitchens, it is planning, not dollars, that makes the difference.

Next, make a list of "must haves," and if you have a particularly strong aversion to some colors, materials, textures, or features, make a list of taboos. Maybe you have a collection of cranberry glass that has to be featured in any kitchen you call your own. Or perhaps lingering cooking odors bother you more than most, so that a carefully engineered exhaust system will have special priority in your kitchen.

Now that you've set up your personal standards, dreams and desires, find out what the experts say. A complete kitchen planning portfolio which includes design plans, suggestions, and answers to common questions is available for $2 from Mutschler Brothers Company, Nappanee, Ind. 46550. Or see your Mutschler kitchen design specialist. With his help, you may be pleasantly surprised to find that some of the things you thought were impossible can be taken care of in ways you hadn't considered — ways to make your kitchen uniquely you!

Pollution control

A single aerobic wastewater treatment that entraps and retains organic solids until oxidation occurs is now available from Cromaglass Corporation, Williamsport, Pa. The Cromaglass System often permits the use of land for building that would be unsuitable for septic tank installations. It is practical for homes, apartments, factories, schools and mobile home courts.

Pruning time

With the exception of the pear, fruit trees should be pruned in the dormant season.

Hot, humid weather coming

Humidity control great for house

Summer's heat may make you uncomfortable, but it's the humidity that can really dampen your spirits.

High humidity is more than just a nuisance, or a "musty" smell in basements and closets. Excessive humidity in a home or apartment promotes mold, mildew and rust, sweating pipes and sticking doors, all of which have the potential to put a sizeable dent in your pocketbook.

Mildew can ruin shoes, luggage, books and other items you've stored away. Tools, fishing and garden equipment can rust. Valuable furniture and wood paneling can warp, and hardwood floors can buckle. Interior paint and wallpaper can peel and chip.

What can you do to help guard your valued possessions against deterioration and help prevent many costly home repairs?

According to General Electric Company, a dehumidifier can help control moisture in the home.

Even where air conditioning is used, a dehumidifier to provide low-cost primary moisture control may prove a wise investment, particularly in highly humid areas such as along the coast or in river valleys. It can actually lower power costs through increased air conditioner efficiency.

Building? Find right contractor

Anyone contemplating a significant outlay of funds for remodeling purposes is understandably apprehensive about the selection of the right contractor.

How do you insure that he is not only capable, but reliable, as well?

Naturally, you will respect the recommendations of your friends who have had similar work done. But in the event that you are unfamiliar with any contractor there are other reliable sources for professional contractors.

For example, the home improvement loan office at your bank can help. Also, a local building materials dealer is an excellent source.

Perhaps the most reliable sources are local chapters in your city of the National Home Improvement Council, the National Association of Home Builders and the National Remodelers Association. These organizations' recommendations can protect you from the dishonest or unreliable contractor. This is preventative medicine and just good sense.

Help control moisture in your home, especially during hot, sticky weather. Excessive humidity promotes mold, mildew, rust, sticking doors, over-long drying of wet laundry. General Electric offers automatic portable dehumidifiers in three sizes.

General Electric for example offers automatic portables in three sizes, to handle basements or small apartments up to living areas of 2,000 square feet or more, based on an eight-foot ceiling. Here are some buying tips from the company's experts on what to look for:

— Carefully check specs before buying, to make certain the unit is sized to handle the area in which it will be used. Because variables such as use of laundry equipment, family size and number of doors and windows affect capacity, when in doubt select the next largest sized model.

— Look for a large water container, at least 2½ gallons. It will reduce the frequency of draining the unit.

— Check for rust-resistant operating components and cabinets, as unprotected metal parts will quickly corrode and lead to failures.

— Consider the location where the unit is to be used; wood-grained-furniture-styled models are available for living and family rooms where painted models might be out of place.

— Select a model with an automatic humidity sensor that will turn the unit on and off as needed; this will lower operating costs and keep home air from getting too dried out, which for some can prove to be almost as uncomfortable as air that is too damp.

A descriptive brochure on dehumidifiers is available free by writing General Electric, 14th & Arnold Sts., Chicago Heights, Ill. 60111.

Wood is surprising

Not too many years ago, homeowners were stripping beautiful woods from walls for the then-new painted background. Now, wall fashions like clothing fashions, round out their periodic cycle and return again to walls paneled with fine wood.

Wood also adapts to a wide range of color and finish effects — from clear lacquer to deep-burnt paint as well as traditional lacquer and stain finishes.

COZY TRADITIONAL: Simplicity is the keynote of this three-bedroom ranch, which gives the impression of being longer than its 44 feet. All window openings are tied together in common detail, with paneled lower sections and full-length shutters.

Small ranch house with large charms

Here's a mini house with big ideas. Created to meet the needs of those with small lots and tight budgets, it nevertheless includes many design features ordinarily found only in larger and more expensive ranch homes.

To enable him to place three bedrooms within the dimensions of 44' by 28', architect Herman York came up with a combined kitchen-dining area somewhat in the mold of the old, so-called farm kitchen. Twenty-one feet in length, it has a U-shaped work space, a pantry, a planning desk, a serving counter and an ample section for a dining table and chairs.

The living room, to the right of the entrance vestibule but separated from it by a decorative grille, has plenty of wall space for the convenient arrangement of furniture. In one corner, there is a built-in niche for the display of books or bric-a-brac. Generally, a house with less than 1200 square feet of habitable area (this one has 1188 square feet) has a tiny living room. This one is more than 19' long. It has the advantage of being set off by itself, so that it need never be crossed to get to another room.

As in larger homes, there are two bathrooms — one for the general use of the family and one as part of the master bedroom. Both bathrooms are back-to-back with the kitchen plumbing, an economical installation arrangement. The master bedroom has two closets, the others one each.

Just off the kitchen are a mud closet and a stairway leading to the basement. In order to cut costs, the architect has utilized only as much of the underground area as necessary to provide space for a laundry, utilities, storage and a recreation room. The rest has been left as a crawl space. The recreation room, by the way, stretches from the back to the front of the house. Its dimensions of 25 by 16' provide lots of room for "fun" activities. Note that it is under the living and not the bedroom wing of the house, a convenient layout if, for example, some members of the family are playing games or music when others wish to retire.

The traditional character of the exterior is accentuated by the use of full-length shutters on all front windows, with paneled lower sections. A modified brick area at the living room side of the house complements the rough texture of the wood shingles everywhere else. The roof line is designed to create an optical illusion of length.

A family that requires three bedrooms is unlikely to find them within a small architectural package as this one. It is still more unlikely that such a house will include as many up-to-date features as can be found in Design Z-52.

BEFORE: A spiral staircase set between a brick and a bare wall offered interesting decorating possibilities. AFTER: Installing GAF Luran Sheet vinyl flooring in Aztec design wakes up the floor and sets the stage. The bare wall was papered in heavy vinyl backed Mylar. Available in either copper or chrome and 54 inches wide, the Mylar can easily be applied by the lady handyman using a heavy duty vinyl wallpaper paste. Here, the shiny surface of the copper color Mylar offers a mirror-like reflection of the graceful spiral staircase.

Women discovering joy, ease of 'do-it-yourself'

There are 70 million American women over the age of 18, according to the Census Bureau. Many of these are married, but millions are not. Most of the singles live with other girls, or alone.

Women, who never before had to hang curtains, wield a hammer, use a Phillips' screw driver or face a balky kitchen faucet, are now faced with chores of the handyman of the house.

But this experience is not just limited to the single women of the nation. Many married ladies are discovering that it's fun and offers a creative outlet to tackle a home improvement project.

It might be said that the hand that rocked the cradle is now rapidly learning, not only how to select the right tool for the job at hand, but undertaking "re-do-it," do-it-yourself projects with great enthusiasm.

Kristin Elliott, GAF's Floor Stylist, has helped many an amateur "handywoman" tackle a flooring project.

She advises, "While selecting the color scheme of the room would seem to be the first item on the list, I usually advise the ladies to consider the floor first. It can literally be considered still another wall for decorating purposes."

My recent "Do It

Yourselves, Ladies" project began when a career gal came to me after trying unsuccessfully to cram carpenters, designers and home handy helpers into her now stretched budget.

"We began with the floors in living room and kitchen which were hardwood and severely neglected," Kristin explained.

"Because some walls were white stucco and others brick, a bold pattern in vibrant colors of pumpkin, green and white was selected."

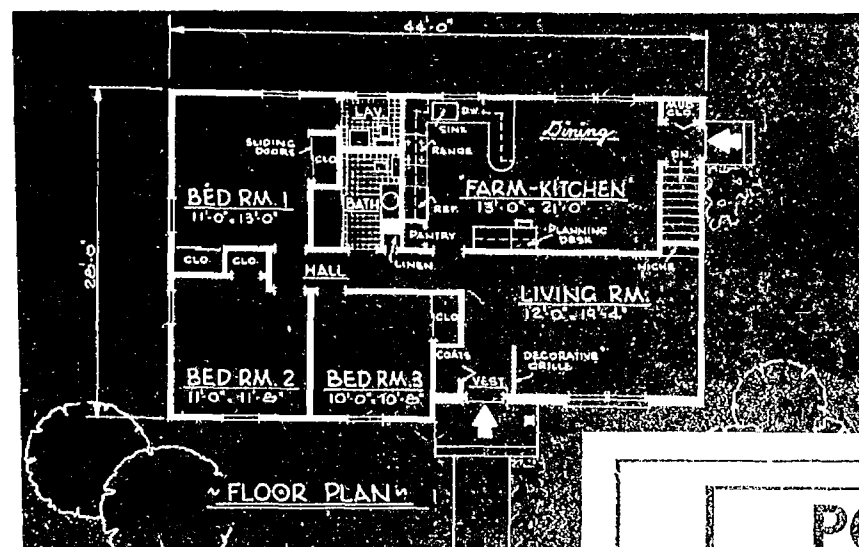

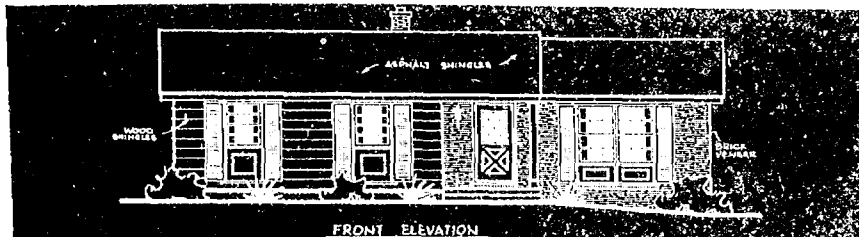

"Since the apartment to be done combined the living room and kitchen in one area, GAF Luran Foamercraft cushioned sheet vinyl in Aztec tile motif was selected. Available in nine feet and 12 foot widths it would permit seamless installation. The pattern seemed well suited to flow from one room to the other. It made an ideal starting point for the decoration plan."

The actual floor laying operation was easier than one would expect and detailed instructions are available.

The Luran Foamercraft offers a "no-wax" maintenance for the busy career gal because of its built-in high gloss that keeps its patina with a wipe of the sponge or a rinse with a mild detergent.

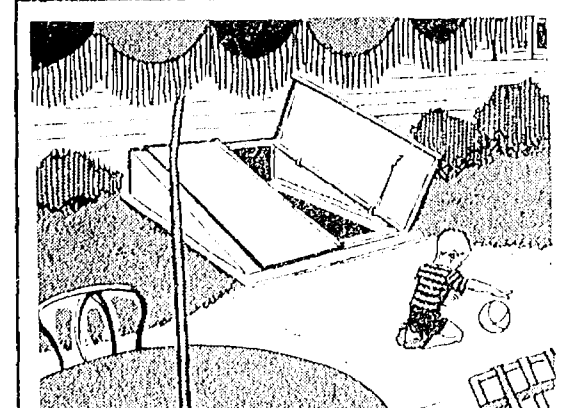

A soft vinyl foam interlayer cushions the step — Foamercraft is soft, warm and comfortable underfoot.

Choose right paint

Planning on repainting? Be sure to use the right type of paint for the different rooms. Water paints are ideal for the bedrooms, halls, den, or living room.

Be sure to check with your paint salesman for the correct paint. By simply telling him which room the paint is for, he will be able to help you select the proper type paint.

Tips on installing flooring in any room

First, make sure that sub-floor is clean and free of dust and dirt. GAF Foamercraft may be installed over any subfloor (old tile or linoleum) as long as it has no deep embossing or serious need of repair.

Best to make a small diagram of the floor, measure carefully and order flooring oversize.

Remove all moldings. Line up the flooring evenly along the straightest edge of the room. Move and align the floor design until it is straight. Unroll the flooring. It will unroll easily and bends and twists without cracking the design because of its flexibility.

Cut around carpets. For a finished, professional look, replace the moldings. One important note: Flooring is always cut face-up.

Redwood versatile
